BRYAN ACCEPTS PEACE OFFER

Sunday Massacre Peril for 800 Americans in Mexico City

TWO AMERICANS SLAIN; REFUSED MEXICAN SALUTE

By A. M. JENNINGS,
Special Correspondent for the Boston American.

VERA CRUZ, APRIL 25.—HUERTA NOW REFUSES ALL PROTECTION TO AMERICANS. HE HAS ALLOWED LOOTING AT CORDOBA. TWO AMERICANS WERE SLAIN WITH MACHETES FOR REFUSING TO SALUTE THE MEXICAN FLAG.

VERA CRUZ, April 25—Refugees who arrived today from Mexico City report conditions worse than when O'Shaughnessy left. Mobs are becoming more violent, committing greatest excesses. The lives of all Americans are in imminent peril.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S MEXICO DEVELOPMENTS

The President accepts an offer by Chile, Argentina and Brazil to mediate with Mexico.

Authorities on international law decree that arbitration with Huerta would be recognition of his government and that the only point that can be arbitrated would be the insult of the flag.

Huerta has not yet accepted mediation.

War preparations go on.

Admiral Fletcher issues orders that every man found carrying arms in Vera Cruz shall be shot.

Scores of Americans at interior points known to be in great danger of execution.

El Dictamen, a Vera Cruz newspaper prints a dispatch from Mexico City telling of the killing of four Americans by a mob.

Secretary Daniels says an army officer will be in command at Vera Cruz when troops are landed, indicating that as a base of operations for attack on Mexico City. The officer will be General Wood.

House passes Hay joint resolution to meet needs in Mexico campaign.

Secretary Bryan denies report that he will resign from Cabinet and says he never thought of it.

The State Department reiterates through Consular Agent Carothers to Carranza that the United States government merely seeks reparation from the Huerta regime and is not hostile to the Constitutionalists.

Citizens of Arizona through Senator Ashurst appeal to War Department for immediate dispatch of regulars to the Arizona border.

Four Americans are reported to have been killed in Mexico City. Consul Canada sends this report to Bryan.

Most of the army officers on detached duty in Washington, including Engineer Commissioner Harding, apply for service in the field.

Captain Douglas McArthur has gone to Vera Cruz to direct engineering work for intended advance on Mexico City.

Secretary Daniels orders Admiral Howard on the west coast and Admiral Badger on the east coast of Mexico to give asylum or passage on vessels to all American citizens desiring to leave Mexico.

Secretary Garrison says the United States troops ordered to Vera Cruz are "going for duty," when asked the purpose of military operations.

President signed the militia volunteering bill making the entire National Guard available for immediate service.

More than 3,000 refugees are en route to Galveston and 1,300 more to be taken from Mexico next week.

The detention of Americans in Mexico City, wholesale arrests and reports of massacres terrorize the officials in Washington.

Four new marine recruiting stations are to be opened.

More orders are issued to army and navy officers for Mexico duty as troop laden transports approach Vera Cruz.

MILITIA TO MOBILIZE LAKEVILLE

The Massachusetts militia will mobilize north of Assawompsett Pond, in the town of Lakeville, and immediately east of the highway leading from Lakeville to Middleborough.

Governor Walsh will today make a personal inspection of the ground in order that he may be familiar with every detail connected with the sending of Massachusetts troops to Mexico.

The Governor decided on Lakeville yesterday after he had received the report of a special committee of officers. The committee was unanimous, not only in favor of Lakeville but against Westfield.

The campground is approximately twenty-two miles north of New Bedford twenty miles northeast of Fall River and seven miles southeast from Taunton.

Taunton objected that the use of the Lakeville site might endanger the Taunton water supply. This objection was overruled on advices from the State Board of Health. The 34,000 inhabitants of Taunton were said to be in so much alarm at the thought of having several thousand men encamped on the shore of Assawompsett that the Governor delayed his decision until he had consulted

BULLETINS

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 25.—"My personal wishes are that the United States continue to blockade Vera Cruz and all the Huerta ports," was the positive statement made today by General Francisco Villa. He continued: "If the United States will do this we are sure to have the Constitutionalist army in the City of Mexico in a short time, and I solemnly promise the United States that I will see to it that the drunken Huerta offers a full and satisfactory apology for his various insults to the great friends of the masses of the Mexican people—the United States."

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Admiral Badger today reported to the Navy Department that the Mexican gunboats Bravo, Zaragorza and Vera Cruz are in the Panuco River, off Tampico. This is about seven miles from the mouth of the river. The Zaragorza is said to be carrying 1,000 Mexican Fedsral troops.

VERA CRUZ, April 25.—Admiral Fletcher has issued orders that any one found with weapons tonight shall be shot immediately. All arms in the city, wherever found, except in the hands of American troops, are to be confiscated. Admiral Fletcher has taken supreme command upon the recommendation of Admiral Badger.

VERA CRUZ, April 25.—It is reported that General Maas, Federal leader, has ordered seven American prisoners executed. This is unconfirmed.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The orders calling out the reserves are ready at the War Deparment. All that is necessary is for the President to fill in the number to be called in a blank space left for that purpose

BRAZIL, CHILE AND ARGENTINA MOVE TO END WAR

WASHINGTON, APRIL 25.—PREPARATIONS FOR WAR WITH MEXICO WERE SUDDENLY HALTED TONIGHT BY AN ANNOUNCEMENT FROM THE WHITE HOUSE THAT CHILE, BRAZIL AND ARGENTINA HAD OFFERED TO MEDIATE BETWEEN MEXICO AND THE UNITED STATES AND THAT THE OFFER HAD BEEN ACCEPTED.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT CAME AS A COMPLETE SURPRISE FOLLOWING THE DEVELOPMENT OF PLANS IN CONGRESS TO HAVE A COMMITTEE OF LEADERS CALL UPON THE PRESIDENT FOR MORE DEFINITE OUTLINE OF HIS PLANS AND POLICY WITH REFERENCE TO MEXICO.

Mexican Factions Must Accept Plan

Late in the afternoon it was announced that a statement dealing with the Mexican situation would be issued from the White House at 6 o'clock. It was then announced that the Statement would be issued at 6:30. Meanwhile a hurry call was sent to the Capitol for the members of the Senate and House committees on foreign affairs.

A few of the members reached the White House shortly after 6 o'clock and were informed of the mediation plans. It is understood that the announcement was about to be made without consulting Congress when it was suggested that the members of the Foreign Relations Committee be called in.

Washington is well divided tonight on the effectiveness of the mediation plans. It is generally conceded that, having been made, the mediation proposal could not very well be rejected, but at the same time the consensus of opinion is that the attempt would be futile.

The proposals will have to be accepted by Huerta and will also have to be sanctioned by Villa and Carranza to be of value in the pacification of Mexico and in allaying the war crisis. Whether or not Huerta will accept the proposals depends entirely on their terms.

The attitudes of Huerta, Carranza and Villa toward the new developments are not as yet known here. Senator Stone said, after leaving the White House conference, that the acceptance of the mediation plan is good policy, as it will leave the United States "square with the world" if we later have to press the issue with Mexico.

Doubt Mediation of Insult

Another Senator, who declined to be quoted directly, said, "I do not see how we can mediate a question of saluting the flag."

Secretary Daniels said tonight that the new developments would not cause any change in the immediate plans of the navy, and that no orders would be issued tonight altering the position or attitude of the sailors and marines at Vera Cruz and other points.

The tender of their offices for mediation between the United States and Mexico was made by Senor Da Gama, Ambassador from Brazil, Senor Naon, Minister from Argentina, and Senor Mojica, Minister from Chile, in the following letter:

> With the purpose of subserving the interests of peace and civilization in our continent and with the earnest desire to prevent any further bloodshed to the prejudice of the cordiality and union which have always surrounded the relations of the governments and peoples of America, we the plenipotentiaries of Brazil, Argentina and Chile, have the honor to tender to your excellency's government our good offices for the peaceful and friendly set- tlement of the conflict between the United States and Mexico.

U. S. NOW OFFERS HUERTA A CHANCE TO AVOID WAR

BRYAN ACCEPTS PLAN OF MEDIATION AND AWAITS WORD FROM THE DICTATOR

In Case of Agreement, Brazilian Ambassador Will Probably Head Peace Board.

This offer puts in due form the suggestion which we had the occasion to offer heretofore on the subject to the Secretary of State to whom we renew the assurances of our highest and most distinguished consideration.

Secretary of State Bryan, after a conference with the President and the ranking members of the House and Senate Committees of Foreign Relations, replied:

The government of the United States is deeply sensible of the friendliness, the good feeling and the generous concern for the peace and welfare of America, manifested in the joint note just received from your excellencies, tendering the good offices of your government to effect it possible a settlement or your governments to effect if possible a settlement of the difficulties between the government of the United States and those who now claim to representative our sister republic of Mexico.

Conscious of the purpose with which the proffer is made, this government does not feel at liberty to decline it. Its own chief interest is in the peace of America, the cordial intercourse of her republics and their people and the happiness and prosperity which can spring only out of frank, mutual understandings and the friendship which is created by common purpose.

The generous offer of your governments is therefore accepted. This government hopes most earnestly that you may find those who speak for the several elements of the Mexican people willing and ready to discuss terms of a satisfactory and, therefore, permanent settlement. If you should find them willing, this government will be glad to take up with you for discussion in the frankest and most conciliatory spirit any proposals that may be authoritatively formulated, and will hope that they may prove feasible and prophetic of a new day of mutual co-operation and confidence in America.

This government feels bound in candor to say that its diplomatic relations with Mexico being for the present severed, it is not possible for it to make sure of an uninterrupted opportunity to carry out the plan of intermediation which you propose. It is, of course, possible that some act of aggression on the part of those who control the military forces of Mexico might oblige the United States to act to the upsetting of the hopes of immediate peace, but this does not justify us in hesitating to accept your generous suggestion. We shall hope for the best results within a time brief enough to relieve our anxiety lest ill considered hostile demonstrations should interrupt negotiations and disappoint our hopes of peace.

The proposals for mediation are being formulated by the Brazilian, Chilean and Argentine ministers here. They will have to be submitted to Huerta for his acceptance. There is nothing in Washington to indicate whether Huerta will accept or not, and his action will hinge on the nature of the proposals. Nothing has been given out as to the probable attitude of Carranza and Ville on the mediation plan. The first bluff judgment of many Washington officials is that the mediation plan will be a failure in view of the chaotic conditions in Mexico and the inability of Huerta, Villa and Carranza and Zapata to get together on a settlement.

LEADERS AMAZED AT BRYAN'S MEDIATION

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Incredulity, amazement, bewilderment, were expressed by leaders in Washington at Bryan's acceptance of mediation.

The whole thing was done in a hurry. Secretary Bryan accepted the South American offer after a very brief conference by telephone or otherwise with the President, but questions immediately began to pour in upon the Secretary of State from Senators, Representatives, army chiefs and others which he found himself unable to answer. Some of these questions were:

"Does the mediation with Huerta mean the recognition of Huerta, which President Wilson has hitherto refused to accept?

"Are we to mediate only the affront of our flag?"

"Is it a question of national honor that it to be mediated?

"If the matter of the salute is all, how about the 150 Americans slain by Federals and Constitutionalists before the Tampico incident?

Mr. Bryan never mentioned the outrages and anarchy in Mexico, and as both have been publicly ignored by the administration, how can they be included in the mediation If they are not included, then how can the taking of Vera Cruz by President Wilson's order without waiting for Congress to "authorize" or "justify" the action be explained?

"ASTONISHED," SAYS REED.

Senator Kern, Democratic leader in the Senate, said:

"From what I know, I should say mediation will not be effective in this case, but I hope it may be."

Senator Reed of Missouri, one of the administration's most consistent supporters in the Senate, said:

"I am astonished. I don't care to comment any further on it."

Representative Vaughn:

"I am not inclined toward mediation, although I am a Democrat and with the administration in all things."

Representative Carter Glass, joint author with Senator Owen of the administration's currency bill:

"I am not for mediation in this affair. I think the Administration fully capable of handling the situation without outside influence."

Colonel R. M. Johnson of Texas: "Senator Bankhead just asked me what I thought about this. I told him I belonged to the church and that my utterances were governed by the rules of the church.

"There will be a wave of indignation sweeping over this country tomorrow greater than has ever happened because of this action of the administration.

RANGERS COULD SETTLE IT.

"If the President had left the settlement of this question to Texas we could have done it with honor to the country through 10,000 Texas rangers."

Urey Woodson of Kentucky, former secretary of Democratic National Committee:

"This mediation proposition is inconceivable. I have received so many unpleasant surprises since I have been in Washington I am going back home."

Senator Clarke, of Arkansas, Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee: "This is too grave a matter to comment on hastily. I will have to wait until I have heard full details before expressing an opinion."

Senator Bristow, Republican, of Kansas: "Astounding is the mildest word I can think of to express my opinion of the President's action in agreeing to permit Chili, Argentine and Brazil to arbitrate our differences with Mexico. Why, just think of the proposition as it stands! Here is a man whom the United States has never recognized to be anything but a murderer and a bandit. He, through men under his control, offers what the administration regards as an insult. The apology which he offers in reparation is not regarded as sufficient by the administration. Whereupon the United States, while not declaring war, begins a state of war and bloodshed. Then these three nations come along and offer to settle our differences. We accept that proposition.

"A STARTLING IMPOSITION."

"Now, how can the United States arbitrate with a bandit whom we do not recognize to be anything more nor less than a murderer? How can those three nations use their influence between a government and something which that government does not recognize as anything but an individual? It is the most absurd, really the most startling imposition that I ever heard of."

Senator Wesley L. Jones, Republican, of Washington: "Our hands are put to the plow down there in Mexico now, and I do not see how we are going to turn the plow round in the furrow and back out."

Representative Mott of New York: "Isn't this the worst you ever heard of? With whom will we mediate? If with Huerta, then it is a tacit recognition of Huerta and his government, which the administration has refused obstinately to recognize. It seems to me that Secretary Bryan should have accompanied his letter of acceptance of mediation with his letter of resignation of the office of Secretary of State."

Representative Kahn of California: "The question of mediation or arbitration of matters affecting the national honor has never been considered or advocated by me. I rather think that Mexico will have to salute the American flag."

Senator Vardaman of Mississippi: "It does not look to me as if much could now be accomplished through mediation. The time for mediation has passed. And, after all, what is there to mediate? No, it does not seem to me as if this is the thing to do."

Senator Poindexter of Washington, Progressive:—"The acceptance of this offer of mediation is astonishing. The offer is also astonishing. I do not see what they can do.

"What we are suffering from in Mexico is the physical condition, and I do not see how any international negotiations are going to remedy that condition.

"If terms should be made and accepted, would we withdraw our forces and permit outrages and murders, not to mention unspeakable crimes, against our citizens in that country to continue uninterrupted and unheeded? It is unthinkable."

MEDIATORS AWAIT WORD FROM HUERTA

WASHINGTON, April 25.—DaGama, the ambassador of Brazil, who will probably be the head of the commission to arrange terms of peace with the Huerta government if Huerta accepts the offer of mediation, said:

"The matter has not gone far enough to warrant the making of any statement.

"We naturally do not know anything about terms or details. They could not precede an acceptance of mediation by both parties.

"We have, of course, communicated our offer of mediation to the Spanish ambassador at Washington, who is acting for the Mexican government.

"The offer was undoubtedly sent by him to that government, but there has as yet been no reply. I presume that the reply will come to us.

"If an acceptance should come from the Mexican government, then I take it that we shall get together and have proposals and counter proposals, which we will discuss with the State Department here and with the representative of the Mexican government at Washington.

"I cannot predict anything as to the result. So far as I know, no one knows the attitude of the Mexican government.

"The Mexican government will get the complete statement as issued by the White House as soon as possible.

"We have not received copies of it, but we were advised at the State Department as to what it was to be, it having been read to us there.

"All we can now say is that it is to be hoped that the mediation will be accepted and that we will get together like 'good fellows' and do our utmost to prevent any conflict between friendly governments."

It is stated here on the highest authority that the Brazilian ambassador and the Chilean minister, and the Argentine minister, who have made the offer of mediation between the United States and Mexico, have not had any previous communication with the Huerta government.

These three diplomats are carrying out a plan which has been suggested to them by their respective foreign offices.

It is not ascertainable here whether or not there has been any communication between the foreign offices of the three mediatory governments and the Mexican government.

If such preliminary steps were taken, it is asserted that they have not been transmitted to the three diplomats here who have signed the offer to mediate.

Keep School Children's Heads Clean
There is always more or less trouble keeping the heads of children free from vermin, especially while attending school. No sensible mother would endanger the eyesight & lives of her children by using liquids or drugs & fine combing pulls the hair out & ruins it.
As a preventive & cure this sanitary, sure remedy, which is recommended by physicians & has been adopted by school & health authorities, should be followed once a week by every mother of children. Wet the hair with water & wash thoroughly with Fitzgerald's Hair Soap, which can be obtained of any druggist. This soap will form a thick medicated lather, which will thoroughly cleanse the hair of all nits, vermin, dandruff, germs & dirt, no matter how bad the case may be, & it will never harm the hair like fine combing & need not be examined by school physicians. It will keep it always clean & healthy, soft & fluffy, prevent its falling out, & promote its healthy growth. Always in a white tin box. A 15-cent box is sufficient for several months' use. Mothers should save this notice. Do not take a substitute, as Fitzgerald Soap Co., Collingswood, N. J., will send you this soap by mail on receipt of price. —ADVERTISEMENT.

LET FLAG FLY FROM HOME AND SCHOOL

REGISTER WITH FLAG EDITOR

> "The star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave."

Up with the Flag!

The United States is at war with Mexico and one of the very best ways of showing patriotism is to fly the national emblem, the Stars and Stripes, from every school, every home, every public building and any other structure that may worthily bear the standard of liberty.

Unfurl the flag to the breeze!

There is a wave of enthusiasm for the flag spreading over the country. The AMERICAN has been asked, and gladly follows the suggestion, that every citizen be called upon to get the national flag and raise it in his yard, on his piazza, from his house-top, at any point where a flag can be flown.

The flag is flown from all public school houses during school hours. This is by law and is right. But in some States they are already ordering the flag on on all public school structures every day in the week, whether school "keeps" or not, now that the country is at war.

Why cannot this be done in Massachusetts, ever one of the most patriotic States in the Union.

It is suggested that Flag exercises, similar to those on the National Flag Day be held soon in the public schools, with instructions to the pupils on the Mexican situation and the reason why the United States has been compelled to send forth her army and navy again.

Members of influential clubs, lodges and other organizations are saying that every body of this kind should show its patriotism by raising the colors over its club and lodge quarters.

The argument is made that the mere sight of the flag inspires patriotis that flag-raisings are one way of showing patriotism and of strengthening the hands of the national authorities, who are conducting the war.

The AMERICAU is deeply interested in this Flag question. It would like to record all flag-raisings, personal or those of organized bodies.

WRITE TO FLAG EDITOR.

If you raise the flag over your home, write that fact to the AMERICAN. Give briefly your sentiments regarding raising the flag at this time. The AMERICAN will publish these. Address letters to "Flag Editor, 82 Summer street, Boston.

Everybody belongs to a club, lodge or some social, fraternal or business organization. Suggest that it raise the national flag. If it has no flag, let it get one without delay. When the flag-raising comes, write to the AMERICAN about it.

Children, particularly, should be interested in the flag. This is the duty of parents. If they have no flag, get them one. Raise it for them. Or, better still, let them raise it with their own hands. Tell them the story of the flag and what it means.

There is only one flag for the people of this country and that is the Stars and Stripes and now is the time to show the colors, when war is on.

Up with the Flag!

'WHITE SQUADRON' FLAGSHIP CHICAGO NOW IN COMMISSION

The famous old cruiser Chicago, flagship of the "White Squadron," was placed in commission following a radiogram order from Washington today. She was towed from her berth at the North End pier and took aboard 140 naval prisoners from the Charlestown yard. The prison was then closed, the first time in a decade.

Out of the sixty marines at the local naval prison to guard the inmates, twenty-five of them were taken aboard the Chicago, under command of Lieutenant D. F. Smith, as a guard for the prisoners. As soon as they have been landed at the Portsmouth Naval Prison, the Chicago will return to the local yard for examination. The Chicago has been used by the Massachusetts Naval Reserves as their training ship.

MAYOR OF LOWELL URGES PEOPLE TO DISPLAY THE FLAG

LOWELL, April 25.—Mayor Dennis J. Murphy today issued a proclamation to the Public Buildings Department of the city and to the citizens in general asking that American flags be displayed from flag staffs throughout the city while the war is in progress.

"I feel that it is proper and fitting that the Stars and Stripes should be displayed everywhere," he said. "I hope that all private buildings and residences as far as possible, as well as the public buildings, will be provided with flags to indicate our patriotism."

Fear for Winthrop Women in Mexico City

Mother With Bride in Riot Swept Capital

Friends Fear for Safety of Boston Nurse Who Married Dr. Orozco of That Country.

Winthrop friends of Mrs. Antonio Orozco of Mexico City are greatly concerned over her safety and that of her mother, Mrs. Charles Emerson.

Mrs. Orozco was Miss Hortense Emerson, a graduate of the Winthrop schools and one of the most popular young women of Winthrop. She is a graduate of the Boston Homeopathic Hospital School for Nurses. While there she met Dr. Orozco, of a prominent Mexico City family, who was finishing his medical education in the United States. After their graduation from the hospital they were married and moved to Mexico City, where the young physician began his practice. Mrs. Orozco's father, Charles Emerson, a retired Maine coast sea captain, and his wife, went to Mexico City to make their home with their daughter. Captain Emerson died there a little over a year ago.

Nothing has been heard by Winthrop friends from Mrs. Orozco since Christmas. She is a patriotic American girl, and her position now would be a difficult one, with her husband and his family naturally siding with Mexico.

The young couple have an infant boy.

'CARRANZA MY CHIEF;' ARREST DENIED BY VILLA

Reported Break Between Constitutoinalist Leaders Ridiculed by Fighter.

EL PASO, April 25.—General Venustiano Carranza, the titular head of the Constitutionalists in Mexico, is still the commander-in-chief of the rebel forces, according to a dispatch this afternoon from Juarez. At his Juarez headquarters today General Pancho Villa, Carranza's chief of staff, denied reports that he had broken with Carranza and had thrown him into prison.

"General Carranza is my chief," said Villa. "These reports are sent out by the followers of Huerta. They are untrue."

In the face of Villa's statement the rumors still persisted that the two rebel leaders were in open conflict. This came in dispatches from several Mexican points.

Here the reports created the greatest excitement. El Paso is full of apprehension that Villa may lead his murdering hordes of 15,000 battle-mad troops into Texas.

Carranza and Villa came in conflict, it is asserted, over Carranza's dispatch to President Wilson "demanding" the evacuation of Vera Cruz. The report was that Villa preferred to keep on friendly terms with the United States.

MORE "SNIPING" AT VERA CRUZ DURING NIGHT; NO ONE HURT

WASHINGTON, April 25.—There was shooting in three sections of Vera Cruz last night, causing much excitement and alarm among the residents, according to a dispatch to the Navy Department today from Admiral Fletcher.

"All efforts to re-establish civil government in Vera Cruz have been unsuccessful," Admiral Fletcher reported, "although we have made every effort to persuade the Federal and State officials to continue in office."

"The City Council met and considered the proclamation issued by me. The proclamation was fully explained to the council by a prominent lawyer. He earnestly urged co-operation by patriotic citizens of Vera Cruz in order to secure resumption of all functions of their civil government by themselves for the preservation and protection of their own interests.

"The municipal authorities delayed final action and were inclined to make withdrawal of American forces from the city a condition under which they would resume their official duties."

How the Passports to Huerta's Charge in the United States Read

The passports handed to Senor Algara, Huerta's Charge d'Affaires, read:

To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Know ye that the bearer hereof, Senor A. Algara R. de Terreros, Charge d'Affaires ad interim of Mexico to the United States, is about to travel abroad accompanied by his suite.

These are therefore to request all officers of the United States, or any State thereof, whom it may concern, to permit them to pass freely, without let or molestation, and to extend to them friendly aid and protection in case of need.

In testimony whereof I, William J. Bryan, Secretary of State of the United States of America, have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the Department of State to be affixed at Washington, this twenty-third day of April, A. D. 1914, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-eighth.

M'KENNA, BOSTON BOY AT MEXICAN EMBASSY, IS SAFE

James B. McKenna of No. 36 Hancock street, was relieved of all anxiety yesterday, when he received two telegrams assuring him that his son, James E. McKenna, who has been in charge of the code work for the American Embassy, under Charge d'Affairs O'Shaugnessy, at Mexico City, had arrived safely at Vera Cruz.

Mr. McKenna is well known in Boston, where he was born in 1887. He attended the English High School and was captain of his company in the cadets. After his graduation in 1902, he attended Boston College and studied law at Georgetown Law School.

Force Mexican Girls to Salute the Flag

Bridgewater State School Heads Deny Knowledge of Affair.

BRIDGEWATER, April 25.—The report that two Mexican girls, Miss Emma Cheala Terez and Miss Beapriz Sepulzeda, twenty-one-year-old students at the Bridgewater State Normal School had been compelled to salute the Stars and Stripes by a number of their fellow student girls caused a sensation here tonight. The authorities at the school denied knowing anything of the affair, however.

The two Mexican girls were sent to the Normal school two years ago as protegees of the Mexican government to prepare to start a Normal School in Mexico upon their return following graduation next year.

PASTOR GIFFORD'S PRAYER ON THE WAR

Rev. O. P. Gifford, D. D., one of the best known ministers of the Baptist denomination in the United States and pastor of the First Baptist Church, Brookline, has composed the following prayer on the Mexican war:

Lord God of Hosts, we lift thankful hearts to Thee for the American Republic. We thank Thee for the good men and true, who gave life that we may have life. We thank Thee for the the principles that underlie and shape our national life. We beseech Thee for wisdom in our hour of temptation. Grant us sanity and sense. Keep us from pride of power, from greed of gain, from land hunger. May we play the part of the brother and not of the bully. May we be white in color and character. Keep us on the high level of civilization, from backsliding into barbarism. May we be ruled by principle not by passion. For the sake of Jesus Christ our Lord.

MEYER JONASSON & CO.

OPEN BREAK BETWEEN MEXICAN REBEL LEADERS, CARRANZA AND VILLA

GENERAL IS BELIEVED TO BE PLAYING A DESPERATE GAME WITH U. S. AND HIS CHIEF

Villa Insists That He Is Pleased by American Seizure of Vera Cruz.

By EDWARD H. HAMILTON.

EL PASO, Tex., April 25.—Washington continues to ignore Carranza and to treat with Pancho Villa. Carranza sends out from Chihuahua to Spain a message saying he protests against the American invasion and declaring that the Mexican people will fight against the invaders to the last breath.

Over in Juarez today Pancho Villa said to John W. Roberts of the I. N. S., his confidential friend:

"My personal wishes are that the United States continues to blockade Vera Cruz and all the Huerta ports."

There certainly seems a flat break between Carranza and Villa and now comes the question which is the stronger.

"I shall not be surprised if Villa places Carranza under arrest," said one man who had been campaigning with Don Pancho.

PLAYING WITH CARRANZA.

"Why Villa has Carranza where he can play with him as a cat does a mouse," declares Roberts, emphatically. "The cat sometimes seems to sleep, but let the mouse try to get away and how quickly the cat's paw crushes it."

"Will the other Constitutionalist generals stay with Villa as against Caranza," I asked Roberts.

"They will."

But there is an entirely different opinion expressed by men familiar with Mexican affairs and by American refugees, who have just come up from Torreon, Parral and Chihuahua.

For instance, Jack Hayes, the heroic superintendent of the Hearst ranch near Chihuahua, who has fought off revolutionist after revolutionist by force of superior arms and bravery, feels that Carranza will be the stronger figure in any split, and that most of the generals with stay with him.

"I doubt whether Villa will ever go back to the front to fight," said Hayes.

HAS MUCH LOOT ON HAND.

"He has a lot of bullion and loot to dispose of, and he has lost many of his followers in battle and by desertions and dispersals so common in all Mexican iregular armies. Carranza is just now bigger figure than ever before."

This view is shared by W. W. Stewart, who represents the San Francisco capital that operates the public utilities of Parral.

So it is not so easy to say whether in making terms with Villa the United States is buying a commanding hero, or a gold brick. But there is no doubt here that President Wilson has broken with Carranza and taken up Villa to work his purposes.

Though Washington continues to send out word that the President has sent a message to Carranza, Special Envoy George Carothers, through whom all communications to both Carranza and Villa must pass, assured me late this evening that no word has been transmitted from either the President or Secretary Bryan to Carranza.

But on the other Carothers has continued to hold long conferences with Villa and to transmit messages to and from him.

Here is just what Villa is said to have said to Roberts, his friend and press agent.

VILLA'S STATEMENT.

"My personal wishes are that the United States continue to blockade Vera Cruz and all the Huerta ports. If the United States will do this we are sure to have the Constitutionalist army in the city of Mexico in a short time, and I solemnly promise the United States that I will see to it that the drunkard Huerta offers a full and satisfactory apology for his various insults to the great friends of the masses of the Mexican people—the United States."

From this has grown up a story here that Villa is to be given the arms and ammunition he needs; that he is to draw off his troops from the American border and concentrate them in the march to Mexico City and that the United States is to take care of his border behind him.

There is another view, however, that the foxy Villa is merely playing with President Wilson to get 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition he needs, and then those bullets are far more apt to be used against the United States than against Huerta.

One battery of four field pieces has arrived to reinforce the El Paso defences, while two more batteries are due tomorrow from Fort Riley, Kansas, which will give this city sixteen 3-inch guns for her defence.

TWO REGIMENTS DUE.

General Pershing and his two regiments from San Francisco are also due tomorrow. This will encamp in El Paso an army of about 5,000 regular troops who would not hesitate to tackle three times that number of Mexicans, veterans or recruits.

Refugees coming in daily say that in two years Mexico will face a serious famine if she does not quit fighting.

W. W. Stewart says not one field of wheat has been planted where formerly there were ten, and while the larger cattle have been slaughtered for the hides, the younger cattle are being killed for food.

Refugees tell no tales of molestation or abuse.

Both Villa currency and Mexican bank notes, have disappeared from the El Paso quotations. No one seems to care to take a chance on them.

It was said today that Rudolph Fierro, on whose shoulders was laid the murder of Benton, the Englishman, in Villa's presence at Juarez, was riding smilingly around El Paso yesterday, though Special Envoy Carothers had warned him to keep away from this side of the river.

WAR DECLARATION IN LETTER TO CHARGE

VERA CRUZ, April 25.—Following is the text of the letter handed to Charge O'Shaughnessy with his passports, and which he considers equivalent to a declaration of war by Huerta:

Ministry of Foreign Relations, Mexico, April 22, 1914. — Mr. Charge d'Affaires: Assuredly your honor knows that the marines of the American ships of war anchored in the port of Vera Cruz, availing themselves of the circumstances that the Mexican authorities had been giving them access to the harbor and to the town because they considered their presence was of a friendly character, disembarked yesterday with their arms and in uniforms and possessed themselves by surprise of the principal public buildings without giving time for the women and children in the streets, the sick and other non-combatants to place themselves in safety.

CLAIMS BREAK OF FAITH.

This act is contrary to international usages, for if these do not demand, as held by many States, a previous declaration of war, they impose at least the duty of not violating human considerations or good faith by peoples of the country in which they are received as friends, and who therefore should not take advantage of that circumstances to commit hostile acts.

According to international law, these acts of the armed forces of the United States—which I do not care to qualify to in this note out of deference to the fact that your honor personally has observed toward the Mexican government and people the most strictly correct conduct so far as has been possible to you in your character as representative of a government with which such serious difficulties as those existing have arisen—may be understood as the initiation of war against Mexico.

"DEPLORABLE OUTRAGE."

This ministry reserves to itself the right of presenting to the other powers the events and the considerations pertinent to this matter that they, as members of the concert of nations, may judge the conduct of the two nations and adopt the attitude which they may deem proper.

"In view of this deplorable outrage upon the national sovereignty the president of the republic has seen fit to determine, as I have the honor to communicate to your honor, that the diplomatic mission, which your honor until now has discnarged, is concluded, and that you will have the goodness to retire from Mexican territory. To that end I enclose your passoprts, at the same time informing you that, as it is the diplomatic custom on such occasions, a special train shall be at your disposal, with a guard sufficient to protect your honor, your family and your staff, although the Mexican people is sufficiently civilized to respect, even without this protection, your honor and these accompanying you, I take this opportunity to reiterate to your honor the assurance of my highest consideration.

(Signed)
JOSE LOPEZ PORTILLO Y ROJAS.

HAWTHORNE LIKES FORBES ESTATE AS CAMP FOR REGULARS

Colonel Harry L. Hawthorne, in command of the Boston Artillery District, said last night that he was hourly expecting word from the Department of the East at Governor's Island relative to the selection of a camp site for the 3,600 regular troops stationed in and around Boston.

"Orders are apt to come at any minute," he added. "It looks as if the regulars in the harbor garrisons and other points in New England would be mibilized at any time. Just where we shall go has not been determined.

"I have inspected the rifle range at Wakefield and found that many altertations would be necessary. Franklin Field is too small, and the location is bad. Mayor Curley doesn't want troops quartered in the city proper.

"I have viewed the camping site at Hingham, the race track at Readville and the J. Malcolm Forbes estate in Canton. I have made a report to headquarters concerning the sites, with recommendations. The Forbes estate is an ideal camp site."

Colonel Hawthorne said last night the artillery companies in the harbor forts would be assembled in Boston in the event of orders, and that the regulars would march over the road to Readville if that or the Forbes estate were settled upon.

In case the regulars are called out, Colonel Walter E. Lombard, U. S. A., of the Boston Artillery district, will man the Boston forts and garrisons with companies of militia.

In addition to those reported in danger today it is believed that there are about 1,500 scattered in other Mexican towns and throughout the interior.

WALSH WELCOMES CHANCE FOR PEACE

Governor David I. Walsh last night dictated the following statement on the Washington dispatch that Secretary Bryan has accepted an offer to mediate the Mexican crisis by Chili, Brazil and Argentina:

With detailed information lacking, it is difficult to express an opinion. In a general way let me say that I believe it is the duty of every American in such a crisis to support any honorable proposition to procure peace, and yet maintain our national dignity and honor.

War with its attendant horror and unmeasured sacrifices of happiness and life, is to be undertaken only when every honorable effort to prevent it has been exhausted. We can confidently rely upon the government not entering into any negotiations which will not contemplate the accomplishment of the purposes for which we went into Mexico.

SAYS MEDIATION MEANS RECOGNITION

NEW YORK, April 25.—Maurice Leon, expert on international law and counsel for the French embassy, said tonight:

"I cannot see how the United States can agree to mediation without automatically recognizing Huerta as the legal head of the Mexican government.

"The action of the President as reported to me is certainly without precedent if it is proposed to have the mediators take into consideration the underlying causes of our grievance against Mexico. The same holds true if the mediators are to consider what form of government and by whom Mexico is to be governed in the future.

"A satisfactory solution of the situation will depend almost entirely on the question of who will represent Mexico in the mediation. In this case there is sure to be serious discrimination in favor of the Mexicans.

"If it is proposed that the mediators are merely to determine the reparation Mexico should make for an insult to the American flag I fail to see what good will be accomplished toward a final settlement of the general disorder in Mexico."

NEGOTIATIONS ON TO FREE ALL AMERICANS

VERA CRUZ, April 25.—Negotiations for the release of Americans taken by General Huerta's troops are progressing favorably, according to Captain Huse, chief of staff to Rear Admiral Fletcher. Captain Huse said today Admiral Fletcher told Geenral Corona, Huerta's chief of staff, that all Mexicans would be allowed free egress and ingress through the American lines.

"Every effort is now being made to get all the American refugees safely out of Mexico City," said Captain Huse. "Admiral Fletcher is anxious to afford all Mexicans every facility to leave Vera Cruz if they desire to do so and he asks reciprocation for Americans in the capital from General Huerta. General Corona's reply appreciated the attitude taken by Admiral Fletcher and said he would do everything in his power to persuade General Huerta to conform with Admiral Fletcher's wishes."

A trainload of Mexican refugees left the city today.

FUNSTON REPORTS BY WIRELESS "ALL WELL" ON TRANSPORTS

By Wireless from the International News Service Dispatch Boat Bailey, en Route from Galveston, Tex., to Vera Cruz, via Galveston, April 25.—The following wireless was sent to Lieutenant Ball on the transport Kilpatrick this morning:

"The Bailey compliments Lieutenant Ball and offers General Funston the wireless facilities of the Bailey to keep in touch with Galveston after leaving the Galveston zone."

The following reply was received:

"Your wireless received. Thanks for the courtesy. Glad to have you keep in touch with us. Zone of our radius about 600 miles. Send us any interesting news. All well."

The Bailey sighted the transports Meade, Kilpatrick, Sumner and McClellan at 3:30 this afternoon. The Sumner's position at noon was latitude 27:18 north, longitude 95 west.

RICH MEXICAN WITH AMERICAN WIFE IS SHOT FOR "SNIPING"

VERA CRUZ, April 25.—Cristobal Martinez, a wealthy Mexican who always had declared his great friendship for Americans, and whose wife was an American, escaped perhaps a more humiliating finish when he died yesterday as the result of a wound received during the fighting Wednesday.

Martinez was in a house from which persistent sniping operations were carried on. It was suspected that he was the author of the shooting. He was watched and warned. Finally he was detected on a balcony, with his knees covered with a newspaper. From time to time the newspaper was seen to rise, simultaneously with a detonation. This evidence was regarded as so convincing that Martinez was shooting that he became a mark for the American sharpshooters.

A steel-jacketed bullet then buried itself in him. The wound it made was serious, but the friends of Martinez inside the house hid him in order to prevent his arrest. This made impossible his receiving medical treatment until too late to save his life.

Martinez' wife is among the American refugees aboard the steamship Esperanza.

NEWTON PASTOR, WIFE AND SISTER REPORTED SAFE IN VERA CRUZ

A telegram received by the Rev. George H. Parkinson, pastor of the Newton Centre Methodist Episcopal Church, announces the safe arrival at Vera Crus of the Rev. John W. Butler, his wife and his sister, Miss Clementina Butler.

The Rev. Mr. Butler, whose former home was in Newton Centre, is in charge of a mission work in Mexico, and was stationed in Mexico City, while his sister, who went to Mexico a few months ago, has been teaching in a mission school in Puebla.

Since trouble began in Mexico the many friends of the Butlers in the Newtons have felt anxiety for their safety, believing that they would remain at their posts of duty as long as possible. The Rev. Mr. Butler has been in Mexico twenty-seven years and is a personal friend of President Huerta. His sister also is prominent in mission work, and they are the children of the late "Mother" Butler, who died a few months ago at the age of ninety-six years. In Newton Centre the family home is on Crescent avenue.

SOUTH BOSTON BOY IS CHAUFFEUR TO REBEL CHIEFTAIN

News is anxiously awaited of Daniel S. Durick, a South Boston boy, who has been serving as official chauffeur and advisor on auto supplies for General Venustiano Carranza, the Mexican rebel leader, and who wrote in his last letter home that, if war was declared between Mexico and the United States, he would quit the Mexican service.

"Dan" Durick, as he was known through the Peninsular district, is a brother of "Jack" Durick, of No. 109 N. street. His sisters live at that address also.

Both "Jack" Durick and the sisters know that "Dan" would leave Carranza's service, now that matters have gone thus far, but they are eagerly watching for some news from him that he is safe.

When Durick accepted an offer from Carranza a year ago to be chauffeur for the Constitutionalist General he never dreamed that he would be working a year later for an emeny of his own country. But fate put him in an ironical position.

There is grim humor in the situation now because Caranza has always supposed Durick to be a Frenchman, as he was told his name was "Durack." "Dan" was unable to write letters home from Caranza's headquarters. It would arouse suspicion. He has mailed letters North on his occasional trips across the United States border to buy autos and supplies.

It was one of these trips to Globe, Ariz., that "Dan" wrote his last letter, saying he would leave Caranza if war with the United States was declared.

Only 14, but Wanted to Enlist in the War

Tired and footsore, a runaway boy applied at the marine recruiting office on Hanover street yesterday. He wanted to go to war. To Sergeant Doherty, who met him at the door, he said that his name was Frederick Cooper and he came from Saugus.

He was the required height, but his face betrayed him. Sergeant Doherty, who has enlisted nearly a regiment of men, noticed that the boy's derby hat was padded with newspapers. Cooper was then put through a little third degree and he confessed. He admitted he was only fourteen years old and had stolen his brother's hat and long trousers.

"The hat was too big," he said. "I filled it in with newspapers. The pants were too long and I cut them off. I borrowed twenty-five cents from my mother and walked to Lynn; then I rode to Boston and walked here. I got hungry and spent the rest. Now that you won't take me I will go home. I hope the war lasts till I am old enough to join the army."

A brief collection in the office gave him his fare home and pay back the quarter he borrowed from his mother.

ANXIETY FOR THREE CAMBRIDGE MEN IN MEXICAN MINING TOWN

Fear is felt for three Cambridge men who are believed to be cut off from communication with their friends at Guanajuato, a Mexican mining town near Guadalajara. Guanajuato is twenty-three miles from Irapuato, the nearest railroad station.

The men are: Fred A. Reardon of No. 195 Gary street, Joseph M. Sullivan of Trowbridge street, and Herbert Johnson, whose home is in North Cambridge.

All three men have been in the employ of the Makenzie-Shepard mining interests for about four years, and hold responsible positions with the company in Mexico.

A CARD

On the 16th of this month we bought the entire stock of the CHENERY MFG. CO. of PORTLAND, the largest jobbing house in the State of Maine. We paid 59 cents on the dollar for the entire stock, which at the last inventory was $118,500 at wholesale figures. For about half a century we have been buying merchandise, but this is the choicest stock we have ever purchased in block. It is all in the original packages and has never been displayed.

WE ARE ANXIOUS FOR THE PURCHASING PUBLIC TO REALIZE THAT THIS IS AN EXCEPTIONAL STOCK. It is something altogether out of the ordinary. It is not the usual retail stock that has been displayed for sale, and has been on the counters with the best goods culled out, and the least desirable left. These goods are as fresh and choice as any that can be found in New York or Boston.

THE CHENERY PEOPLE CARRIED NO SECONDS, and we were fortunate in securing this absolutely choice and perfect stock. The only resemblance the sale of these goods bears to the usual and much advertised sales, is low prices. This stock is marked at prices that will insure a quick turn, and we are certain the New England public will be quick to respond to a sale of this magnitude.

200 AMERICANS ESCAPE HUERTA BY RUSE AND FLEE FROM MEXICO CITY

REFUGEES ARRIVING IN VERA CRUZ FEAR ALL LEFT BEHIND IN CAPITAL WILL BE KILLED

By A. M. JENNINGS.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

VERA CRUZ, April 25.—Two hundred more Americans, who escaped from Mexico City by a ruse arrived here on the train at 2 o'clock this afternoon. They said that all Americans had been forbidden to leave by orders of Huerta. They were enabled to get away by declaring themselves to be either English or German. None who were known to be Americans were permitted to come.

The refugee train consisted of ten cars and brought about 600 passengers. A majority of the remaining four hundred on the train who were not Americans were Germans, who had been directed to leave Mexico City by the German Ambassador.

All employes of the Mexican government and all workmen in the government arsenal have been ordered to join General Maas at Tejerillas. A great majority have responded including the cadets from the naval school.

Maas Refuses to Give Aid

Consul Canada sent a messenger to Maas today on behalf of Americans who are being held in the interior. General Maas referred the consul to Huerta, saying that he himself could do nothing to aid them.

The steamship Monterey has been chartered to take away refugees.

All Americans in the capital have been disarmed by order of Huerta.

The situation of Americans in the interior is perilous, as information from various sources indicate that anti-American feeling has been studiously fomented by agents of Huerta. Tomorrow is especially feared by the 800 Americans still in Mexico City.

C. T. Smith, a cousin of oseJph W. Folk, had a hard time making his way out of El Oro with his wife and children. He fears that all the Americans remaining are lost.

Among the other refugees arriving here today were V. W. Burns, manager of the Aguila Oil Company, his wife and mother, J. C. McDonald of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, Mrs. F. M. Eustis and M. Louis.

General Corana of the Federal forces informed Admiral Flether that he believed Huerta would permit all Americans remaining in the capital to leave.

Huerta, however, seems to have ignored this implied promise and women and children are reported to have been seized by Huerta soldiers.

Another refugees' train has been started from this end of the line in the hope that other Americans may manage to make their escape. A cry for help has been sent to Washington from refugees.

It is understood that Huerta and his Cabinet are to be held personally responsible for the death of every American in the capital or elsewhere.

Seeks to Restore Business

Admiral Fletcher continued to offer to have influential citizens unite and arrange for conduct of municipal affairs by the people themselves.

It is quite certain that former officials will not resume office under present conditions, but possibly citizens committees can beformed to influence city's affairs along lines of law and order and create confidence among inhabitants.

A meeting of this kind will be held this afternoon. The question of food and water still giving anxiety, but up to present time there is no actual distress. It seems probable, however, that ultimately the government will have to ration the poorer classes of inhabitants. The Custom House is opened and vessels are ready to discharge, but much difficulty is experienced in obtaining labor.

Lines of bluejackets and marines were extended about two miles further out in the country today. The South Carolina battalion is well entrenched about two and one-half miles from the centre of the city. No contact has been made with Mexican forces and no attack is expected at presnt.

Aeroplane Makes Flight

The Mississippi's marines landed this morning. This morning an aeroplane made flight over the harbor and will make another flight this afternoon.

Ships' bands are giving concerts ashore.

Hawaiian-American steamer was reported to have sailed from Puerto, Mexico, 10 a. m. Saturday for Vera Cruz with about 200 refugees and will transfer them to the steamer Mexico, and as soon as reasonably filled that vessel will proceed to New Orleans and land refugees and return.

Jason and Paulding are now at Tuxpan collecting refugees. Rear Admiral Cradock and commanding officer of British ships Hermoin, at Tampico, and Berwick, at Puerto, Mexico, have been untiring in efforts to collect and forward American refugees ships. These services have been of greatest value. Further offers of continuation of these kindly efforts still being made.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy has in his possession a letter from Huerta, which is a virtual declaration of war upon the United States. The letter accompanied the passports which were handed to the charge d'affaires just before his departure from Mexico City.

This letter may yet play an important part in the war for it would serve as a basis upon which Congress could declare that a state of war existed between this country and Mexico. The substance of the letter has been wired to the State Department.

O'Shaughnessy came ashore today from the battleship Minnesota, where he spent the night as the guest of Admiral Fletcher. He was accompanied by Consul-General Shanklin. The two men were closeted for a long time with Conbul Canada.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy does not yet know what he will do, as he has not yet received orders from Washington.

AIRSHIPS ON SCOUT DUTY.

The two hydroplanes that have been brought here in the custody of Lieutenants Mustin and Ellison flew over the city today in a preliminary reconnoitering trip.

The German Ambassador, Von Heintze, at Mexico City, has refused point blank to comply with a demand made upon him by Federal soldiers to surrender 250 rifles with which the embassy has been provided for its own protection.

Von Heintze informed Huerta personally that he would fight before he would surrender them.

It is reported that the German ambassador has received personal instructions from the Kaiser to bring or send all German subjects at once to Vera Cruz.

ZAPATA ALLY OF HUERTA.

Zapata, the rebl chieftain, is reported to be now in Chapultepec. According to Paul Hudson, who arrived here today from the capital, Zapata is now completely reconciled with Huerta and has brought with him 20,000 men who are ready to fight the Americans.

How American Women May Keep Faces Young

"The American smart woman ages early, far earlier than the English woman," says Christian Miller, F. C. I., the famous English health expert. She adds that our climate "so exhilarates that you over-exert yourselves and grow old before you know it. That same exhilarating air dries the skin. The skin that lacks moisture grows pale and withered looking and soon forms wrinkles.

"The American complexion" is best treated by applying pure mercolized wax, which causes the faded, lifeless cuticle to flake off in minute particles, a little each day, until the fresh, young skin beneath is wholly in evidence. Every druggist has this wax; one ounce is sufficient. Spread on at night like cold cream, washing it off next morning.

For wrinkles, dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel; bathe the face in this. Immediately every wrinkle is affected, even the deeper lines. Both treatments are remarkable facial rejuvenators.

NUEVO LAREDO IS SEIZED BY REBELS

LAREDO, Texas, April 25.—Claiming that he was acting under the authority of the Constitutionalist government of Mexico, Melquiades Garcia, accompanied by five Carranza sympathizers, today went to Nuevo Laredo, which was yesterday evacuated and burned by the Mexican Federals, and proclaimed himself commander of the town.

Simultaneous with this action, Garcia ordered the international bridge on the Mexican side closed until quiet and order could be restored. It was also announced that a big Rebel army, which is encamped some miles down the river from Nuevo Laredo, would arrive there tomorrow to establish headquarters.

The Mexican Federals who evacuated Laredo yesterday are reported stranded eight miles southwest of that place, two of their locomotives having broken down. A messenger, sent to Nuevo Laredo to secure a machinist to repair the engines, was arrested and will be held a prisoner by the Constitutionalists.

U. S. CONSULATE AT CANANEA THREATENED

DOUGLAS, Ariz., April 25.—A threatening demonstration by 2,000 unemployed miners and smelter men, who are parading the street of Cananea tonight shouting "Death to the Americans" and menacing the United States Consulate, has resulted in an appeal to the Rebel authorities for protection to American citizens.

The appeal was made by United States Consul Simpich at Nogales on receipt of a telegram from C. L. Montag, United States consular agent at Cananea.

No news has been received from Cananea since 5 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour the mob had surrounded the consulate, but Mr. Monta had determined not to haul down the American flag until 5:30, the usual time.

Three of the largest mining camps in Sonora have been deserted by Americans.

10,000 AMERICAN TROOPS AT EL PASO IN ANOTHER WEEK

EL PASO, April 25.—Before the end of the coming week nearly 10,000 American troops will be encamped here. Among the forces now under orders to proceed to the border are two batteries of the Sixth Field Artillery from Fort Riley, Kan., with 800 men; the two remaining squadrons of the Twelfth Cavalry from Fort Robinson, Neb., which will join the First squadron in camp here; the Sixth, Twelfth and Sixteenth infantry regiments from San Francisco.

General John J. Pershing, commander of the Eighth cavalry brigade, who will probably succeed General Scott as commander of the Second cavalry brigade, will arrive here tomorrow from San Francisco.

TROOP MOVEMENTS FOR THE PRESENT ARE ALL UNDER WAY

WASHINGTON, April 25.—"No more troops movements will be ordered today. I am informed that all troops which have been ordered to move now are under way," said Secretary of War Garrison today. "The San Marcos will sail from Galveston today with all of the Fourth Field Artillery that can be put aboard.

"The cavalry which is to go to Mexico has not been designated, but the cavalry which will be sent will be used only for scouting purposes," said the secretary.

Mr. Garrison said he had received no news today from Laredo and no official confirmation of the reported execution of Americans in Mexico.

Governor Hunt of Arizona is considering mobilizing State troops to ordered to the border, and is corresponding with Secretary Garrison concerning the plan, according to Mr. Garrison.

"I can only say that Governor Hunt is corresponding with me about ordering out the State troops, and that the Governor has asked me what the War Department can do in Arizona," said Secretary Garrison. "Whether Governor Hunt has actually determined to call out the State troops is more than I can say.

GOVERNOR ORDERS THAT CAMP BE PREPARED AT ONCE FOR THE MILITIA

WALSH, WHILE EXPRESSING DETERMINATION TO BE READY, HOPES CALL WILL NOT COME

the highest possible Massachusetts authorities on sanitation.

To the Sunday AMERICAN last night Governor Walsh said that he will see to it that steps are taken immediately to instal pumps on the camp site and provide a water supply for the company streets.

"I have heard nothing from Washington," the Governor said, "further than the suggestion that came indirectly, a few days ago, to the effect that it would be wise to recruit our companies up to the full strength of 108 men each. I hope I may hear nothing. I hope there may be no call for men. I do not thrill at the prospect of having to send away from us so much of the flower of Massachusetts manhood.

"But I must do my duty and I must do it promptly. I consider it best to be so prepared that, when the word comes, the Commonwealth and its soldiers will be ready.

To that end the grounds at Lakeville will be leased and prepared without further loss of time."

The board which recommended Lakeville to the Governor was made up of Col. Frank F. Cutting of the Fifth Infantry, Major John W. Heavey of the United States Army Surgeon-General Frank P. Williams and Major Christopher Harrison of the Engineer Corps. The officers had just visited Westfield when they sent this report along from Springfield:

To His Excellency,
Hon. David I. Walsh,
Governor of Massachusetts.

Sir: In response to your request for advice as to the question of the establishment of a military camp near Assawompsett Pond, I am instructed to say that there is a large and fairly level area north of the pond and along the easterly side of the Nemasket River, which flows out of the pond, which might be used for a mobilization camp without danger to the water supply of the pond, provided guards are placed to prevent danger of the soldiers bathing in the pond. There would be no objections to bathing in the stream running out of the pond.

All excreta and other wastes from the camp should be disposed of outside of the watershed of the pond.

If conditions herein suggested are complied with, danger of pollution of the water of the pond, which is used for the water supply of the city of Taunton, will be avoided. All portions of the camp and appurtenances thereto should be kept north of a line indicated on the accompanying State sheet and east of the highway from Lakeville to Middleborough.

To His Excelency the Governor of Massachusetts.

Subject: Report on location of Mobilization Camp for the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia.

1. The committee visited Lakeville and found the ground in that vicinity suitable in every respect for a mobilization camp.

It was learned that the people of Taunton, who obtain their water supply from Lake Assawompsett, have objected in the past to the location of camps in the vicinity of Lakeville.

The committee believes that modern camp sanitation will prevent the contamination of the Taunton water supply.

The engineering department of the State Board of Health can by frequent analysis maintain the present degree of safety.

The ground is ample and suitable for camp and drill purposes and its vicinity offers unusual advantages to develop marching ability and places to develop fire are within marching distances of the camp if located at Lakeville.

Middleboro, two miles north of Lakeville, has good railroad accommodations and a good road leads from the station to Lakeville.

2. The committee visited Westfield and found the soil unsuitable for the purposes of a mobilization camp. The top soil is very friable and dusty even with a fog over the probable site. Tramping or marching or drilling would soon render this ground a mass of dust. Men could not be properly trained under such conditions. The extent of ground is greater than that available at Lakeville, but utterly unsuited for such a camp as is contemplated.

There is said to have been a chapter III to this report, in which the committee pointed out that the attractions of Springfield, Holyoke, Chicopee and other large centres might distract the attention of the soldier-boys from their military duties. As far as that goes, however, the men will not find themselves cut off from the world at Lakeville. Not exactly.

A two-mile jaunt from the camp ground will bring the militiamen to Middleboro. Middleboro, a town ever since 1669, is almost of city size, having 8,500 people.
for Brockton, New Bedford, Taunton, Wareham and Bourne. Also, these trolleys will bring loads and loads of pretty girls to camp on Saturday afternoons and Sundays. 'Bus men and sightseeing automobile owners are already considering the business to be done between station and campground.

Until the last minute the Taunton "water nervousness" worried the Governor, who did not say "Lakeville" to the waiting "war" correspondents until he had finally received this letter from the State Board of Health:

This letter was signed by Dr. William C. Hanson, acting secretary of the State Board, and Chief Engineer X. Henry Goodnough. Mr. Goodnough. Mr. Goodnough talked it over with Governor Walsh.

NEW LAW NEEDED FOR MILITIA, SAYS PEARSON

Adjutant-General Pearson yesterday announced that, under the new Volunteer Army act just signed by President Wilson, Congress must pass a special law before the militia of any State can be called out for Mexican duty.

Massachusetts troops ordered to the front cannot, in any event, be led by their present-day brigadier general, according to the interpretation placed upon the new law by these officers themselves.

This was decided at a conference between Adjutant-General Pearson, Brigadier-General Sweetser, Brigadier-General George H. Priest, Colonel Matthew E. Hanna and Major-General Pew, retired, late yesterday afternoon.

Brigadier-General E. Leroy Sweetser and staff, under this interpretation of the new law regulating the calling out of the militia, will be debarred from continuing in command of the Second Brigade when the real fighting starts.

Any company in the Massachusetts regiments failing to volunteer for war-duty by a three-fourths vote also may prevent the entire regiment from going to the front as a whole according to those who took part in this conference.

BIG RECRUITING CAMPAIGN.

With all the militia officers engaged in a whirl-wind recruiting campaign to place their respective companies on a full war footing which will give Massachusetts 10,000 men to send to the front, these were the latest developments in the local war situation yesterday.

Governor Walsh may encounter considerable opposition before finally establishing a mobilization camp at Lakeville, owing to the fear expressed by the city officials at Taunton that their water supply might be injured.

The Governor has received assurance from the State Board of Health on the other hand, that this fear is groundless, and that there would be no contamination of the Taunton water supply if proper care were exercised.

Following the several conferences which resulted in the establishment of these facts, Colonel Hanna, Inspector-General of the National Guards, went into secret conference with eight other officers to perfect still other tentative war plans.

That everything was in readiness to meet any emergency was the opinion of all who took part in this conference, although the full details of their plan were not given out.

In addition to Colonel Hanna, Colonels George H. Benyon, Jesse F. Stevens, Fred R. Robinson, John S. Barrows and James A. Cully, with Commander Edmond F. Baudoin, Majors Charles F. Sargent and Mark E. Smith were present.

The meeting was held in the outer office of the adjutant-general's quarters late in the afternoon, when the State House doors were locked to the general public.

The further preparedness of the Massachusetts troops to go to the front was shown in a dispatch received by Governor Walsh yesterday from the War Department. Replying to his message asking what could be done to furnish Massachusetts troops with shoes, overcoats and packs of the latest type, the War Department assured the Governor that 9,000 pairs of shoes and the same number of overcoats could be sent here immediately.

The packs, however, were said to be non-available. But this is not considered to be a serious drawback, as the men readily could use the older-style roll, and not be compelled to resort to the use of the near-archaic knapsack in any event.

VOTE BY COMPANIES.

That it would be possible for eleven men, by voting against the acceptance of the Volunteer Army Act, to prevent the enrollment of the entire regiment with which they were connected, because of the wording of this new law, was brought out in an analysis of the act yesterday.

The new law requires the volunteer vote to be taken by companies, instead of by regiments. By a peculiar wording of the law, Adjutant-General Pearson stated, this makes it possible for a bare forty-eighth of the enlisted men in any regiment blocking the will of all the others.

With a number of the militia companies today having less than forty men on its roll-call, if eleven of these forty voted no, when passing on the question of volunteering, the three-fourths-by-company vote would necessarily be defeated.

To remedy this obvious defect in the new law, Adjutant-General Pearson said, Congress must amend the act, either by making it a vote-by-regiment, or some similar rule.

Failing to secure the necessary three-fourths vote, by company, as the law now stands the militiamen would lose the preference given them under that law of retaining their present officers.

Enlistment then would have to be made upon the same terms provided for other volunteers not members of the State militia.

NAVAL RESERVE TO BE FIRST FROM BAY STATE

The first of the Massachusetts militia to go to the front, if the President issues a call for volunteers, will be the marine guard of the Bay State naval brigade. This was the announcement made to Congressman Murray of Boston at Washington late yesterday afternoon by Major-General George Barnett, commandant of the Marine Corps at Washington.

Immediately after this became known Captain Daniel M. Goodridge, chief of the Massachusetts naval brigade, declared that not only his marine guard, but the entire brigade was in readiness to go to war at a moment's notice.

The marine guard numbers thirty-six men under First Lieutenant Walter A. Powers. Several days ago the Washington authorities were informed that the naval reserve branch of the Bay State militia was eager and in readiness to respond to a call to arms. At that time Captain Goodridge telegraphed Washington offering the services of his guard. In reply came this telegram to Adjutant-General Pearson yesterday:

Receipt acknowledged of telegram dated April 23rd and signed Goodridge, offering services of a detachment of marines. If the service of State troops becomes authorized, we will gladly consider acceptance. Cannot do so at present, however.

(Signed) GEORGE BARNETT,
Major General Commandant.

WILSON DECLARES HE WANTS NO EMERGENCY WAR FUND "AS YET"

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, asked the President if he wanted "any war appropriation." Mr. Wilson said "not as yet."

Monday. Major Benjamin B. Shedd will serve as president of the examining board for first-class gunners during Major Fullerton's absence.

Here's the biggest free offer ever made to New England folks—an offer that simply must be taken advantage of by every housekeeper, either with or without children. In order to acquaint everyone in this locality with the wonderful merits of the scientific WIZARD TRIANGLE POLISH MOP, the Mop that "gets-in-the-corners," and WIZARD POLISH, "more than a furniture polish," we are going to make this unprecedented offer:

Here's the Free Offer—Read It!

Simply go to one of the dealers. Purchase a bottle of WIZARD POLISH—either 25c, 50c or $1.00 size. Then take the coupon which is in every package and mail it, together with the front of carton which surrounds the bottle, to us in Chicago. Be sure to enclose your name and address. As soon as we receive the coupon and front of carton we will send you prepaid and absolutely FREE one of the famous WIZZIKIN Theatres, worth at least one dollar. You cannot buy it for less. This beautiful theatre is lithographed in 8 colors, size 9x12 inches. It has two fine acts and one grand transformation scene. The eight characters are Miss Busybee, her mother and brother, and a band of WIZZIKIN fairies from the moon. No circus ever provided more fun for the children than the WIZZIKIN Theatre. And they don't have to carry water to the elephants or climb under the tent either. They can stage the characters, shift the scenes, and amuse themselves for hours at a time. With the WIZZIKIN Theatre comes the WIZZIKIN Jingle Book—a riot of fun—a scream from cover to cover. Nothing else like it in existence. And remember that both WIZZIKIN Theatre and WIZZIKIN Jingle Book come to you prepaid for one coupon and a carton front from a bottle of WIZARD POLISH. Make the children happy with the WIZZIKIN Theatre and WIZZIKIN Jingle Book, and give your furniture and floors that rich "honeymoon" finish by purchasing a bottle of WIZARD Polish. And don't forget to buy a WIZARD Triangle Polish Mop. We tell all about this great mop below

WIZARD TRIANGLE POLISH MOP
The Mop that "Gets-in-the-Corners"

Reaches into corners everywhere and to tops of doors and high moldings. No kneeling or stretching or stooping. No arm-ache or back-ache. Handle has a "human elbow," which adjusts mop instantly to any desired angle. Mop comes treated with Wizard Polish. Price complete, $1.50. New smaller size, $1.00. You'll never make a better work, muscle and time saving investment than in a WIZARD Triangle Polish Mop. When you buy your WIZARD Polish ask to see a WIZARD Triangle Polish Mop.

STON PROTEST AGAINST WAR IS SENT TO WILSON

O MEET IN FANEUIL HALL

regard Huerta and Villa as hot headed bandits," declared Milton Reed of Cambridge at an anti-war meeting yesterday at No. 3 Joy street, by members of the Twentieth Century Club.

The meeting was held at the close of regular meeting of the club to protest against war with Mexico and to appoint a committee of members of the club to arrange for a meeting of protest in Faneuil Hall and send resolutions to President Wilson.

Mr. Reed said further:

"I regard this war as a crime and real murder. I fail to see how there can be any occasion for it. Certainly that little incident about a salute at Tampico did not begin it. It has put this nation into a peculiar danger. We are warring against a people who are nothing else but serfs. It is a strong people against a very weak one. I think that President Wilson has made a great mistake to allow himself to be dragged into it.

CALLS IT A CRIME.

"I have no sympathy with any of the men who have provoked this war and I do not believe a meeting of protest like this will do any good. These dogs of war are guilty of a great crime and we shall see it in a short time."

Dr. C. F. Cole, who presided, asked that the speakers be more constructive in their policy of finding a remedy and not so destructive as the last speaker.

Mr. Reed shouted: "Well it's true, nevertheless."

Frank B. Sanborn of Concord said: "The city of Boston is two to three against war. I believe that the best way out of our difficulty is to call a public meeting and invite our representative citizens. We are in a dangerous situation at present. I was talking with a retired army officer only yesterday and he said to me: 'I should like to be President only for ten minutes, and I would put that Mayo in a receiving ship or in the receiving vault of some cemetery.' We are not going to war for the sake of annexing Mexico. We ought to declare an armistice for ten days just to find out what we are doing."

AN "ADMIRALS' WAR"

Dr. George Nasmyth of Washington said that he had just returned from that city and it looked to him as if the war was simply an "admirals' war."

"There are so many military officers surrounding the President," said the speaker. "Certion sections of Congress would like war and I believe that the South wants it, as it would call attention to that section of the country.

"I hope that this jingoism sentiment will not prevail. Back of it all is the moral sentiment of President Wilson and we want to help him in preventing the war from becoming a war of conquest. We ought to support the President, as he represents a high type of man."

Rev. Charles F. Rice, D. D., pastor of Winthrop Street Methodist Church, Roxbury, then moved that the following resolution be sent to President Wilson and the two Massachusetts senators:

"We earnestly urge the avoidance of any steps involving war until the whole complex Mexican situation can be examined by a commission of inquiry, that Congress and the people may have full and accurate knowledge of the facts, and further that the situation calls for an immediate and express declaration by Congress that the United States will in no event take any territory from Mexico by conquest."

The resolution was unanimously carried and contributions of money were taken up to send the telegram to the President at once. Rev. W. R. Lord, D. D., of Dover, was instructed to send the message.

The committee to have charge of the future meeting of protest was then appointed. On the committee are Frank B. Sanborn, Edward Chandler, secretary of the Twentieth Century Club, and Mrs. Lucia A. Mead.

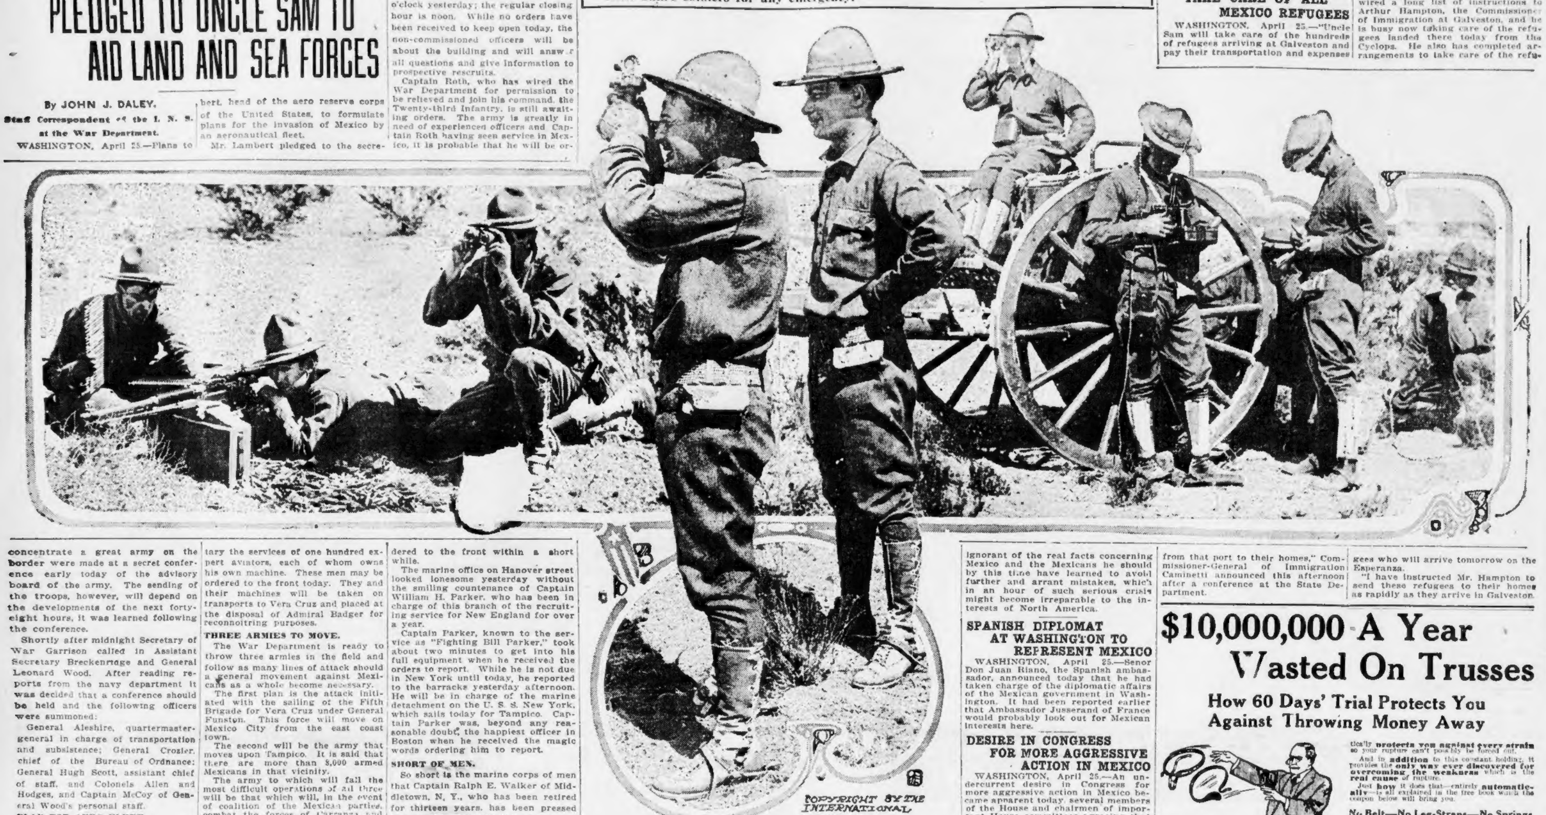
MOVE TO CONCENTRATE MIGHTY U. S. ARMY ON THE MEXICAN BORDER LINE



Typical Army scene in United States field artillery camp on Mexico-Texas border. Picture shows how the men with field piece are getting range with an adjustable range-finder. This has been part of the daily routine for months in the preparation of Uncle Sam's soldiers for any emergency.

COPYRIGHT BY THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

ONE HUNDRED AIRSHIPS ARE PLEDGED TO UNCLE SAM TO AID LAND AND SEA FORCES

By JOHN J. DALEY,

Staff Correspondent of the I. N. S. at the War Department.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Plans to concentrate a great army on the border were made at a secret conference early today of the advisory board of the army. The sending of the troops, however, will depend on the developments of the next forty-eight hours, it was learned following the conference.

Shortly after midnight Secretary of War Garrison called in Assistant Secretary Breckenridge and General Leonard Wood. After reading reports from the navy department it was decided that a conference should be held and the following officers were summoned:

General Aleshire, quartermaster-general in charge of transportation and subsistence; General Crozier, chief of the Bureau of Ordnance; General Hugh Scott, assistant chief of staff, and Colonels Allen and Hodges, and Captain McCoy of General Wood's personal staff.

PLAN FOR AERO FLEET.

At the close of the conference no word was given out, but it was learned that tentative orders were prepared to be issued as soon as advices were received from the front. Assistant Secretary Breckenridge returned to his office and kept an all night vigil for telegrams. No alarming news reached him, however.

An early morning dispatch from Admiral Badger quoting Admiral Mayo as reporting that the rebels were storming Tampico caused a stir in the Navy Department. The report stated that two Mexican gunboats, the Bravo and Vera Cruz, were shelling the city.

No mention was made in the dispatch of any part being taken in the fight by the American ships at Tampico. This phase of the situation presented a problem to the American naval officers at Washington. Whether the United States would take a hand in the fighting was a question to be decided by President Wilson, high officials stated.

Secretary Daniels called into conference during the night A. B. Lambert, head of the aero reserve corps of the United States, to formulate plans for the invasion of Mexico by an aeronautical fleet.

Mr. Lambert pledged to the secretary the services of one hundred expert aviators, each of whom owns his own machine. These men may be ordered to the front today. They and their machines will be taken on transports to Vera Cruz and placed at the disposal of Admiral Badger for reconnoitring purposes.

THREE ARMIES TO MOVE.

The War Department is ready to throw three armies in the field and follow as many lines of attack should a general movement against Mexicans as a whole become necessary.

The first plan is the attack initiated with the sailing of the Fifth Brigade for Vera Cruz under General Funston. This force will move on Mexico City from the east coast town.

The second will be the army that moves upon Tampico. It is said that there are more than 8,000 armed Mexicans in that vicinity.

The army to which will fall the most difficult operations of all three will be that which will, in the event of coalition of the Mexican parties, combat the forces of Carranza and Villa in Northern Mexico. El Paso, Texas, is regarded as a likely point for its concentration and Juarez the first and natural point of attack.

At the War Department it is felt that the northern border of Mexico now is the danger point. The officers along the borders have been cautioned to exercise great tact in dealing with the situation.

It is understood that the present policy is to seize one by one the important gulf ports and to blockade the remainder against the receipt of consignments of munitions of war. An effort will be made to garrison the major ports of Mexico.

BIG GUARD FOR RAILWAYS.

It is not believed that a fighting force of more than 20,000 will be needed in any battle to be fought in Mexico, but it will take many times that number of troops to guard the railways and to furnish convoys for supplies on the route and garrisons for basis of supplies. The volunteers will be called for this work probably when the general forward movement begins.

RECRUITING HEAVY AT BOSTON STATIONS

The busiest Saturday in the history of service recruiting in Boston since the days of 1898, was yesterday. Up to the time of closing the offices last night it is estimated that nearly 500 men, most of them still in their teens, applied for enlistment in the army, navy or marine corps.

Owing to the fact that Saturday is "pay day" in most places, enlistments are few and far between. The men have money, a place to go, friends, and start out for a good time, but yesterday the war spirit was evidently injected into the blood of many, causing the examining physicians to be busy all day.

Of the 500 applicants, nearly 100 were accepted or told to report later, and this has established a new standard for enlistments in Boston since the trouble in Mexico developed.

REJECT VETERAN OF '61.

While many of the men are young some of them are too old for the service. At the army station on Tremont row, Albert T. Stewart, seventy-one years old, whose father fought in the Mexican War of 1845-48, and who himself is a veteran of the Civil War begged to be accepted for some sort of service in the army.

"Isn't there some sort of work that I can do," he pleaded with Captain Edward Roth. "I can write and can make a mental examination. Why, all about me are youngsters, eager to serve their country, and here I am an old fellow, who knows what war is, ready to do a little bit."

Captain Roth told him that perhaps if the war became serious the War Department would find something for him to do. This pleased the aged veteran greatly, and he left the office formally saluting the commanding officer.

The [illegible] a careful estimate it was de- [illegible] yesterday that more than 10 per cent. of the applicants for service in the army are runaway boys, youngsters, living in the country, who have not the slightest idea of war, but who have become inspired and patriotic, and who want to wear a uniform and see service.

These young fellows are turned down, and in many instances are advised and informed, with the result that they return to their homes wiser and better boys.

WANT ACTIVE SERVICE.

The army station kept open till 4 o'clock yesterday; the regular closing hour is noon. While no orders have been received to keep open today, the non-commissioned officers will be about the building and will answer all questions and give information to prospective rescruits.

Captain Roth, who has wired the War Department for permission to be relieved and join his command, the Twenty-third Infantry, is still awaiting orders. The army is greatly in need of experienced officers and Captain Roth having seen service in Mexico, it is probable that he will be ordered to the front within a short while.

The marine office on Hanover street looked lonesome yesterday without the smiling countenance of Captain William H. Parker, who has been in charge of this branch of the recruiting service for New England for over a year.

Captain Parker, known to the service as "Fighting Bill Parker," took about two minutes to get into his full equipment when he received the orders to report. While he is not due in New York until today, he reported to the barracks yesterday afternoon. He will be in charge of the marine detachment on the U. S. S. New York, which sails today for Tampico. Captain Parker was, beyond any reasonable doubt, the happiest officer in Boston when he received the magic words ordering him to report.

SHORT OF MEN.

So short is the marine corps of men that Captain Ralph E. Walker of Middletown, N. Y., who has been retired for thirteen years, has been pressed into service and will take charge of the local recruiting station. Captain Walker is a hero of the Cuban and Boxer campaigns and was wounded while in the siege of Pekin. Because of his injuries he was retired.

At the naval recruiting office on Tremont street, Captain Olmstead said that the rush was extraordinarily large. Many youngsters from the mill towns and the factory cities came to Boston yesterday and took the examinations. Many were disappointed when rejected and one youth from Brockton refused to enlist after being accepted because the medical officer failed to pass his companion.

WAR CORRESPONDENT CRITICISES WILSON

By N. C. ADOSSIDES,

War correspondent in Mexico.

The inevitable has happened in Mexico.

The Mexican is aware that the Gringo has crossed the threshold of his country, every American is aware that the threshold has been stained with blood of his own countrymen, that the first shot of war has been fired and that the immediate future holds the enacting and the ending of war.

Under the present serious circumstances, made tangible and intelligible to every interested opinion it is proven that facts have had the priority of theories. These facts are that a neighboring people had been repeatedly despoiled of its rights, its peace and its laws, that the slavery of the individual has led to the enslaving of a people, and that with the consequent depraved sense of justice a conglomeration of crimes were committed by that people among whose haphazard victims were American citizens.

Mr. Wilson's new lesson could not overreach the teachings of such grim facts. His ounce of prevention was not a marketable article; facts cried out for the pound of cure. His motives, however lofty and sincere, must differ from his practices when he faces the facts.

He may contend—as his last gasp—that the spirit of the inevitable intervention is plainly not one of encroachment, that it is not a movement of absorption; he may think to concentrate punishment upon a single man, the guilty and presumtuous provisional President of Mexico, but when he sends an army of American people to defend the rights of the American people, he cannot, out of the goodness of his heart, promise more than the American people are willing to give.

President Wilson's original blunder is not recognizing Huerta as the President of Mexico precipitated the calamity. If, at the beginning of his attitude toward Huerta he was ignorant of the real facts concerning Mexico and the Mexicans he should by this time have learned to avoid further and arrant mistakes, which in an hour of such serious crisis might become irreparable to the interests of North America.

SPANISH DIPLOMAT AT WASHINGTON TO REPRESENT MEXICO

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Senor Don Juan Riano, the Spanish ambassador, announced today that he had taken charge of the diplomatic affairs of the Mexican government in Washington. It had been reported earlier that Ambassador Jusserand of France would probably look out for Mexican interests here.

DESIRE IN CONGRESS FOR MORE AGGRESSIVE ACTION IN MEXICO

WASHINGTON, April 25.—An undercurrent desire in Congress for more aggressive action in Mexico became apparent today, several members of the House and chairmen of important House committees agreeing that the plan to "sit tight" at Vera Cruz, awaiting retaliatory developments, might result in embarrassing international complications.

CAMINETTI WILL TAKE CARE OF ALL MEXICO REFUGEES

WASHINGTON, April 25.—"Uncle Sam will take care of the hundreds of refugees arriving at Galveston and pay their transportation and expenses from that port to their homes," Commissioner-General of Immigration Caminetti announced this afternoon after a conference at the State Department.

"The State Department has ordered me to take care of all destitute and needy refugees," said Caminetti, "and you can bet that I am going to take care of them in the right way. I have wired a long list of instructions to Arthur Hampton, the Commissioner of Immigration at Galveston, and he is busy now taking care of the refugees landed there today from the Cyclops. He also has completed arrangements to take care of the refugees who will arrive tomorrow on the Esperanza.

"I have instructed Mr. Hampton to send these refugees to their homes as rapidly as they arrive in Galveston.

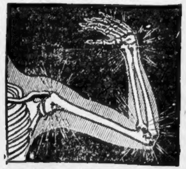
Rheumatism

Remarkable Home Cure Given by One Who Had It—HE Wants Every Sufferer to Benefit.

Send No Money—Just Your Address.

Years of awful suffering and misery have taught this man, Mark H. Jackson of Syracuse, New York, how terrible an enemy to human happiness rheumatism is, and have given him sympathy with all unfortunates who are within its grasp. He wants every rheumatic victim to know how he was cured. Read what he says:



"I Had Sharp Pains Like Lightning Flashes Shooting Through My Joints."

"In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

"I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it, and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today." MARK H. JACKSON,

Anna Held's Advice to Beauty Seekers

The formulas given here by Miss Anna Held cover every important factor in the acquirement of beauty. These formulas produce unusual results. They are extremely economical; you mix them at home, and you then obtain an article of unquestioned superiority, at a mere fraction of the high cost of prepared articles which are never so effective.

Miss Held cannot undertake to answer correspondence by mail but you will likely find below an answer to the very question you have in mind.

ADA T.—Hair under the arms or on any sensitive part of the body can be removed by the non-irritating powdered delol. This is the only article of its kind worthy of recommendation. Of course if it removes hair on the tenderest portions of the body without irritation or spotting, it will do the same as well on any other portion. You may rely upon it not causing a reddened spot or "burn," so often the case after using other depilatories. Electrical treatment for superfluous hair is not effective, and, besides, is expensive.

MRS. TELL—No, getting rid of your wrinkles is not a mere dream. You can make it come true, surely, and in a short time. But you must promise yourself to stop using any other wrinkle cream, or the "massaging machine" or the face steaming you mention. You will see a remarkable change in those crows' feet and lines about the mouth, by applying every day a liberal quantity of a cream made up with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine, two ounces of cerol and a pint of hot water. The cream will be thick, white and satiny. Try it and your dream will materialize.

MISS GEORGIA N.—Mothers who have lost their bust development and wish to regain it should by all means try the well known Vaucaire method. This can be obtained in a few minutes at home, by simply mixing a half cup of sugar and one ounce of galol in half a pint of water. This safe mixture should be taken in doses of two teaspoonfuls after meals and at bedtime. This treatment produces a normal, luxuriant development even in many cases of complete loss.

LETITIA—It is a waste of time and money to use the ordinary "hair tonics" sold. The thing to do if you really want to get results is to make up your own hairgrower at home in a few minutes by mixing half a pint of water with half a pint of alcohol, and adding one ounce of beta-canthol. This makes a pint of hair grower that rarely fails. It would cost you many dollars to buy as much of any prepared hair tonic and you would never get the results. You will soon find your hair growing in a surprising way, thick and lustrous.

HEADY—Nearly half the battle against hair troubles and dandruff is won when the scalp pores are clean and open. Usually people allow the pores to become sealed up by the scurfy film which always forms on the scalp. Scrubbing and the use of soap does not entirely remove it. What you need is a thorough scalp cleanser and remover of dandruff or dead skin. This eggol is par excellence. Pour a teaspoonful of eggol in a half cup of hot water and use as a shampoo. Use nothing else for a head wash.

FAINT HEART—Failure to beautify your complexion with the cosmetics you mention was to be expected. If only the following recipe were to become a national dependence used by all American women, what a wonderful transformation would occur. The results of this formula you can only conjecture until you have actually tried it. Here it is: Mix together two tablespoonfuls of glycerine, one ounce of amarol and one pint of water. This will form a cream. Used very liberally all over the face daily will banish every red spot, freckle and muddiness, and give the skin an absolutely spotless, pinky-white tint that is adorable.—ADVERTISEMENT.

$10,000,000 A Year Wasted On Trusses

How 60 Days' Trial Protects You Against Throwing Money Away

Away With Worthless Makeshifts

Ninety-nine out of every hundred dollars spent for elastic and spring trusses might about as well be thrown away.

Close to ten million dollars a year—in this country alone—is practically wasted on such contraptions.

And all simply because nine sufferers out of ten trust to a mere try-on or hasty examination instead of first making a thorough test.

A Mere Try-on Is a Snare

You can't possibly tell anything about a truss or anything else for rupture merely by trying it on.

A truss or so-called "appliance" may seem all right at first and afterward prove utterly worthless.

The only way in the world you can make sure of exactly what you're getting is by making a thorough sixty-day test without having to risk any money.

The Only Thing Good Enough To Stand a 60-Day Test

There is only one thing of any kind for rupture that you can get on sixty days trial—

Only one thing good enough to stand such a long and thorough test—

That is our guaranteed rupture holder.

We'll make one especially for your case—make it to your measure—and let you try it sixty days—

We'll practically lend it to you that long—without asking you to risk a penny.

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or bothering you in any way, no matter how hard you work or strain—if it doesn't prove every claim we make—then you can send it back and it won't cost you a single cent.

Made on New Principle

This guaranteed rupture holder—the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—is so utterly different from everything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents. It is far more than just a truss. Made on an absolutely new principle.

Unlike everything else, it is self-regulating, self-adjusting—instantly and automatically protects you against every strain so your rupture can't possibly be forced out.

And in addition to this constant holding, it provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

Just how it does that—entirely automatically—is all explained in the free book which the coupon below will bring you.

No Belt—No Leg-Straps—No Springs

Does away entirely with the curse of belts, leg-straps, and springs. People who have tried it say it is as comfortable as their clothing. Is water-proof—will hold in the bath. Also perspiration-proof and easily kept clean.

Will Save You From Operation

This guaranteed rupture holder has so thoroughly proved its merits in nearly 300,000 cases that surgeons in the U. S. Army and Navy and physicians in all parts of the world now recommend it instead of advising operation.

It has completely cured hundreds and hundreds of people whose cases seemed almost hopeless.

The Things We Tell in Our Book

There are so many mistaken ideas about rupture that we have taken the time to sum up in a book all we have learned during forty years of experience.

This remarkable book—cloth-bound, 96 pages, 20 chapters, and 23 photographic illustrations—is full of facts never before put in print.

It deals with rupture in all its forms and stages.

It shows the dangers of operation.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," etc.

It shows why wearing elastic or spring trusses is almost sure to shorten your life.

And it tells about the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss—how simple it is—how it ends constant expense—how you can try it sixty days without having to risk a penny, and how little it costs if you keep it.

Also gives over 5,000 voluntary endorsements from benefited and cured people.

Send for this book today—don't put it off the minute it takes to write for it may free you from trouble for the rest of your life. Simply use the coupon or just say in a letter "Send me your book."

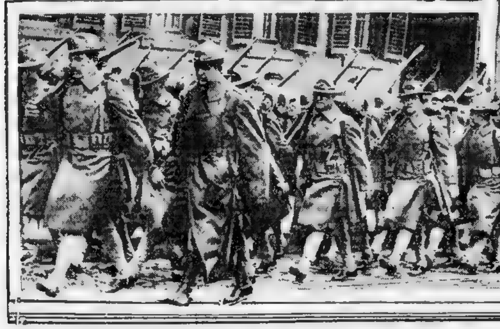
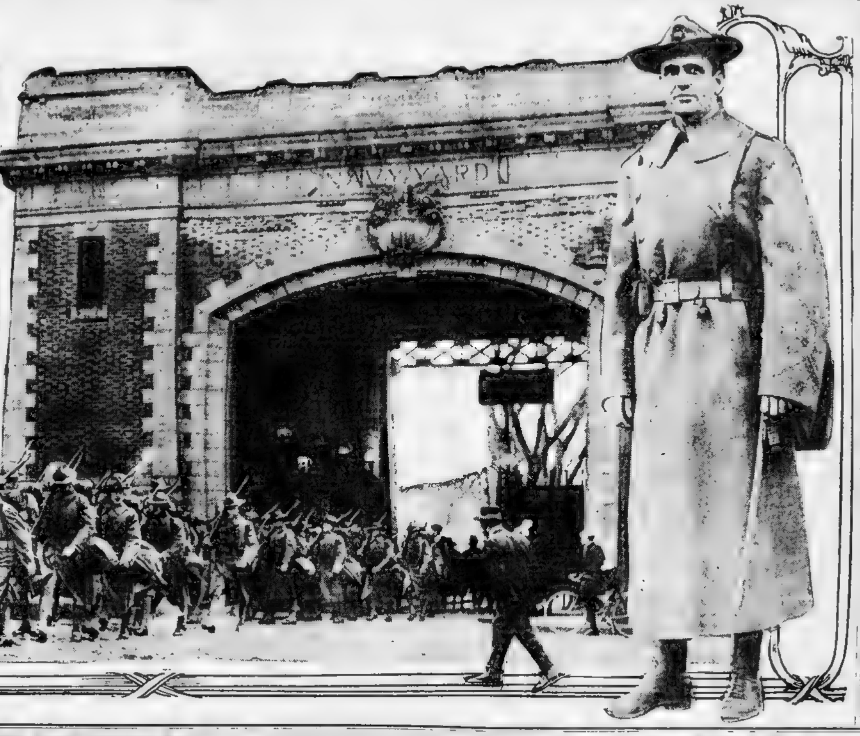
THOUSANDS CHEER BOSTON MARINES AS THEY MARCH AWAY FOR MEXICO

CLOSE CHARLESTOWN NAVAL PRISON TODAY; PRISONERS SAIL FOR PORTSMOUTH ON CHICAGO

Captain William M. "Fighting Billy" Parker and the Eighty-eight marines leaving the Charlestown Navy Yard yesterday afternon for Mexico. They marched to the South Station and entrained for New York, where they will leave on the super-dreadnought New York, probably this afternoon.





Eighty-eight marines snatched eighty-eight kisses from eighty-eight girls they left behind them in the Charlestown Navy Yard late yesterday afternoon, swung into a left-right-left at a "Go and good luck to you, boys" from Colonel Dickinson and within an hour were on a train for New York on their way to Mexico. It was the second detachment of marines to leave Boston for the war zone within [illegible] week.

Along the line of march thousands cheered them as they stepped behind the yard band and Captain William M. ("Fighting Billy") Parker. In the South Station there was a jam of commuters and others to see them off. There was more cheering and waving of handkerchiefs and flags and more kissing of the eighty-eight wives and sweethearts they left behind them till they were gone.

Today the marines, nearly half of whom came from the Portsmouth navy yard to join the Charlestown contingent, will board the dreadnaught New York, which makes its start for Mexican waters this afternoon.

CLIMAX OF BUSY DAY.

The departure of marines came as the climax to a busy day at the navy yard. Next in importance was the towing over to the docks from the old gashouse pier of the famous cruiser Chicago, which has been ordered into commission at once.

The Chicago was manned by a crew of [illegible] bluejackets under Captain Abernathy and today leaves for Portsmouth with 14 naval prisoners. This marks the closing up of the naval prison at Charlestown for the first time in [illegible] years. The closing is due to the fact that scarcely a post guard of marines was left at Charlestown.

On the Chicago goes a detail of 25 marines as guards. They are to return later to Charlestown. The Chicago was a member of the famous "White Squadron," under Admiral Schley. She will return from Portsmouth tonight, and will go into drydock Monday for a thorough overhauling.

Yesterday the dreadnough Rhode Island went into drydock, and during the afternoon the sailors scraped the barnacles from her bottom. This drew the attention of many of the sight-seers in the yard.

On her starboard side one of the sailors, at work scraping the hull, was quite a warbler, and entertained his mates and the crowd with his songs, while he worked away with his scraper. The Rhode Island will not be ready till after the first of the month.

RUSH WORK ON CAROLINA.

Stores were yesterday put aboard the torpedo boat destroyer Duncan, although she has received no sailing orders. The supply ship Leonidas sailed for Colon, Panama, during the afternoon with gasoline for the submarine fleet guarding the entrance to the canal.

On the North Carolina the sailors were at work getting things ready for eleven six-inch guns which will be put aboard her, work starting today.

On the gunboat Castine employes were busy riveting plates and repairing engines while a crew of [illegible] men coaled the boat, finishing about sunset. Today ammunition will be put aboard from the arsenal at Hingham. She will sail by May 1, according to Captain J. F. Carter, her commander.

At the marine barracks and prison the men detailed to leave in the afternoon were busy overhauling their kits, and getting things ready to remove the prisoners early today.

Wives and sweethearts and relatives of the marines were on hand to see them leave. One young woman, dressed in a blue tailored suit, with a big gray coat and blue hat with a willow plume, was on hand early in the afternoon and met one of the marines. Together the couple walked about the [illegible] grounds and near the barracks till Sergeant Dickens [illegible] "Fall in." Then they parted, [illegible] each other in sweet oblivion [illegible].

Yesterday [illegible] deserters and [illegible] were brought to the Navy Yard [illegible] sent [illegible] the George[illegible] Brooklyn Navy Yard, July [illegible] arrested by private [illegible].

A [illegible] who deserted three years ago came to the barracks and gave himself up. He told Colonel Dickinson that he wanted to come back and serve his country. He was put in the naval prison [illegible].

One sailor, who [illegible] to have been in merchant [illegible] for eighteen years, wanted to be recruited at the yard yesterday. He was too old, however, but stated that he would get in the navy [illegible] as he wanted to fight for his country. Receiving Officer Emery wrote a letter to the naval bureau asking them to waive his age, and the sailor is waiting for a reply.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder troubles you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which excites the kidneys; they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Relief For The Kidneys

Improper kidney action causes more sickness, suffering and serious complications than any other organ. The kidneys are two large glands situated near the middle of the back and their function is to purify every ounce of blood in the body, and to do this they must be in a healthy condition. If they become inflamed, congested or otherwise weakened in their action, the poison remains in the blood, and the whole system becomes impregnated. The general symptoms are backache, loss of appetite, headache, torpid liver, constipation, indigestion, nervousness, drowsiness, sleeplessness, skin troubles, malaria, etc. If you have any of these symptoms, you should at once commence taking Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy, which for 37 years has been a standard remedy for the kidneys and liver and today it stands without a rival in healing with certainty the frail tubular structures constituting these important organs. It is a sure antidote to poisons formed in the human body, owing to incapable action of the kidneys and liver, eliminating through the kidneys, bowels and skin all morbid and unhealthy accumulation from the system. It will help you from the very first dose. At all druggists in 50c and $1.00 sizes. Free sample and valuable information if you write, Warner Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 321, Rochester, N. Y.

AMERICAN ENGINEER BACK FROM 20 YEARS' SERVICE SAYS RULE OF IRON IS NECESSARY

Maurice Clark Says Country's Only Development H[illegible]

By [illegible]

[illegible]

The Mexican peon is strongly against forced army service.

Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the recent Charge d'Affaires at Mexico City, is personally popular there and has filled a hard place with great skill.

Mexico's advance for the past twenty-five years is mainly due to Americans and Europeans.

It is the duty of the United States to protect American lives and property in Mexico.

Atrocities are committed by small, unrecognized bands by which the average Mexican soldier should not be judged.

Zapata merely represents resistance to any organized authority.

It might take us three months to conquer Mexico—or three years.

The Constitutionalists and Federals, if left alone, would fight indefinitely.

WAR OVER PEARSON IN SENATE ON TUESDAY

Whatever [illegible]

[illegible]

MAY CHARGE INEFFICIENCY.

It was apparent last night that the Governor [illegible]

[illegible]

Governor Walsh stands by his Adjutant-General.

GOVERNOR WINS IN HOUSE.

In the House the other day the Governor won his point by a vote of [illegible]. The Republicans made a party issue of the contest, [illegible] with the Democratic Adjutant-General against the Democratic Governor.

The Adjutant-General is in theory the chief of staff of the Commander-in-Chief (the Governor) in all matters having to do with the militia. Orders are issued by the Adjutant-General in the Governor's name.

Lately the relations between Walsh and Pearson have become so strained that the Governor's civil assistants have had [illegible] upon their already [illegible] of the routine [illegible] usually handled through the office of the Adjutant-General.

General Pearson, who may appeal to the [illegible] of the Senate, was [illegible] by Governor Foss [illegible] the Legislature [illegible] extending the term of the Adjutant-General and providing that hereafter all original appointments to the office shall be for a term of five years.

Governor Walsh has the support of [illegible] all the commanding officers of the militia. Captains and lieutenants, on the other hand, are said to be quite largely with the Adjutant-General.

WARNS U. S. AGAINST "FRIENDLY" VILLA

By CAPTAIN MARINELLI.

Formerly of the Italian Army, Veteran of the Balkan War and the Madero Revolution in Mexico.

[illegible] go with Carranza he will be a most [illegible] Carranza will go with Huerta. I know them both very well. I have served with them and I know Mexican people who have been fighting with Carranza and Villa against Huerta. They are against Huerta, but they are more against the United States. They want to overthrow Huerta and govern themselves.

But they know that if the United States goes into Mexico they will have to keep order. If Carranza and Villa do not go with Huerta they will be dead men. They know it.

Of course, Villa will make statements now that he is not against the United States. Villa has a big amount of money in a bank at El Paso and he wants to be sure of that. He is not ready yet, either, to announce his plans.

I think both he and Carranza are surprised that the United States has acted against Huerta. They did not expect that anything would be done by the United States.

When the Benton affair happened, nobody paid any attention. Benton was not known. But when it became known that Benton was an Englishman there was serious trouble. Villa and Carranza were afraid there would be complications with England.

You ask me if we were [illegible] there would be complications with the United States. No. There was no fear of the United States. The feeling was [illegible] the United States [illegible] a friend of Villa's. [illegible]

Why Mexicans Call Us Gringoes

GRINGO—Among Mexicans, a foreigner, especially an American or Englishman; chiefly contemptuous in retort to "greaser."

According to a legend that has [illegible] down among [illegible] Uncle Sam's [illegible] the term had its origin in [illegible] old poem and song, "Green grow the rushes, O."

The story has it that away back during the first Mexican war the American forces sang the song [illegible] triumphant campfires [illegible] Mexico at Chapultepec and in the streets of Mexico City.

The first two words of the refrain became corrupted among the Mexicans into "gringo"—pronounced in Mexico "green go." In order [illegible] the terms was applied to the Americans.

That Mexico will unite to fight the United States and that the sooner Washington realizes this fact [illegible] the United States [illegible] to deal with the problem that confronts it.

Statistics estimating the fighting strength of the Mexicans are [illegible] misleading. Individually the men are fearless but unseasoned fighters, and may be counted upon to make up in dare-deviltry and local knowledge what they lack in organization and tactical training.

RUN GUNS INTO ULSTER COUNTY BY DARING COUP

Sensational Exploit Gives Loyalists 700,000 Rifles and 5,000,000 Cartridges.

HUNDREDS ENGAGED IN PLOT

LONDON, April 25.—While Premier Asquith and his government are being held up to ridicule by the Unionists, who allege that they endeavored to force Ulster to accept Home Rule by planning a military [illegible] of the province at Ulster, [illegible] day defied every law in the constitution by an amazing gun-running exploit.

No more amazing or sensational coup was ever attempted in the history of [illegible] in fact the exploit eclipses the strangest romance ever conceived by the most fertile novelists.

As a result of this dramatic and deeply [illegible] action the Ulster defense [illegible] today richer by 70[illegible] rifles [illegible] 000 rounds of ammunition [illegible] broad outline of the [illegible] elaborate scheme.

The [illegible] steamer Fanny which [illegible] left Hamburg had [illegible] transferred to her, [illegible] cargo of arms [illegible] a German [illegible] off the Danish [illegible] and [illegible]

Last [illegible] the Fanny, after narrowly escaping capture by British warships, arrived at a rendezvous off the [illegible] Down coast, where she unloaded her cargo of arms and ammunition to two smaller steamers, one of which then proceeded to Larne and the other to Bangor and Donaghadee.

600 AUTOS USED.

At these points numbers of Ulster volunteers were awaiting to act as stevedores. When the vessels arrived they hurriedly unloaded hundreds of cases working at breakneck speed. More than 600 automobiles and motor lorries were waiting at various points, and they were soon loaded and despatched at short intervals to secret destinations where the arms were immediately hidden.

For this staggering tour de force every Ulsterman member of the Ulster Volunteers mobilized around Bangor, Larne, Donaghadee and Belfast. Lines of pickets were posted and only those accredited loyalists who had the password and countersign were allowed to arrive or depart.

All telegraphic or telephonic communication was cut off from the four towns, and only the commanders of the volunteers could signal each other by means of lighted lanterns.

ALL TRACES COVERED.

The police and customs officials in each place were powerless. The entire province was in the hands of the loyalists all of last night. By morning all traces of the raid had disappeared [illegible] wires were restored [illegible] automobiles [illegible] attributed [illegible]

At [illegible] the authorities were [illegible] Hundreds of Ulster volunteers were at the docks awaiting its arrival with a large number of [illegible] as a blind. After the police [illegible] kept an all-night vigil the vessel [illegible] to contain [illegible] than coal. [illegible] then [illegible] and customs men realized [illegible] something else was [illegible] it was too late.

Now the police and customs authorities have been officially instructed to locate the destination of the different consignments but they [illegible] to find a needle in [illegible]

[illegible] chapter in the [illegible] resistance had the [illegible] Premier Asquith [illegible] to town post haste from his country seat. The Premier had a long conference with Irish Secretary Birrell and various generals.

Mrs. Googins Tells Story of a Loveless Home

Winthrop Woman Breaks Silence in Divorce Case

MISS CORMERAIS, TANGO TEACHER, NAMED

Ready to Go into Court to Name "Other Woman," Tango Teacher, in Her Suit.

Mrs. [illegible] T. Googins, whose divorce suit has whirled up a storm of gossip in Winthrop, will this week appear in court to ask separate maintenance, money for lawyer's fees, and expenses.

Mr. Googins is a prominent member of the Cottage Park Yacht Club at Winthrop. Mr. and Mrs. Googins live at No. 43 Lowell road, Winthrop Centre.

Mrs. Googins' suit has likewise stirred Brookline; for the "other woman" whom she accuses is Miss Elizabeth Cormerais of No. 129 Harvard street, Brookline, and Miss Cormerais is a highly successful and beautiful teacher of the tango, with patrons among the exclusive folk of Brookline, Newton, Wellesley and Auburndale, not to mention Winthrop.

Mrs. Googins has told the AMERICAN her story of her married life. This is the first time she has discussed the case, and her story is a chronicle of human interest. She has determined to sue Miss Cormerais and Miss Cormerais' mother for the loss of her husband's [illegible] and will ask $10,000 damages [illegible] of them.

Here is Mrs. Googins' story just as she told it:

"Nobody knows the anguish I have endured for the past two years [illegible] sit at home night after night [illegible] the while that my [illegible] was in the company of another woman.

"Mr. Googins' affection towards me began to cool about two years ago. Soon after I noticed [illegible] my husband's affection for [illegible]

"This went on until last February when I tried to have him give up whoever he was paying attention to but he put me off and told me that I was no longer the woman he loved and advised me to get a divorce [illegible] Then I cried for nearly [illegible] months. He came home [illegible] seldom. Late in February he went on a four weeks' business trip. When he returned he appeared to ignore me more than ever.

"Then detectives were put on his trail and I learned that he had been seen with Miss Cormerais. I was determined to find out the truth about him and so, one Sunday evening, April 5, I watched the Cormerais home in Brookline with the detectives and my lawyer.

"About 11:30 at night the lights suddenly went on in the upper story of the house. We hurried [illegible] street and I arrived at the front door just as it was opened by Miss Cormerais. My husband was preparing to leave the house.

"I grabbed him by the arm and said to Miss Cormerais: 'You've had my husband for so long now, that you might as well keep him.' Mr. Googins stepped in front of me and said to Miss Cormerais, 'Go in, dear, and shut the door.' When he called that other woman 'dear' I thought that my heart would break. Then Mr. Googins got away from me and ran for an electric car.

"We hurried and boarded the same car, which was bound for Brookline Village. There Mr. Googins got away and caught a subway car ahead of us. So we hired a taxicab and set out for Winthrop as fast as we could go.

"We arrived home first, and we went inside the house and locked the door. Soon Mr. Googins came up the walk and tried to get in, but couldn't. Finally he broke a window on the piazza and crawled in where we were sitting. When he found us there he ordered everybody but me out of the house and was in an ugly mood. I wouldn't stay there with him alone, so I summoned the police. Three officers arrived, and questioned us all closely as to what had happened."

FITZGERALD FOR PORT DIRECTOR?

"Tush," Says Former Mayor Leaving Governor After First Official Call.

Former Mayor Fitzgerald paid his first visit last night to the offices of Governor Walsh at the State House.

Mr. Fitzgerald reached the capitol at 6 o'clock, long after the building was closed for the day.

Brigadier-General William B. Emery, quartermaster of the militia, Brigadier-General Sweetser and Colonel Logan of the Ninth had been waiting for some time [illegible] appointment.

'Fitz' greeted the army men [illegible] and beat them to the private office. He was with the Governor three quarters of an hour.

"Nothing important," the ex-mayor said to the reporters. "We got [illegible] industrial development of Boston and hardly noticed how the time was passing."

The name of Mr. Fitzgerald has been used from time to time in connection with the Directors of the Port of Boston. Mr. Fitzgerald was reminded of this.

"Tush," he said.

$120,000 TO SPEND, ALL IN ONE YEAR

How Would You Get Rid of Wealth, Living as a Man of Fashion.

WHAT IS YOUR ANSWER?

Suppose after arriving at the age of fifty years you were left a [illegible] with these conditions:

You must spend that amount of money in a year.

You must spend it in living, the life of a young man of wealth and fashion about town.

You must spend it in imitating, even in detail, his manner of life.

You must not marry within this limit of time.

What would you do?

What course would you pursue to [illegible] round of pleasure after the wealthy man of the town?

COULD YOU DO IT?

How would you go about changing your fixed [illegible] of fifty years?

Where would you first invest the money?

Would you buy 100 suits of clothes [illegible] the best tailor?

What and how much would be your daily expenses?

Would you have [illegible]

How [illegible] pairs of shoes would you have?

How many automobiles?

Where would you live your bachelor life and how [illegible] it?

In all your transactions pleasure is [illegible] The terms of the will [illegible] that you have never [illegible] before in your life [illegible] is given you for that purpose for one year.

Send your replies to one or more of these questions to the Editor of [illegible] Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

Make your replies short and to the point. With our size of the paper only [illegible] Long drawn out answers will not be considered.

ITS McCARTHY'S IDEA.

A novel recently published by John Lane Company, New York, is called "Fool of April" by Justin Huntly McCarthy.

John Vimpany of this book, an unmarried bank clerk, is told on his fiftieth birthday that by the terms of a will of a man whom he knew [illegible] who loved his mother that he is to spend the sum of $120,000 in living the life of a man of fashion in London for one year.

The terms of the will were accepted. Vimpany hired a young lord to coach him. His experiences show that after a man gets to be fifty his methods of living are hard to change, and yet this struggle is depicted in the book with rare skill.

The novel brings out these important questions:

Is it possible for a man of fifty to completely change his manner of living in the face of such a money proposition as this?

How many men at that time of life would deteriorate under such a will in following it out?

How few might be able to follow it out to the letter of the terms of this will?

This opens out one of the most interesting questions affecting the man of fifty.

The novel proves that it can be done.

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, R. I.

A Minister's Wife Writes:

CLOQUET, MINN.—"I have suffered very much with irregularities, pain and inflammation, but your wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has made me well and I can recommend the same to all that are troubled with these complaints."—Mrs. JENNIE AKERMAN, c/o Rev. K. AKERMAN, Cloquet, Minnesota.

From Mrs. J. D. Murdoch, Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. MURDOCH, 25 Gordon St., South Quincy, Mass.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, which contains no narcotic or harmful drugs; it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Tells Positive Cure For all Foot Troubles

Science has proven that nearly all foot troubles originate from a common cause, that of injured tissues. The following information will be welcomed by thousands of victims of daily foot torture. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment, well known to foot doctors, will do the work. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet for a full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain disappears instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions, aching feet and sweaty smelly feet get immediate relief. Use this treatment a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works thru the pores and removes the cause. Don't waste time. Get it [illegible] Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent box is said to be enough to cure the worst feet. Don't be persuaded to take something else instead. Calocide is prepared only at laboratories of Medical Formula Co., of Dayton, Ohio, and Chicago, Ill.

HALE'S ACCUSER TURNED BACK AT THE ELEVATOR

MacDonald Didn't Appear to Press "Czar" Charges Against Progressive Leader.

DISAPPOINTMENT TO JURY

Matt Hale's trial by a jury of his Progressive peers yesterday was like the celebrated "Snakes in Ireland," which are not.

[illegible] MacDonald of Holbrook [illegible] for whose [illegible] Mr MacDonald had expressed doubt from the start whether he would get the kind of show he wanted in this jury trial. But he was billed to be present and press home his accusations. He had accused Mr Hale of being too Czar like, as State Chairman of the Progressive Party.

Mr MacDonald, as the jury learned later, came as far as the elevator. According to the scout the jury sent out, he asked the elevator man dubiously if anybody was upstairs—meaning in Kingsley Hall where the trial was to be staged. Then he turned right around and walked right out.

There was also another that [illegible] the legal side of the proceedings. A committee of five, appointed to formulate Mr MacDonald's charges into detailed style like a regular bill of specifications, failed to do any filing.

JURY IS RETIRED.

Lacking charges and complainant, the jury gave up the trial that was a bad job and retired with itself to consider a statement which it brought issue later.

The Hale group was jubilant. It gave out what it said was the real explanation back of the charges preferred by Mr MacDonald. That explanation runs this way:

Bancroft Abbott wanted Mr MacDonald named to do certain Progressive Party work in Norfolk County. Ex-Councillor Frank [illegible] of Peston said "No. Leonard Martin is to that all right." Whereupon Mr MacDonald failed of the appointment.

Be that as it may, Mr MacDonald did come out at a meeting of the Holbrook Progressive Town Committee one night and charge State Chairman Hale thus:

That he was too autocratic.

That he exceeded the authority of his office.

That he used his office to boom the Boston Journal, of which he was then publisher.

ALL WERE PROGRESSIVES.

The matter went up to the State Committee. A fortnight ago there was a stormy session. Then a trial by jury was suggested. A jury of twelve Progressives, including one woman, Miss Edna Spencer of Cambridge—was selected. The selection of jurymen was enlivened by one challenge from Hale and two-score from MacDonald.

Daniel Callahan, former United States secret service man and an active Progressive, was to be judge.

The trial was set for 2 o'clock yesterday. The court, jury, defendant and about a dozen spectators appeared.

But Mr MacDonald turned back at the elevator.

Plan Big Union of Railroad Men Today

Leaders Say Mellen Will Accept Leadership of Federation.

Tentative plans for the formation of a huge federation of railroad employes with Charles S. Mellen, ex-president of the New Haven as its executive head, will come up for final action at a joint conference of representatives from the [illegible] railroad unions at the Quincy House this afternoon.

P. H. Sidney of Wakefield, chairman of the committee, that has called this contemplated organization conference, is confident that Mr Mellen will be elected to and accept the position named.

Mr Mellen, on the other hand, refers to the plan to make him a labor leader as "A pleasant dream." In a letter addressed to the committee in question he adds: "Nevertheless, it's a pleasant dream, and I enjoy it to the utmost. It has given me a pleasant half hour anyway, and I thank you for it most sincerely."

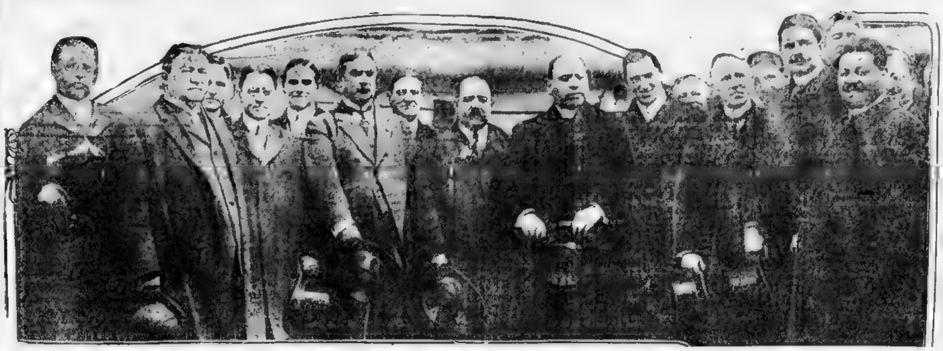
Great Crowd Gives Cardinal O'Connell Bon Voyage as Ship Sails

Prelate to Return Early if Presence Would Help in Mexican Crisis

FAREWELL RECEPTION TO CARDINAL ON THE DECK OF THE STEAMSHIP CANOPIC.



In the group above, reading from the right, are Pio de Luca, Dr. F. X. Mahoney, William J. Dooley, Joseph F. O'Connell, Henry V. Cunningham, John J. Kirwin, Mayor Curley, Cardinal O'Connell, Daniel L. Prendergast, Joseph H. O'Neil, Dr. J. B. Slattery, Timothy J. Falvey, John Bruen and Frank McGrath.

By C. O'CONNELL GALVIN.

Amid the cheers of a great concourse of his friends, who assembled from all sections of Greater Boston, to bid him farewell, Cardinal O'Connell stood at the rail of the Canopic waving an American flag as the big White Star liner backed away from her Charlestown dock, yesterday, to begin her long voyage to Naples, via the [illegible] Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

The Cardinal is on his way to Rome for his Ad Limina visit to Pope Pius X, to make report of the progress of affairs in his diocese.

All of the cardinals and bishops in the United States will go to Rome during the present year to make their Ad Limina Apostolic (to the threshold of the Apostles) visit. The purpose of this visit is for each bishop to report in person on the condition of his diocese and the progress that is being made. The three American cardinals, Farley, Gibbons and O'Connell, being archbishops, must also make the visit.

Heretofore it has been the custom for each cardinal and bishop to make the Ad Limina Apostolic visit once every ten years, each selecting the time at which the trip should be made. Pope Pius has decided, however, that better results can be accomplished by securing all of this information at once and he therefore directed that all the visits be made this year.

SCENE OF ENTHUSIASM.

There was a great scene of enthusiasm at the Hoosac docks when the Cardinal and his party reached the Canopic. Awaiting him was a large assembly of clerical and lay friends, representing various church organizations, all of whom gave the prelate an affectionate and respectful greeting as he passed up the gangway.

A few minutes after the cardinal reached the ship he was obliged to go from his stateroom to the main saloon deck and there hold an impromptu farewell reception.

As women and little ones passed him in the line, he seemed to have a word of special greeting for each, and for some of the children especially a gentle love tap on the cheek as the boy or girl bowed to kiss the episcopal ring.

The honored reception over, the Cardinal and many gentlemen ascended to the hurricane or boat deck, where the distinguished traveler spoke informally to the newspaper men, while a brigade of camera operators, led by the Hon. Dick Sears, kept up a fusillade of click, click, and snapping of cameras and moving picture machines.

WRITES TO PRESIDENT.

Of his going away, the Cardinal said to the reporters that he had sent this morning letters to the President and to Governor Walsh in which he expressed his intention to return at once to Boston, should duty in the present national crisis call for any services and for his presence here.

The letters of the Cardinal to the President and the Governor are as follows:

To Mr. Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States:

Mr. President—Today I am sailing for Rome by arrangements made long before the present national crisis could be foreseen.

I am ready at a moment's notice to return, should there be any need and I am always at the service of my beloved country and its honored head.

Your humble servant,
W. CARDINAL O'CONNELL.
April 25, 1914.

To the Honorable David I. Walsh, Governor of Massachusetts:

Your Excellency—I am sailing today for Rome by arrangements made long before the crisis in which our blessed country now stands could be foreseen.

I need not say that we are always at our dear country's service in whatever need she may have. And I am ready at a moment's notice either to cancel my engagements or return at once.

Your humble servant,
W. CARDINAL O'CONNELL.
April 25, 1914.

Continuing his informal talk, Cardinal O'Connell said:

YEAR OF GREAT EVENTS.

The year just closed was filled with some of the most important events of my episcopate.

The great Church Congress, which displayed so wonderfully the unity and growth of the church in America, the marvelous response made to my appeal for funds for the St. Elizabeth Hospital, the splendid retreats of the men of the Holy Name Society at the Cathedral and, most impressive of all, the scene I witnessed at the Church of the Immaculate Conception a few Sundays ago, when 4,000 men approached the altar rail for Holy Communion, all combined to make a record of church activity about which it will be my happiness to tell the Pope.

I am taking over a photograph of that grand Sunday morning scene at the Immaculate Conception Church to show to the Holy Father. I know it will delight him to see it.

The Cardinal is accompanied on his journey by Monsignor Splaine, rector of the Cathedral, and by Rev. Father Coffinger, pastor of St. Augustine parish, South Boston. The party will sail for home from Hamburg on August 8 on board the Cleveland sailing to Boston.

As the big ship backed out into the stream with the waiting tugs puffing and pushing against the bow to swing her head toward the channel, a great demonstration of farewell burst from the crowd which lined the pier. Bowing his acknowledgments the Cardinal stood hatless at the rail below the captain's bridge waving an American flag which he held aloft in his right hand.

HISTORY OF FLAG.

The flag has an interesting story which was told by the Cardinal before sailing time to his friends gathered on the boat deck.

"It was given to me," he said, "by Father O'Kelly of Lawrence. When Pius X was elected Pope eleven years ago, a party of pilgrims from America who were in Rome had this flag with them.

"As Pope Pius came to the balcony at St. Peter's to give his first blessing to the vast throng that was kneeling on the plaza of St. Peter, the first flag to meet his gaze was the American flag which was being waved in greeting to him by the visitors from America. I am taking it back to the Holy Father now and and I shall remind him of the incident associated with it."

Gathered at the dock to wish "Bon Voyage" to Boston's Cardinal-Archbishop were large delegations of prominent citizens, members of the Cathedral Guild and of the Catholic Union of Boston, Rev. [illegible] Monsignor Supple of [illegible], Monsignor Patterson of South Boston, Monsignor Teeling of Lynn, Monsignor Ronan of Dorchester, Monsignor Moriarty of Jamaica Plain, Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, Rev. Lawrence W. Slattery, and many of the clergy of the diocese and a large number of ladies and children, to all of whom the Cardinal gave his blessing.

Included among the body of laymen were Mayor Curley, ex-Governor Curtis Guild, ex-Mayor Fitzgerald, Joseph H. O'Neil, James E. Cotter, William J. Dooley, Dr. F. X. Mahoney, Peter Porter, Daniel L. Prendergast, Christopher I. Fitzgerald, Dr. W. A. Dunn, Dr. J. B. Slattery and members of the staff of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Edward J. O'Connell, Pio de Luca, Frank A. Campbell, John Bruen, State Treasurer Mansfield, Timothy J. Falvey, Henry V. Cunningham, John J. Kirwin, and many others prominent in the social and business circles of the city.

MANY BOSTONIANS ABOARD.

Also sailing on the Canopic yesterday were a number of well known Bostonians. In the list of cabin passengers were Mr. [illegible] S. Johnson, president of the [illegible] Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Johnson. Mr. Johnson is a brother-in-law of former Gov. Guild, who was present to see them off. Surveyor of the Port Joseph A. Maynard and Mrs. Maynard. Mr. Maynard is [illegible] vacation with study [illegible] spend some time [illegible] the workings of the various [illegible] in custom houses of [illegible]. Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] sister of [illegible] of New York, J. [illegible] elevated [illegible] Vice-President [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. T. J. [illegible].

In all there were [illegible] cabin passengers and 445 steerage. On board was the largest number of deportations ever sent from this port, being fifty-seven from Ellis Island and twenty-eight from Boston.

CARDINAL O'CONNELL OFFERS SERVICES TO NATION AND STATE

One of Cardinal O'Connell's last acts before sailing for Naples yesterday was the writing of the following letters to President Wilson and Governor Walsh.

To Mr. Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States

Mr. President—Today I am sailing for Rome by arrangements made long before the present national crisis could be forseen.

I am ready at a moment's notice to return, should there be any need, and I am always at the service of my beloved country and its honored head.

Your humble servant,

Rival Wins, Cancel Wedding

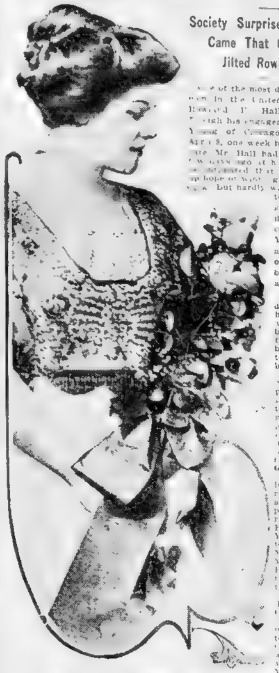
Worcester Romance Broken



Miss Young, who jilted Worcester youth for rival

Society Surprised When News Came That Chicago Girl Jilted Rowland Hall.

One of the most disappointed young men in the United States today is Rowland F. Hall of Worcester, though his engagement to Miss Alice Young of Chicago was broken on April 8, one week before the wedding date. Mr. Hall had not despaired. A few days ago at his Worcester home he intimated that he had not given up hope of winning Miss Young's love [illegible]. But hardly was this gallant intention of Mr. Hall known than news flashed from Chicago that Miss Young is engaged again—and to another man, Hurlburt Baumgardner, a former suitor.

This news has dashed Mr. Hall's hopes completely and there seems to be no prospect now that he will ever bring Miss Young to Worcester as his bride.

If Mr. Hall is one of the most disappointed men in the land, by the same token Mr. Baumgardner is the happiest, because he has finally triumphed where once he was supposed to have been defeated.

GREAT SURPRISE.

Worcester society is trying today to recover its breath after the dual surprise in the broken romance of Mr. Hall and Miss Young. Miss Young is the daughter of Major General and Mrs. Clinton Young. Her father is one of the leading men in the Illinois National Guard. The family is prominent in Chicago society.

Miss Young has met many Worcester people. Some months ago she was entertained by Mr. Hall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall, at their home, No. 6 Oberlin street, Worcester. Receptions, dinners and so on were given in her honor.

Roland F. Hall, graduate of Tech, is a mechanical engineer, member of the firm of [illegible] & Hall, manufacturers of cloth folders.

The marriage of Mr. Hall and Miss Young was set for Wednesday, April [illegible], in St. Paul's [illegible] Church in Beverly Hills, a residential suburb of Chicago. Twelve hundred invitations had been issued. Several Worcester people were invited. Costly wedding gifts had been forwarded to the home of the bride's parents.

Early in the month Mr. Hall [illegible] went to Chicago and was [illegible] at General Young's home preparatory to the nuptials. Then, with startling abruptness, came the news of the sundered betrothal.

This was on Saturday, April 11. That night Mr. Hall arrived back in Worcester alone. Dispatches from Chicago also brought the news. Last Mr. Hall gave no explanation. But [illegible] the bride-elect was quoted as having said [illegible] the two families [illegible] not sure that I love Rowland well enough to marry him. It is better to wait a while now than to make a mistake that cannot be rectified later."

[illegible] Mr. Baumgardner [illegible] so suddenly to the fore remains to be disclosed, but it is presumed that hearing of the broken engagement of Mr. Hall and the girl [illegible] himself, the [illegible] Mr. Baumgardner [illegible] quest of [illegible] beloved with rapid success.

LEPER BOY IS SOON TO GET RADIO OUTFIT

State Board of Charity to Act on Petition for Archie Thomas.

$390.00 IN FUND TO DATE

The State Board of Charity will act upon the petition of the committee of expert radio engineers selected by the AMERICAN to erect a complete wireless outfit for Archie Thomas, the leper boy at Penikese Island.

The committee consists of Dr Greenleaf Whittier Pickard of the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Company, No. 176 State street, chairman, Melville Eastman of the Clapp-Eastman Company of Cambridge, Henry C. Gawler, United States radio inspector in charge of the enforcement of the wireless regulations in New England, Thomas M. Stevens, manager of the Eastern division of the Marconi Company of America, and Mrs. Edgar M. Young of Winchester, president of the Junior Charity Club of Boston and vicinity.

If the action of the State Board of Charity is favorable, as it no doubt will be, Mr. Gawler will go at once to Penikese with a few volunteer mechanics and erect the most up to date and complete amateur outfit in New England.

Mr. Gawler has been in correspondence with Archie recently and knows what he needs. Archie's letters show a knowledge of wireless apparatus that is astonishing. His discussion of the technicalities is bewildering to a layman, but the committee understand [illegible] "quenched gaps," [illegible] using [illegible] cycle "rotary" gaps for experiments [illegible] their technical [illegible] the letters.

The final paragraph, however, of his last letter can be understood by all. He says:

"I wish to thank you and all who have helped for your interest in helping [illegible] It is very [illegible] grateful to all [illegible] pleasure [illegible] amateurs with [illegible]"

Why Studebaker FOUR Sales Are Enormous:

Electrically Lighted

Electrically Started

Bluntly—because no car now on the market reveals equal value.

Because, for instance, no other car in the world at this price has a full floating rear axle equipped even to the hubs with Timken bearings.

Because this axle could not be made better, no matter how much we were willing to spend, or you were willing to pay.

The same thing is true of Studebaker Wagner starting and lighting—the cars of highest cost may show its equal—but they cannot show its superior.

The same thing is true of the proportion of parts actually manufactured in the parent plant—the costliest cars may make as good a showing, but none of them can show more.

The same thing is true of the accuracy of the processes which enter into the manufacturing—they may be equalled in the costliest cars, but they are not surpassed.

We repeat, with added emphasis—the sales of this $1050 FOUR are enormous because no car now on the market reveals equal value.

Jackie on Battleship Nebraska Has Barely Time to Snatch Goodby Kiss.

No girl in Greater Boston awaits with more breathless interest the first news from the battleship Nebraska, than does Mrs Paul L. Edwards of No. 499 Main street, Medford, bride of a week, whose husband is a gunner's mate on the Mexican-bound warship.

Mrs Edwards is twenty-[illegible] years old and an orphan. She makes her home with her aunt, Mrs Loretta W[illegible]. She was formerly Miss Mary [illegible] Murray. Last August she met Edwards at the wedding of one of her girl chums. Edwards is the son of Thomas J. Edwards, a well-to-do contractor of Vincennes, Ind.

The young people fell in love and were married on Saturday, April 18, before it was known that the Nebraska was to sail so soon. Edwards's father sent them $1[illegible] as a wedding present.

When Edwards found that the Nebraska was to sail last Thursday he was divided between sorrow at leaving his bride and enthusiasm for war service. The bride arranged to come to the Navy Yard to see the Nebraska start. She was detained and did not arrive on the dock until the battleship was about ready to go. All the Nebraska's men had been ordered aboard. Edwards, from the rail, gazed anxiously for his bride. Suddenly he spied her, looking for him.

Running up to the officer of the deck Edwards gasped:

"Lieutenant, for God's sake, let me go on the pier just a minute. I want to kiss my bride goodby and there she is. She's just arrived."

"Hurry up," laughed the Lieutenant, and Edwards lost no time. He has just time for a hug and a kiss [illegible] run back up the gangway, leaving his bride breathless, but glad she didn't miss the farewell.

Shattuck, who claims to have successfully treated [illegible] sufferers [illegible] was fined $1[illegible], the court maintaining that he regarded himself as a physician. Shattuck appealed.

Two-Sixty Standard Model, 7 H P Twin equipped with Electric Head Light, Electric Tail Light, Electric Signal, Two Sets Storage Batteries and Corbin-Brown Rear-Drive Speedometer. Price $260.00 F. O. B. Factory. See Catalog for detailed description.

No Matter At What Point You Start In to Consider a Motorcycle Purchase

—if you investigate—if you study values carefully—you are almost sure to base your final judgment on an Indian machine.

The Two-Sixty Model with full electric equipment and Corbin-Brown Speedometer at $260.00, is an accomplishment that may be duplicated some time in the future—but which for the present time must go on record as the greatest motorcycle value in the world.

For thirteen years the Indian organization has been keenly alert to test and develop every possible device which made for the improvement of the motorcycle.

From its farsightedness and sound judgment has evolved a series of advanced achievements in the perfection of the motorcycle which are embodied in

Indian MOTOCYCLES FOR 1914

The twin cylinder motor is the product of Indian engineering skill. It was used successfully for the first time on Indian models. The fact that the Twin motor is today practically standard on all makes of motorcycles is sufficient testimony to its worth.

As the originators and largest manufacturers of this type of motor the Indian engineering staff best understands its [illegible] mechanical problems and can [illegible] a motor that is markedly in [illegible] for power output in proportion to weight, rapidity of acceleration and [illegible] for hard work.

[illegible] footboards are another of the [illegible] originations. Their comfort and convenience brought them instant popularity. They are now considered an indispensable part of motorcycle equipment.

The greatest sensation in motorcycle development last year was the Indian Cradle Spring Frame. This remarkable feature was developed exclusively by the Indian. It has never been successfully imitated and stands today the greatest device for insuring the rider absolute comfort and total absence of vibration on even the roughest roads.

In addition to the retained features and including electric equipment, there are 38 Betterments in 1914 Indian models, improvements which make the Indian more than ever the pre-eminent motorcycle.

Get the new illustrated Indian catalog. It pictures and describes in detail the "38 Betterments" in 1914 models. It will help you to a fuller appreciation of the improvements and equipment to which you are entitled when buying a 1914 motorcycle.

D. A. R. LEADERS FROM ALL OVER THE NATION COME OUT STRONG FOR FREE CANAL TOLLS

Test Poll Taken by the American Shows That 90 Per Cent Are on Record as Vigorously Opposed to Surrender of Our Rights to Great Britain as Urged by Wilson

WASHINGTON, April 25.—True to the patriotic spirit of the men and women of '76, whose services to the country they commemorate, many of the Daughters of the American Revolution assembled in their annual congress in Washington put themselves on record as vigorously opposed to the repeal of the tolls exemption for coastwise American vessels through the Panama Canal.

A test poll of the delegates shows more than 90 per cent. registered an emphatic protest against the proposed repeal. These D. A. R. members represent the highest type of womanhood in America.

All are a power for good in their communities and stand foremost in civic, patriotic and uplift movements. Their opinions may be taken as a fair sample of what the intelligent, cultured and wide-awake American women of today think of this vital question

Here are some opinions by well-known women

Mrs. Charles H. Masury, honorary State regent of Massachusetts D. A. R., and president-general of the newly organized Daughters of the Union—"I am heartily in favor of a free canal for our coastwise shipping. It will be a great boon to New England, where the ancient glory of our merchant marine is a thing of the past. We hoped when the coastwise vessels were exempted that it would mean a revival of this industry. I hope that the Senate will follow the noble example of Champ Clark and other House leaders to do right in this matter."

Mrs. Rhet Goode, vice-president-general, of Alabama—Our own ships should certainly go through the Panama Canal free of tolls. It is ridiculous to hold any other opinion. The women of Alabama feel very strongly in this matter and their sentiment there and elsewhere in the South is certainly for free tolls."

Mrs. Henry McCleary, State regent of Washington State—"Our treaty with Great Britain is entirely too vague on the tolls question. The [illegible] lawyers in the country are uncertain how to interpret it, honestly uncertain. Surely if we built the canal we are entitled to some advantage over the rest of the world in the use of it."

Mrs. John Leary, of Washington State, and newly elected vice-president general—[illegible] the proposed repeal of the [illegible] tolls for American [illegible] ships would work great [illegible] on the people of this State and the great Northwest. [illegible] surrender to Great Britain [illegible] not only foolish, but [illegible]

MRS. CHARLES B. BRYAN, of Tennessee, State Regent of Tennessee—[illegible] free tolls [illegible] American dollars [illegible] American [illegible]

MRS. C. B. HOWARD, of Palestine, Texas, State president of the Daughters of the Confederacy and regent of the William Fenley Chapter, D. A. R.—"The majority of the South is for free tools. If free tolls are defeated it will greatly cripple our industries, just recovering from the terrific blows struck them in the Civil War times and afterward. Texas has stood loyally by President Wilson, but it has come to the parting of the ways on the question of free tolls.

MRS. D. M. WALLIS, the new state regent of Louisiana—I have been spreading the gospel of American rights among members of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Our society is forbidden to take action on such matters officially, but I know hundreds of the members feel as I do that we should not surrender to England, or to any other country, any of our rights in our canal. A few doses of the spirit of '76 would be very beneficial just now.

MRS. JAMES G. DUNNING, Honorary State regent of Massachusetts—"The whole question of repealing the canal tolls exemption act is a ridiculous farce. It cost us money enough to build it, and we have a perfect right to do as we please about it."

MRS. ALVIN LANE, the newly elected vice-president general from Texas—"No one has a right to dictate to us the terms on which we shall run our own canal. It is ours, and rather than see it dominated by any foreign nation I should wish it had never been built."

"WE HAVE RIGHT OF WAY."

MRS. HERBERT TURRELL, regent and founder of the Orange Mountain Chapter, Orange, N. J.—"America has the right of way through that canal. We built it. It is ours to do with as we please. Furthermore, I believe free tolls will stimulate the American merchant marine.

MRS. KATHERINE GERALD, Regent of the Lawrence Washington Chapter, District of Columbia—"My chapter is behind Speaker Clark solidly in his splendid American stand. He carries out the [illegible] of our chapter. 'The spirit of '76.' We do not believe in [illegible] to the British."

MRS. EUGENIA WASHINGTON MONCURE BROWN, Descendant of Samuel Washington, Brother of George—We ought to have free tolls for American coastwise ships. Our ancestors fought against unjust taxation. We ought to have a free and open canal for American ships."

MRS. G. R. HOWELL, State Regent of Iowa—"There is no advantage in the canal, and we might just as well not have it if we are going to charge our ships tolls. I certainly cannot see the reason for it. There is absolutely no reason why we should pay to go through our own canal more than we should pay tolls to travel on any body of water in the United States."

MISS EVELYN M. LAMB, of the San Diego Chapter—"I am sorry that there are any women in this country who do not believe as I do. I am for free tolls most decidedly, as I believe it only equitable to conserve for American ships the rights of the Panama Canal, which was built by American money in a spirit of patriotism."

MRS. E. W. MARSTON, Delegate Oakland Chapter, Cal.—"Three cheers for Speaker Clark and his free tolls stand. I am against the repeal of free tolls, but I believe the railroads are back of the repeal. I do not wish any country to have an advantage over us."

"NOT RIGHT TO CHARGE TOLLS."

MRS. CHARLES C. GOSS, State Regent of New Hampshire—"It is not right to put tolls on our own canal for our own ships. It seems that considering all the money we have sent down to the Panama Canal that our ships should go through free. It was our great patriotic undertaking, and our ships should not pay tolls."

MRS. J. ROBINSON DOWNEY, Pittsburgh Chapter, wife of a Pittsburgh banker—"I am with Champ Clark on his stand for free tolls for our coastwise ships through the Panama Canal. President Wilson is very wrong to ask a repeal of the free tolls bill. We have built the canal at a great cost of money [illegible] and no other country has [illegible] to it. What has Great Britain ever given us?"

MISS ELIZA DENNISON, editor of the American Monthly D. A. R. Magazine—"I am for free passage through the canal of American coastwise ships. We have paid tolls over and over in the American lives which have been lost in the building of the great waterway.

"We have given our dollars, our enthusiasm, our patriotism and in many cases our lives for [illegible] and we own it."

MRS. GEORGE THATCHER GUERNSEY, State Regent of Kansas—"If we do a thing we ought to derive the benefit from it. If we do not discriminate [illegible] our coastwise [illegible] them from [illegible] the benefit.

"We should [illegible] interest of America that which is purely the result of American efforts and money."

MRS. THOMAS J. LATHAM, Memphis, Tenn., Chapter Regent and ex-national officer—"I am a Democrat and I stand for the principles of Democracy. I support President Wilson, but I think he is wrong on the canal tolls repeal issue.

"I have talked on the subject of free tolls to many different people, Democrats and Republicans, and I am firmly of the opinion that there should be free tolls for our American coastwise ships."

MRS. L. BRADFORD PRINCE, State Regent of New Mexico and wife of the ex-Governor—"I have very strong feelings on the subject of free tolls [illegible] most of the people of my State. We believe that our [illegible] should go through the canal free.

"I do not see why we should give England the advantage. We built the Panama Canal and will have to maintain it. I admire the stand taken by the Hearst newspapers in this matter, and hope that they will be able to convert everybody to the right view."

Resolution Calls for Surprise for Deputy Speaker Hammill.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 25.—Deputy Speaker Judge Frank H. Hammill of the Rhode Island House of Representatives and Olivia M. C. Day, a school teacher, are back from a short honeymoon that followed their marriage which came as surprise to the law makers. When the Deputy Speaker appeared in the House, Representative F. C. Lawton immediately introduced the following resolution:

"Whereas, the members of this House of Representatives are apprised that, upon this smiling April day, the wedding bells are ringing for their fellow member, the Honorable Francis Henry Hammill of Bristol;

"Resolved, that it is the sense and sentiment of this House that the Honorable Speaker appoint a committee of three—not all of whom shall be of the same political party, and who shall serve without compensation—to procure and present a wedding gift conveying to Deputy Speaker Hammill the esteem and congratulations of the members, officers and attendants of this House, and the Honorable Speaker is hereby requested to proceed accordingly."

Mr. and Mrs. Hammill were married [illegible] by the Rev. Fr. W. J. Ward of St. John's Catholic Church. Mr. Hammill is a [illegible]

Third Generation For Famous Store

New Head for "William Read & Son," Established in 1826.

A matter of unusual interest is the fact that the old firm of William Read & Sons, probably the oldest gun importing house in the country, has just passed into the third generation.

Established in 1826 under the name of Lane & Read its former place of business was in Dock Square. In 1849 upon the death of Mr. Lane, the business was conducted under the name of William Read and thus remained until 1854 when it became William Read & Son upon the entering into the business of William Read, Jr. Two other sons became interested between 1866 and 1870 at which time the present name of William Read & Sons was adopted and has continued ever since.

In 1882 the firm moved to its present location in Adams Square at 107 Washington street and this year marks another step in the development of this interesting business and sees it pass into the hands of the third generation, the former members of the partnership retiring this Spring in favor of a younger member of the family, Mr. J. B. Read.

SAMUEL J. ELDER OF THE HAGUE TRIBUNAL DEFENDS U.S. RIGHT TO FREE SHIPS IN THE CANAL

Noted Lawyer Reviewing Legal Features of Treaty, Denounces Use of Term "Dishonor."

Samuel J. Elder, member of The Hague Tribunal and a leader of the Massachusetts bar, scores the phrases, "national dishonor," "violation of treaties," "fraud" and "Yankee trick" as INTOLERABLE when used in connection with the right of the United States to exempt its ships from the payment of tolls in the Panama canal. Mr. Elder believes this country has that right with honor.

The noted lawyer, however, wishes it made plain that at present as a matter of expediency and in view of the President's expressed wishes he favors the repeal of the tolls clause of the canal bill.

"In view of what the President says I, of course, like any other American citizen, would have nothing further to say, and for that reason stand by the President," said Mr. Elder.

LEGAL ASPECTS OF TREATY.

In discussing the legal aspects of the treaty and the reasons that it would be possible for the United States to stand by free tolls for its shipping without violation of national pledge, he says:

"Article III. provides: 'The United States adopts as the basis of the neutralization of such ship canal the following rules. The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation, or its citizens or subjects, in respect of the conditions or changes of traffic or otherwise. Such conditions and changes of traffic shall be just and equitable.'

"It is contended for Great Britain that 'the vesels of commerce and of war of all nations' must include the vessels of the United States because it is a nation. In the same breath it is conceded that it does not include the vessels of war of the United States, which are admittedly free to travel the canal without payment of tolls. How can it be contended that it does include the vessels 'of commerce' of the United States when it does not include the vessels of war of the United States, joined together as the words are 'vessels of commerce and of war.'

"How shall we understand the words 'observing these rules'? Was it to be supposed that the United States would not observe the very rules which it was at that moment laying down, or that it intended to indicate that the vessels of the United States would be admitted if the United States observed its own rules? This is rendered clearer by remembering that the language which Great Britain proposed at this point was: 'All nations which shall agree to observe these rules.'

"Did Lord Lansdowne then understand that the United States was one of the nations, and that the United States was laying down the rule that its own ships might use the canal if the United States SHOULD AGREE TO OBSERVE its own rules?

TERMS MUST BE SPECIFIC.

"But the case does not rest here. By the second treaty which was adopted Great Britain asked to have added these words: 'Such conditions and charges of traffic shall be just and equitable.' The United States unhesitatingly agreed to this addition.

"If Great Britain's present contention is sound, that the preceding sentence gave her ships the same rights that American ships had, why should she ask that the 'conditions and charges of traffic' should be 'just and equitable'? Was it supposed that the United States was going to be unjust or inequitable in its treatment of its own ships?

"The Suez Canal cost about $100,000,000 to build. The tolls fixed for the use of that canal originally were $2 per ton, now reduced, after many years, to $1.58 per ton. The United States has dug a canal at an expenditure of $400,000,000 of money, and has fixed its tolls at $1.20 per ton.

"But this is not all. In interpretation of treaties only the most express and specific terms can deprive a nation of its sovereignty. If the terms are of vague and of doubtful import the presumption is against the State's intention to part with or abridge its jurisdiction or property rights.

"We cannot conceive that the words 'are of vague or of doubtful import,' but if they are then the British contention fails because they do not clearly abridge the sovereignty of the United States.

LANGUAGE IS CLEAR.

"It has been constantly said that the United States had violated its treaty; had been guilty of fraud.

"It should be borne in mind that in treaties and in international law every nation has two classes of vessels. Its over-seas ships is one and its coastwise commerce is another. The latter has always been treated with preference. There does not seem to be any question about this distinction between over-seas and coastwise vessels, or about the fact that the use of the words 'British vessels' or 'vessels of the United States' does not include coastwise commerce.

"In the first note of protest addressed by Great Britain to the United States, Great Britain uses this significant language:

"'As to the proposal that exemption shall be given to vessels engaged in the coastwise trade, a more difficult question arises. If the trade should be so regulated as to make it certain that only bona fide coastwise traffic, which is reserved for United States vessels, would be benefited by this exemption, it may be that no objection could be taken.'

"This admits as clearly as diplomatic language ever does, that the United States has, in principle, under the treaty a right to exempt its coastwise commerce, and merely insists that regulations for such exemption may result in some benefit to our over-seas [illegible]."

BOSTON MEN OFFER STRONG ARGUMENT IN FAVOR OF FREE TOLLS

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Boston men gave the Senate committee, which is considering the Panama Canal tolls repeal bill, strong arguments today against abolishing the tolls exemption clause for American coastwise shipping.

"If this plan to repeal the free tolls provision prevails I know that interests which have been planning to invest millions in Pacific coast lines will abandon the project," said A. H. [illegible] Skinner of the Boston & Savannah [illegible] line.

Mr. Skinner denied the existence of a shipping trust and said that his own company had chartered its [illegible] about building two 7,500-ton steamers which would operate through the canal when they learned of the action of the House of Representatives on the Sims bill. He said the ships had been contracted for but that the order had been countermanded and the company was now building colliers for local coastwise trade.

Captain Edward B. Atwood of the Cape Cod Steamship Company; Lewis K. Thurlow, representing the White [illegible] Steamship Company, and A. J. [illegible], representing the J. S. [illegible] Steamship Company; J. C. Crowley of the Coastwise Transport Company, and members of the Waterways Committee of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange were among others who made strong arguments against the repeal.

Carpet Beetles

The Buffalo carpet beetle, familiar to the public as the Buffalo bug, is one of the most destructive and troublesome pests in existence.

The name is suggestive of the [illegible] grub or larva, some ⅛ of an inch long, found working in carpets, more generally along seams or cracks in the floor.

There are two varieties of these beetles. [illegible] Buffalo bug has black and white or [illegible] mottled wings [illegible] beetle is black or brownish [illegible] slender and somewhat larger than the [illegible]

The slender, reddish brown grub, some quarter of an inch or more in length, is easily distinguished from that of the Buffalo bug by the long [illegible] tail of reddish hairs and the [illegible] body.

Both of these beetles are rather common on flowers the latter part of May and early in June [illegible] may be brought into houses therewith. They [illegible] on windows in early Spring, are found in the Fall and occasionally in the Winter.

Both play possum when disturbed. The eggs of the Buffalo bug are deposited in convenient [illegible], and the young grubs develop quite rapidly. It is probable there are not more than [illegible] generations in the North, though the [illegible] are active in warm houses throughout the [illegible]

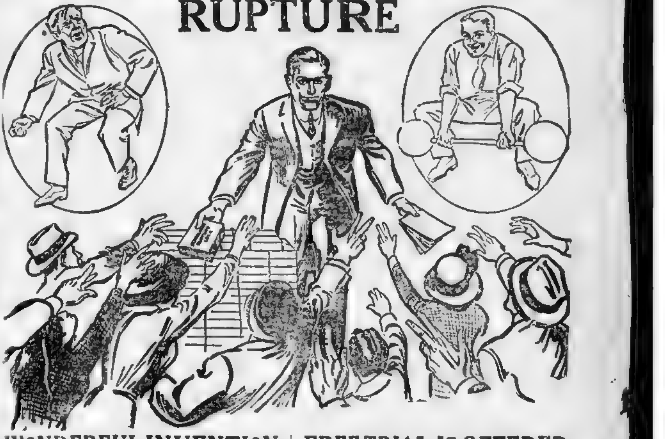
This Man Can CURE Your RUPTURE



WONDERFUL INVENTION REPLACES TRUSS

Rupture Now Supported and Actually Cured Without Use of Old-Fashioned, Ill-Fitting Steel Spring or Elastic Harness.

Here's joyous news for you, for every Rupture sufferer. Think of it! Now you can take your old-fashioned, flesh-binding, ill-fitting, ever-slipping, steel spring, elastic band or leg strap harness and do just what you've felt like doing many times before—throw it into the fire and burn it up. That's the place for it, too, for such instruments of torture not only make life miserable for the wearer, but often permanently damage his or her general health.

Now it is possible with the aid of a single but ingenious device, the Schuiling Rupture Lock, to hold the rupture perfectly at all times, under any and all conditions, and to be perfectly and absolutely comfortable while wearing it.

The Schuiling Rupture Lock

is an entirely new idea, different in construction from any other device obtainable for this purpose. It is surprisingly simple, no springs to gouge into the flesh, no elastic bands to rot and swell, no leg straps to make you feel harnessed up like a truck horse, no improperly constructed pads to press directly into and enlarge the ruptured opening. The Schuiling Rupture Lock is scientific and so constructed that it is impossible for it to gouge, bind, slip or get out of place. It is the most comfortable device ever invented for the support and cure of Rupture.

[illegible] the Schuiling Rupture Lock not only holds the rupture with soothing firmness and perfect comfort, but does it in a way that permits rapid healing and complete and lasting cure. Hundreds who have used it say it is a blessing long looked and yearned for by the rupture afflicted.

READ THESE WORDS

The following are extracts from a few of hundreds of similar letters that have been received by The Schuiling Rupture Institute from former sufferers in all parts of the country.

Cured in 4 Months.

United States Army Wireless Man Elopes

MRS. DOROTHY DICKINSON DOWD

Fort Monroe Operator and Belmont Girl of 17 Married Secretly.

Dan Cupid has taken advantage of the Mexican War to bring about the elopement and marriage of seventeen-year-old Dorothy Q. Dickinson of Belmont and Leo E. B. Dowd, whose home is in Waltham but who is an army wireless operator, stationed at Fort Monroe, Virginia.

The marriage of the young people at Portland, Me., was announced today by relatives of the bride.

Mr. Dowd, who is twenty-two years old, has been home on a furlough visiting his parents. He met Miss Dickinson several months ago. Both families thought her too young to wed and the couple was waiting.

But the war crisis and the prospect that Mr. Dowd may be ordered to active service precipitated matters. The gallant wireless operator and his sweetheart disappeared a few days ago. The next heard from them was their announcement from Portland that they were on their honeymoon, but would be back at the bride's home today.

MOBILIZE ARMY FOR BIG BOSTON CLEAN-UP WEEK

School Children, Business Men, Civic Workers and Ministers Are Enlisted.

An army of many thousands is mobilizing in Boston and New England to conduct the most extensive Clean Up Campaign ever known in these parts. Under the generalship of business men the city has been divided into separate fields for action corresponding to the sanitary districts. In each of these sections residents of all ages and of all races are being enlisted to do battle against the demon dirt.

The Boston School Board tomorrow will send to every schoolmaster a printed circular drawing attention to the fact that the first week in May, beginning with May 3, has been set aside as CLEAN UP WEEK. Each master will be requested to ask his pupils and teachers to do all in their power to make the city clean.

In the North and West Ends women and girls are hard at work. Jewish and Italian women are distributing handbills urging [illegible] landlords and [illegible] of unhygienic stores to clean up before complaint against them is made to the Board of Health.

The children, however, are not waiting for [illegible] telling them what to do for their city, but under the guidance of Miss [illegible] E. A. Virgin hundreds of boys and girls have come together in Junior [illegible] Leagues and are already eager to join their elders in the fight for cleanliness. Without delaying for the appointed week in May several detachments of these little "soldiers of hygiene" were to be seen yesterday morning storming vacant lots in the vicinity of Longwood avenue, with barbed sticks, bags and baskets.

Next to the [illegible] and enthusiasm taken by the children comes that of the women of the city who are rolling up their sleeves and tucking their skirts for a thorough civic spring housekeeping. Mrs. Thomas Sherwin, of No. 1 [illegible] Commonwealth avenue, has been made colonel of the Boston forces and is backed and supported in her city-wide activities by the Women's Municipal League of which she is a member. Mrs. Sherwin has under her ten lieutenants or district chairmen who, in turn, are organizing their local forces.

In sections like Roxbury, the Back Bay and the North End the districts are divided up into blocks and streets and small sections over which some public spirited matron or club of young people has promised to preside.

In Dorchester Mrs. Frank L. Young is again marshalling her forces for a thorough renovation of her section.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

The Braves were beaten by the Brooklyns yesterday in an Arctic game of base ball by the score of 4 to 0.

Old Ed. Reulbach, who got out of a sick bed in Brooklyn, day before yesterday and joined the team, fooled Stallings' men completely.

He served them curve balls most of the time, and five of them stood at the plate to be called out on strikes.

[illegible] simply made monkeys of our [illegible]ows, who gave one of the weakest general all-around exhibitions of hitting that has been seen on the ground for a long time.

There was some sharp fielding here and there to enliven the game and give the spectators something to cheer about; otherwise they would have been frozen to death in their seats.

CRUTCHER HIT HARD.

It was certainly one chilly baseball day. A sharp wind with icicles all over it blew from the east, favoring the pitchers and handicapping the batteries. But the Brooklyn players seemed to have no trouble in solving Crutcher's delivery. They pounded him for eleven hits, most of them good, sharp stingers.

Deal played a swell game at third base, and Egan featured at shortstop. In the eighth inning Wheat was thrown out trying to steal, and he and Evers had a verbal row after the play. Their chins were quite close together and both assumed a threatening attitude when Umpire Eason rushed from his position behind the plate and pushed his way between them.

NEW UMPIRE TRIED OUT.

Eason's partner in the umpiring was Lincoln, a product of the old Connecticut League. He is one of President Tener's new umpires, and he made the decisions on the bases using fine judgment. The Brooklyns kicked on several of his edicts, but from the grandstand it looked as though he was absolutely right in all of them.

Brooklyn began scoring in the second inning. Wheat, the first man up, got a pass. Smith sacrificed him to second, and he scored on Stengel's single to left.

In the sixth inning, with one down, Cutshaw singled to left, and Daubert cut a two-bagger past third. Wheat was purposedly walked, filling the bases. Smith then rolled a grounder to Maranville, and it looked like

Southern Magnate [illegible] to Secure [illegible]aft of Braves

[illegible]nt Clyde Shropshire, of [illegible]haville Club (Southern [illegible]) attended the Braves game [illegible]day. He came north for the [illegible] purpose of trying to get [illegible]nce Kraft, the player the Braves have just secured from the Brooklyns.

Kraft played in New Orleans last season and the Nashville club wants him badly. At last reports there was nothing doing. President Gaffney said the Braves needed Kraft in their business.

3 DEDHAM BOYS NEAR DEATH AT BASEBALL GAME

Telegraph Poles Which They Had Climbed to See the Game Break with Them.

Three young boys, who had "grandstand" seats on the cross bars of telegraph poles during the game between Dedham High and the High noon at Stone Park, Dedham, had a miraculous escape from death, when the poles snapped off from the bottom, pitching them forward over a fence and down on to the railroad tracks of the New Haven road which runs near the ball grounds.

The game, which had been slowly played was stopped suddenly during the seventh inning when the pole upon which were Daniel Westhaver and Charles Keaney, and a second with Frank Brinley on the cross bars started to sway. The poles broke and the lads were hurled down a twenty foot embankment onto the railroad tracks.

The players and spectators rushed to the assistance of the boys whom they believed were seriously injured, but were surprised to discover that the lads were all right with the exception of a few bruises on their faces. The pole upon which Kearney and Westhaver were on, carried the boys with it, as they had presence of mind to hold on and fall with it.

The ball game was won by Commerce by a score of 9 to 6.

Braves' Second Team Lose at Fitchburg

FITCHBURG, April 25.—Scout Tommy McCarthy's Boston National League second team couldn't cope with Fred Lake's New England League crew at the New England League grounds here this afternoon, and were whitewashed 3 to 0. "Woodchuck" King on the mound for Fitchburg was in [illegible] form, letting the major leaguers down with four hits, two of which were bunched in the fourth, the only inning in which the Braves threatened. The visitors were handicapped by pressing pitchers into service, Martin being unable to get into the fray on account of an injured finger. They played loosely and were guyed by 1,500 fans. Lines of Defender Great Surprise to Yachtsmen Who Watch Her Take the Initial Plunge.

By HARRY C. THOMAS.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 25.—The cup boat Resolute, built by the New York Yacht Club syndicate to contend with two other New England built boats for the honor of defending the historic America Cup against the invasion of the Shamrock, Sir Thomas Lipton's English built boat, was launched today at Herreshoff's plant, under fair skies and plenty of enthusiasm.

Little Miss Grace Vanderbilt, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Ex-Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, of the New York Yacht Club christened the Resolute and smashed a bottle of wine over the boat just as it started to glide down the ways. The bottle was encased in silken ribbons of the National colors and these were picked up and then presented to Miss Vanderbilt as a souvenir of one of the most impressive occasions in her career thus far.

FAMOUS YACHTMEN PRESENT.

Accompanied by her father and mother, Miss Vanderbilt came over to the launching on the 2 o'clock train from New York and motored over to this place from Providence in a big limousine. At the boat shop the Vanderbilt party was met by Secretary George A. Cormack of the New York Yacht Club and escorted down through the big yard to the tender Cape Cod, that was moored at the end of one of the piers.

Robert W. Emmons, 2nd, Boston banker and former Harvard athlete, and Charles Francis Adams, 2nd, treasurer of Harvard College and one of the best all round skippers of racing yachts in the country, were on hand to care for the sponsor of the new cup contender.

On board the Cape Cod also were Commodore Dallas B. Pratt of the New York Yacht Club, Vice Commodore George F. Baker, Jr., of the same club, Frederick C. Bourne, W. Butler Duncan, Jr., Henry Walters, all of the New York syndicate who are financing the Resolute.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons of Hingham, Mrs. Robert W. Emmons and party who motored down from the Emmons summer home on Cape Cod, Mrs. John Parkinson, Jr., and party of Boston, members of the Bristol Town Council, and other town officials.

Promptly at 6.30, the blocks were knocked from under the big racing craft and she started for the water. It was a pretty launching. Just as the sunset gun was fired on the big steamer Viking, Vice-Commodore Baker's yacht, the Resolute, was being tied up alongside a pier amid cheers and the tooting of [illegible] whistles and salutes from numerous craft in Bristol Harbor.

MISS VANDERBILT FINE PICTURE.

"Bob" Emmons, managing director of the New York syndicate, was on board the Resolute with some of the crew, in spick and span new blue uniform, when the craft found the water for the first time.

Miss Vanderbilt wore a blue suit with hat to match, trimmed with small red flowers. She wore sable fur with a muff and carried daffodils.

The Resolute furnished several surprises. She is shorter over all than either of the other two cup boats. Her displacement is higher than the Vanatie, building at Neponset, and the Resolute will have two steps for her mast affording two styles of rigging. The deck is aluminum covered with canvas.

One week from today she will be in sailing trim and Messrs. Adams and Emmons will take her down Narragansett Bay for the first trial. Although no one directly interested in the new boat would be quoted,

SOMERVILLE WINS; GAME PROTESTED

Defeats Medford High 7 to 6 in Suburban League Game at Medford.

Protest has been entered with the Suburban League by Medford High over the outcome of yesterday's Suburban League game at the Medford High field, when Somerville was declared a winner, 7 to 6. Medford claimed that a score in the ninth inning should have counted while Umpire Fitzgerald ruled otherwise and sent the man back to third base.

By a batting rally in the ninth inning Medford tried to tie up the score. Sweetman singled and Crowe doubled. Reynolds singled, scoring both players. Hurrill fanned. Doyle reached first on an infield hit and Reynolds went out at home. Sullivan singled. Noyes singled, filling the bases and Laird was passed forcing Doyle across the plate for the third tally. Sullivan at third overran the [illegible] Robertson Somerville's catcher threw to third to catch Sullivan, the throw going wild and Sullivan crossed the plate, apparently tieing the score. The umpire ruled, however that only one man was entitled to score and sent him back to third.

BIG SHAKEUP MADE IN YALE VARSITY CREW

Captain Denegre Is Removed from First Eight and Put With Substitutes.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., April 25.—For the first time in eight years a Yale crew captain was removed from the shell. At this evening's rowing Denegre was shifted from No. 3 in the first to No. 7 in the reserve eight, and McHenry, who has been No. [illegible] in the second boat all the spring, was promoted to No. 3 in Captain Denegre's stead.

Noyes was the last captain to retire in mid-season from the eight, resigning because of a physical weakness developed from the Harvard race of the previous season.

Captain Denegre has been tested for endurance the past three weeks, and has not measured up to the standard of McHenry. Stroke Carl Bob Gilfillan was shifted to stroke of the second boat, Jack Appleton replacing him.

Appleton has made a splendid fight for health and athletic fame. Two years ago he was stricken with infantile paralysis. He has slowly regained his strength, and has stroked the second eight on three occasions against the varsity when it defeated the regulars, yesterday marking the third time.

It is likely that the present order will be used against Cornell and [illegible] in the race at Ithaca in three weeks.

Milton Academy Nine Swamps Country Day

Milton Academy defeated the Country Day School nine at Milton yesterday by the score of 11 to 3. Felton, pitching for the home team, held the visitors scoreless for six innings and with only one hit. He then retired in favor of Clarke. The feature of the game was the home run by Captain Trainer of Milton. The score

OXFORD RUNNERS WIN BIG CONTEST

Harvard Fliers, Capper, Rock, Bingham and Barron Outclass Other College One-Mile Teams in Big Varsity Relay Struggle

McCurdy of Penn and Jackson Have Desperate Battle to Tape in International Relay Race; Referee Gives Race to Britons

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 25.—Twenty thousand persons who sat in the rain for nearly five hours this afternoon were thrown into a state of wild excitement when they saw a wonderful big man beat out a lion-hearted little man on Franklin Field today.

Arnold N. S. Jackson, Olympic champion at 1500 metres, lifted the four-mile relay crown for England, after the most thrilling finish ever seen in this event, at the annual Penn relay game.

Wallace McCurdy, Penn's track captain, raced side by side with the wonderful Englishman and it was only in the last two strides that Jackson's lanky form shot forward and crossed the line first by a margin of less than a foot.

It required the judges' decision to tell who had won the race.

A scene was enacted in the big stand at the finish of the race that reminded many of the climax to the Penn-Michigan game in 1912, when an army of wild enthusiasts swept down on the field and for a time stopped the progress of the game.

ATHLETES RAN IN RAIN.

The time for the four miles—eighteen minutes five seconds—while not a record for the distance, was better than a record-breaking performance when the conditions over head and underfoot are taken into consideration.

A driving rain beat into the faces of the runners as they made their heart-breaking finish and the track was soaked and heavy, making the footing most difficult.

With Penn minus the services of Harold Kelly and Ted Meredith, Harvard went to the mark in the one mile college championships a decided favorite over the Quakers, who until the loss of their two stars, were even choice for first honors with the record breaking crimson quartet.

Coach Orton pulled a surprise on the favorites, and when Ferguson, Penn's first man, in a wonderful spurt came home three yards in the lead over Capper of Harvard and Van Winkle of Cornell, the only other two competitors in the event, it looked as if Penn might win.

Cross was the next Red and Blue runner, and the way the half miler romped around the track sent thrills of joy into the Penn cheering section.

Although he allowed both Rock, of Harvard and Lewis of Cornell, to come up on him on the first turn, the Meredith substitute spurted ahead just before the final home stretch and would have finished at least three yards in the lead had he not fallen.

When he arose he was four yards behind the other two men with the result that Lockwood faced a big handicap when he started on his journey.

BINGHAM OPENS LEAD.

The former Germantown Academy boy did more than his part, however, and crept up on Behaffey of Cornell, but could not overtake Bingham, the Harvard runner. He sent Lippincott twelve yards in the rear of Barron, and the Olympic 1[illegible] metres champion who went around the cinder path like a deer.

The Penn students were yelling their heads off, but Lippincott could not do better than cut down Barron's lead by several yards. He finished ten yards in the rear, while Catwell was a poor [illegible].

The Boston High School of Commerce [illegible] won the one-mile high school [illegible] championship of America. The first man, W. C. Baldwin, secured a lead of one hundred yards in the first lap and his team mates continued to increase this until the last man finished fully two hundred yards ahead of second team.

Six schools were entered in this race. [illegible] the first half lap the race was very close, but the Boston runner let out and ran away from the field. The real feature of the race, outside of the wonderful performance of the boys from Boston, was the race put up for second place between the Philadelphia Central High School and the Buffalo Central High School.

ILLINOIS BEATS PENN.

The first two men from these schools ran an even race, but when the third runner took up the burden for Philadelphia Central, he secured a lead of about seventy-five yards over the Buffalo lad. W. Schaefer, the anchor man on the Buffalo Central High School team, ran a splendid race and, with a little better support

COBB SAYS CALLAHAN HAS GREAT PITCHING STAFF

American League Batters Won't Help Their Averages When They Meet the White Sox—Cobb Says Chicago Has the Best Twirlers in League at This Time—New Style in Pitching This Year

Written for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

By TY COBB.

American League players who are nursing their batting averages will not relish playing against the White Sox this season, judging by the fine work the twirlers of Callahan's staff have been doing. I said in my first article of this series that the Windy City club was very strong in the box, and I cannot resist the temptation to remark: "I told you so" at this time

On the showing made up to the time of writing, Callahan undoubtedly has either the best lot of moundsmen in the league or else has them in the best condition

Possibly the success of the Sox pitchers has been due in part to the fact that the hitters have not warmed to their work as yet, but I am inclined to think that this hasn't so very much to do with it

That is a great gang of pitchers mustered under the banner of Callahan, and if Walsh comes through and holds his strength all season, there will be some more gray hairs in the heads of "Connie" Mack, Clark Griffith and others who are figuring on the bunting as their personal property

THINGS EVEN UP IN BASEBALL.

It always has seemed to me peculiar the way things average up in baseball Take the Chicago pitching corps, for instance. Now, if that same collection of boxmen were with the Athletics, we could call the race off right now. There wouldn't be anything to it except the battle for second position.

But Chicago, with all this fine hurling, is a weak batting club, and not above the average in fielding ability—below it, if anything, in the outfield—so the pitchers have to work hard for every game they win

On the other hand, "Connie" Mack with his wonderful infield and all his hitting strength, is badly off for twirlers, and will need a whole hatful of runs to win many of the games that he is figuring on annexing

It is a lucky thing that there is such a distribution of talent as this, otherwise the league champions would be nothing but processions.

STYLES CHANGE IN PITCHING.

While on the subject of pitchers, I am reminded that styles in hurling change just as they do in dress. Sometimes speed pitching is all the rage and everybody wants "smoke." Again, it is the curve that is most prized, and a lot of flingers permanently injure their arms throwing too many "hooks" or trying to learn new ones

When Chesbro was in his prime and Walsh in his heyday, every manager sought spitball throwers and the scouts were instructed to move heaven and earth to dig up fellows who had the moist one

The supply of good "spitters" never was large, however, and they didn't last long, so most of the leaders came out against the unsanitary delivery and turned their attention to something else

CHANGE OF PACE THE RAGE NOW.

At present the "change of pace" is all the rage and it is very effective, too

A good slow ball is about as valuable as anything in a pitcher's repertoire Jean Dubuc of the Tigers is almost unhittable when he has his slow ball behaving The best of the sluggers look foolish against him when he is right

Even Walter Johnson, the marvelous Washington moundsman, is using a slow ball regularly Walter got tired of "buzzing them through" all the time, and is making the curve and slow one do some of the work that his speed used to do. He only "bears down" with his smoke in the pinches now, and when he does, believe me, your chances of getting a hit aren't good enough to bet on every one expressed themselves well satisfied.

BLIND ARCHITECT THERE.

One of the most interested men [illegible] this launching was John B. Herreshoff, the blind naval architect, who has for years, in spite of his infirmities, had a hand in the construction of about every defender of the cup that Sir Thomas Lipton [illegible] attempt to lift the [illegible]

The big steam yacht Vixen from New York brought to the launching Commodore [illegible] Pratt of the New York Yacht Club, [illegible] Harry [illegible] George D. [illegible] Frederick [illegible] Harry Walters and [illegible] Jr. of the [illegible] the Resolute.

The Vixen flew the flag of Vice-Commodore George F. Baker, Jr. of the New York Yacht Club, who was aboard

For the first time in years a private inspection of the Resolute was [illegible] the newspapermen [illegible] today. This was made possible by George A. Cormack, secretary of the New York Yacht Club, who was on the job from early morning until late at night assisting Robert W. Emmons, 2d, Boston broker and former Harvard athlete, who is the managing director of the New York syndicate.

With these two men were Charles Francis Adams, 2d, treasurer of Harvard College, who will be the man "behind the gun" when it comes to sailing this husky looking racer

John Parkinson, Jr., another Boston man who will serve on the racing board, was also on the job. The press was later entertained aboard the tender Cape Cod.

IS IMPROVED "FIFTY."

As was stated months ago in the AMERICAN, the Resolute is an improved New York "fifty." That is the model and lines of the one-design class of 50-footers raced last year by the New York Yacht Club which has become the popular class of racing boats around New York

It was a surprise to yachtsmen at that Secretary Cormack stated at the launching that no dimensions of the Resolute would be given out until after the trial races with the Defiance and Vanitie, the two other New England creations now almost ready for yachting

It was learned, however, from an authoritative source today that the over-all length is nearly 108 feet, the water line seventy-five feet, and the draft twenty-one feet, with the centre-board down. The beam is about twenty-two feet.

These figures are not official, however, and the measurements will not be known for some weeks

The Resolute, so far as first impressions go, is a complete puzzle. One thing is certain, the other two boats must give her time allowance and it will probably be from three to five minutes at least

ABILITY CONUNDRUM.

Again with a free board, not over six feet, a scant body and a short overhang, this latest Herreshoff model looks like a mighty good light weather boat. The bowsprit will be twelve feet outboard and the mast 110 feet with a topmast that will house five feet in her [illegible]

HARVARD IS CONFIDENT.

Despite the fact that Yale seems to have a better crew than last year and that it will use a faster stroke the Harvard crowd is not worried over the outcome of the [illegible] on the Thames. Harvard supporters are [illegible] the best [illegible] the 1913 graduates. [illegible]

[illegible] The Syracuse crew already is in wonderful condition due to [illegible] work [illegible] getting [illegible] to stand [illegible] that swept across the finish [illegible] last June. Ten Eyck's crew this year, not definitely decided upon as yet, will be composed of a mixture of some of last year's varsity veterans and some of the men who rowed in the 1913 freshmen and varsity four shells.

CORNELL OARSMEN BUSY.

The defeat of Cornell last year, through the whirlwind finish of Syracuse, after Cornell ruled supreme on the river for many years, sort of piqued Charles Courtney, the wonderful Cornell coach, and he has been busier than ever in his life before training his crew with the hope that it will be able to show its stern to every one [illegible].

Courtney [illegible] wonderful [illegible] this year [illegible] Cornell varsity gang this year will be of a championship calibre.

The University of Washington crew once again looms up as the "dark horse." The boys from Seattle won the admiration of the immense crowd last year by their wonderful finish and there is a prospect that the crowd from the farthest region of the land will be able to take the championship trophy back with them to the Pacific Coast.

Coach Conibear's crew had an easy time defeating the crews from the University of California and Leland Stanford which it met in the triangular Pacific Coast regatta on April 11. The Washington boys simply made a runaway of the race and showed that the 1914 crew was even better than that of 1913. Conibear is said to have better material than last year, and in addition to this he has the experience that the witnessing of the 1913 regatta on the Hudson gave him.

The Washington crowd came East last June without knowing just what they were up against. They were unfamiliar with the methods and tricks used by their Eastern rivals, unfamiliar with the jockeying, spurting and pacemaking. And it was because of this that many persons declare that Syracuse, instead of Washington, won the 1913 regatta.

The Washington boys lay back in fourth and fifth position during the early stages of the 1913 race, stroking easily, and timing their final spurt to begin after the three and one-half-mile mark. But they began the spurting a bit too late. Had it started at the three mile mark, or even the three and one-quarter-mile mark, it's possible that the Washington outfit would have beaten Syracuse to the finish line. As it was, Washington closed up about three boat lengths during the last half-mile, and finished only a length behind Syracuse and a half length behind Cornell, with its men in excellent condition and able to shoot along for another half-mile at a record-breaking clip, had it been necessary.

OF COMMENT ON ATHLETICS AND PHYSICAL CULTURE

GOLF THE BEST COMBINATON OF EXERCISE AND DIVERSION

William Muldoon Says It Supplies a Great Athletic Need Since Luxuries Have Made Men Desert the Sporting Field—Calls Men and Women to the Open and Makes Them Take Enough Exersise

By WILLIAM MULDOON.

America's Foremost Physical Conditioner.

WILLIAM MULDOON

It is a pretty well established fact, in the minds of those who give sufficient thought and consideration to the best way of having and maintaining a healthy, normal body, with active, vigorous, well-balanced mind, that alternations of struggle and rest, of cold and heat, of hunger and repletion, evolve vigor, stamina and efficiency.

It is much to be regretted that active, manly diversions are now so little practiced since the advent of the automobile, with all its luxuries and comfort, and the spacious, rapid moving elevators that take you from floor to floor without having to raise your weight one single step by your own physical effort. These newest inventions are all with a view of saving manual labor and physical effort, and they tend to cultivate and develop within us the inclination to follow the easy way

We must rely almost entirely for sufficient physical exercise to preserve our health upon diversions that will make people take more exercise than they would otherwise. As active diversions lose ground and popularity, those of the sedentary kind seem to prevail.

Sedentary diversions are of no other use but to consume time. I am referring to card playing, or any diversion in which no bodily effort is required. Instead of relieving the mind, they often require more thought than thorough study or business. Everything that induces people to sit still, unless it be some necessary employment, ought to be avoided.

The diversion which I consider the best exercise for people past the athletic age; those engaged in a profession or business for many hours, and have flabby muscles, and are not accustomed to severe exercise, I would recommend—first of all—golf

For those that are in a better condition physically and can stand a more vigorous form of exercise—horseback riding comes first, and then walking at a rapid, vigorous pace. Then there is another class, usually composed of younger, more vigorous and athletically-inclined, that should take what might be classed as rather violent exercise—such as tennis, handball, rowing, fencing, wrestling and cross-country riding.

Open Air Exercise Most Beneficial.

Exercise ought always to be taken in the open air. When that can't be done various methods may be contrived for exercising the body within doors—handball, court tennis, dancing, boxing and fencing.

In any event, exercise should never be prolonged to the point of fatigue Up to a certain degree you are receiving a benefit from your efforts; passing that degree you are doing yourself an injury. Those who are plungers or inclined to show off their great physical endurance, courage and so forth, are doing themselves a great injustice. Physical exercise is absolutely necessary for every human being if they expect to have normal health.

Every man should lay himself under some sort of necessity to take exercise Indulgence is a vice, and gains ground, and at length becomes disagreeable Hence many who were fond of exercise in the early part of life become absolutely averse to it afterward. This is the case of most hypochondriacs and gouty people, and it renders their ailments in a great measure incurable.

Indulgence only occasions designs, and renders men useless to society, and promotes all manners of vice. To accuse a man of being too indulgent or lazy to exercise is little better than calling him vicious. The man often engaged in some useful pursuit is constantly in quest of ideal pleasures, or impressed with the apprehension of some imaginary evil. From these forces arise most of the miseries of mankind.

Certainly man was never intended to be idle. Idleness frustrates the very design of his creation. Whereas an active life is the best guardian of virtue, and the greatest preservative of health.

Intense Thinking Destructive to Health.

Intense thinking is destructive to health and produces in time the "neurasthenic." Hard study and close attention to business or profession necessarily implies a sedentary life; and when intense thinking is joined to the want of exercise, the consequences must be bad.

Man is evidently not formed for continual thinking more than for perpetual action, and would be as soon worn out by one as by the other.

I want to draw my readers' attention to the very great importance of the effect the mind has upon the bodily health. So great is the power of the mind over the body that by its influence the whole vital motions may be exhilarated or retarded to almost any degree.

Cheerfulness and mirth quicken circulation and promote all secretion; whereas grief, sadness and too serious thought never fail to retard them. The perpetual thinker seldom enjoys perfect health—while the person who thinks intensely for a reasonable period of time and then takes up some wholesome diversion for a short period of time enjoys good health and good spirits.

Perpetual thinkers—that is, intense people, so-called great students, who despise anything so frivolous as diversions of a light and cheerful kind seldom think very long. In a few years they generally become quite stupid and very narrow in their vision of things in general, and melancholy is proof of how rich is that great blessing, and how easily it may be abused. Thinking, like everything else when carried to extreme, becomes a vice.

Lowell War on Baseball Pools

The Lowell police, co-operating with New England Baseball League officials, are waging a rentless war on the makers of baseball pools in Lowell, yesterday William Marshall, John E. Roche and John Frain were in the Lowell police court charged with illegally selling pool tickets. Their cases were continued until Monday at their own request.

A baseball pool called the "Inter Urban" has been doing business in the cities of New England and American League circuits, it was learned. In past years from $8,000 to $1,000 is said to have been made in a single season by the promoters of the business.

Mayor Dennis J. Sheehan is working with the police in their endeavor to stamp out the practice.

In Lawrence, Louis Pieper, president of the New England League team there, has sent a letter to the press asking the co-operation of the public in putting an end to the selling of pool tickets.

United Shoe Victor in Beverly Series

BEVERLY, April 25.—This afternoon in the first game with the Progressives for the city championship on the McKay street grounds, Briggs went to pieces before the hard hitters of the United Shoe, the score being 19 to 6 in favor of the Shoe. Briggs was slammed for twenty-one hits with Peterson and MacDonald getting four apiece off him. The score.

FITCHBURG, April 25.—John Bosk of this city, one of the star twirlers in the New York State League, has been released by Utica on his own request. He arrived home today with a very lame salary wing.

JACK JOHNSON, MUCH PEEVED, TRAINING HARD

Moran's Remarks Have Caused Ahtha to Bestir Himself in Surprising Fashion.

SAYS HE'LL SLAM MORAN

It's too bad that Frank Moran of Pittsburgh didn't learn a wee bit sooner that, in some instances, silence is golden

Because he didn't, and because he wasn't even discreetly close-lipped for the first few days after his return from Europe, he has angered "Lil Ahthuh" Johnson, a colored punching person, which means that Frank is due for a nice little beating in Paris on June 27

Frank, it may be recalled, is matched to meet Johnson, the heavyweight champion of the world, at the place and on the date just mentioned above

Frank, upon landing, began to issue boastful statements regarding what he would do to Johnson, and belittling statements concerning the prowess of the ebony person

In due course of time these statements, printed in sassy looking type in numerous American papers, reached that giddy city of Paree. Also they reached Mr Johnson, who took out his specs, applied them to his eyes, and then focused said eyes upon the sporting pages, giving the statements the up and down, the once over and several other things that one gives to something that vitally interests one.

SPECULATIVE SPECS.

In equipping Mr. Johnson with specs we are assuming what might be poetic license. It is not generally known in this country that the colored walloper wears specs Nor have we any authentic information to that effect. But we have Mr. Moran's word for it that Mr Johnson is a wreck, and it's our idea that one cannot be a physical wreck without also being almost blind Therefore, we have given Mr Johnson a pair of specs If he doesn't need them, he can send them back

The fact remains that the remarks reached him And 'tis said that the oftener Johnson looked at those remarks of the second-rate American "white hope" the greater became his anger and indignation

Johnson, who had taken the Moran match something in the nature of a joke, and who didn't intend to do any vigorous training, started in to condition himself in as earnest a manner as he trained for his match with Jeffries.

Johnson just now is said to weigh over [illegible] He has grown bulky amidships and his once wonderful muscles are softened and covered with layers of fat And, if you wish to take Moran's word for it, his wind is gone, his speed is a minus quality and he's quite generally on the frit.

IS TRAINING HARD.

"Ah reckon Ah am some pounds ovah weight," remarked Johnson at the outset of his training, "an' Ah knows that right jest now Ah wouldn't be able to fight like a champion But Ah've got ovah two months to get into shape and Ah'm gwine to get into shape—get into such condition that Mistah Moran will be a mighty fooled pusson Ah'll make him eat his words."

Johnson some few weeks ago started training by doing light road work Each day he increased the distance traveled and it is said that the exercise is taking off a lot of the bulk Johnson intends devoting the last month before the fight in gymnasium work.

Canton High Wins First League Game

SHARON, April 25.—The first game of the Norfolk Interscholastic League series was played here this afternoon on the Elm Lawn Park grounds between the Canton High School nine and the Sharon High School team The Canton team won by a score of 9 to 8 The features of the game were the clever fielding of the Canton outfielders and their battery work The score.

Tufts Team Returns Seriously Crippled

The Tufts baseball squad is in poor shape as a result of the annual Spring trip. Proctor, the shortstop, is most seriously injured with a lame arm and strained shoulder muscles He will be out of the game for a week at least Krepps, the star southpaw, is also being bothered with a sore arm [illegible] is Volk, the first baseman, [illegible] will work with the team until the middle of the week. Captain Lee is not in any too good condition, but he is sticking with the team in practice. Armstrong will play first and Roache short till the regulars return.

The Prince Has Several Narrow Escapes

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

ALL day the nettled nerves of Prince Alibi Baba cried for rest and relaxation. For he had spent a wakeful night at a gaming table where his skill and good fortune brought him many sequins. These he secreted in the pockets of an old garment, where there would be no danger from the prying Princess Nifti.

And all day the Prince employed artful devices to avoid the presence of his spouse, for she had spent a wakeful night on a lengthy essay of her own composition, "The Higher Feminism." It was her wish that at least one man should hear and squirm under this scathing arraignment of his sex before she submitted it for the applause of her own [illegible], and she chose the Prince for her audience. But this ordeal he successfully escaped by remaining obscured until the first shades of night appeared. Then, summoning his trusty Bull-Bull, he started with him for the Caravansary.

Here the two managed to elude the [illegible] female slave at the door, and carrying their outer garments with them, placed them on a chair near the table which they had selected. But a vigilant servitor craftily possessed himself of the garments, which he carried off, and then returned with a soiled slip bearing a number. This he handed to the Prince. The Prince accepted the card with a mirthless smile, and then addressed himself to Bull-Bull.

"This ticket," said he, "mean as it may appear, and worthless outside of this hostelry, has greater earning power than a bond from the royal exchequer. Each time it journeys back to the [illegible] it carries an accompaniment of silver, for only thus can we [illegible] redeem our garments. It is not the wearing of them that is costly; it is cheaper to keep them on our backs. Indeed I have given more to ransom them from captivity in a Caravansary than ever they cost when new."

The Prince had barely finished [illegible], when a chorus of contending voices from [illegible] of the [illegible] assailed his ears.

"For the love of [illegible]," [illegible] at the untoward sounds [illegible], "I [illegible] the musical numbers in this cabaret!"

Bull-Bull, who sat opposite the Prince and in full view of the rumpus, suppressed a smile.

"It is no musical number, O Prince," he explained, "but a fracas at the door."

The Prince then began to show some concern in the uproar, and sent Bull-Bull to investigate. Bull-Bull returned with the information that they were attempting to eject a rusty beggar, who kept affirming his intention to enter as a guest.

The novelty of the situation interested the Prince, and he arose from his seat. His personal intercession brought peace once more to the Caravansary, and victory to the seedy mendicant whom the Prince now led to his own table. The spectacle afforded no little amusement for the diners, but failed to embarrass the mendicant, who met their insolent glances with an offer to burn money under their very noses and buy wine for the multitude.

When the Prince had comforted his strange guest with a glass of wine, he requested him to establish his identity. For here was a man, either a beggar who came as a guest in a Caravansary, or a guest in the guise of a beggar. Either character bore promise of an interesting story.

"I am indeed a beggar," said the man, "and have been as poor as a duck in a desert. Poverty with me was almost a talent. But to-day good fortune overtook me, and I struck it rich."

The Prince settled back in his seat in a listening attitude and heard to his great astonishment

THE BEGGAR'S STORY.

I have been a beggar from my early [illegible] and many years ago acquired great proficiency in my calling. As in every other profession, there is an art in begging, based upon an understanding of human nature. A successful beggar understands faces and facial expressions as a mariner reads the compass. And in these days, when the profession is overcrowded with bunglers of all sorts, and everyone is suspicious of the mendicant class, it takes an artist to get [illegible] body and soul together.

And with all my skill I have [illegible] times when labor alone stood between me and starvation [illegible] hewer of wood and a drawer of water. I have lulled a [illegible] infant to sleep for a full breakfast; I have administered to a pet dog his daily bath for bed and board, and have even sought out and brought home to a wrathful wife her inebriated husband, for a snack of supper.

But to-day my duties were strangest of all when the hand of Fortune directed me to the door of a fine mansion. There a harsh servant was about to turn me off the premises, when a beautiful lady appeared, ordered that I be fed with a free hand, and seeing the sad state of the garments I wore, gave me these to don in place of them. At the same time she assured me that her husband would never miss them from his extensive wardrobe. May this be so, and may he never miss what I found later on in one of the pockets, an ample purse, snug with sequins.

And this was a windfall indeed, for I labored not at all. All that was required of me was an audience. I was seated comfortably and for an hour the lady read to me. Twice I fell asleep, it is true, only to be aroused by an attending servant. But this you will readily understand when I tell you that I was compelled to listen to no less a subject than "The Higher Feminism," an original composition.

The Prince sat upright with a start. Then leaning across the table he quickly examined the garments the beggar wore. His suspicions were verified. Gone were the winnings of the [illegible]. At arm's reach were his sequins, yet beyond recovery. He could [illegible] ownership of the purse, but to establish his claim would involve him in difficulties with the Princess, such as he wished to avoid.

With a great effort he managed to control his expression. Then he thought of something and asked with an artful smile if nothing else of value were found in the pockets.

"Only this," answered the man, drawing forth a portrait of a lady. "Guess I'll send it back."

"No, no!" cried the Prince, with more excitement than he cared to betray, as he snatched the portrait from the beggar's hand and left in its place a sequin. "[illegible] never miss that!"

As Bull-Bull caught a glimpse of the portrait, he turned his face aside to conceal a smile that might offend his master. For the portrait was NOT that of the Princess Nifti.

Of the loss of his sequins the Prince spoke only once. It was on their way home that evening, when he repeated one of his earlier reflections on garments. "'Tis not the wearing of a garment that is costly; 'twould have been cheaper to have kept it on my back."

Here's Raymond Hitchcock's Funny Curtain Talk

As He Gives It Every Night in "The Beauty Shop."

[illegible] Star Company. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

"Have a Care!" Says the Comedian, "I Come from a Proud Family; We Used to Raise Peacocks."

ISN'T this a darn fool show? Nobody would dare play it but me!

I want you all to know that it takes very little applause to bring me out here before the asbestos. Very little. The drop of a nickel on a pillow would be plentiful, or the mere whisper of Hughey Jennings Bryan on a grapejuice bat.

But one can account for all things in a human way, can't one? I mean that it is human nature to do what one is least qualified to do. I'm always willing to speak.

I notice several parties pointing their fans and microscopes at my various raiment. Well, I'm not ashamed at any fraction of this garb. The vest is made from the upholstery off the back of a chair some queen sat in, and the trousers are fashioned out of a blanket my pet zebra used to wear.

I'm sure you must all be very anxious to hear the [illegible] edicts on the income tax law, what with its [illegible] penalties and general venom. Inasmuch [illegible] everybody who makes anywhere from $1 to $3,000 [illegible] annum is considered a good citizen, and anybody making over that amount is regarded as a suspicious character, it has been found expedient — let's see, where was I?—oh, yes; well, the moral is, anyhow, don't make over three [illegible] because you can't have it.

This law was gotten up by the Democrats to annoy the Republicans. Here's the system. I've worked it all out by algebra, thence on to thermometry, thence to bacteriology, and deriving the final answer by differential calculus's artful aid.

You put down the amount you make, less the graft, see; substract your board bill, add in the number of your house and street [illegible], multiply by six, plus the date times the year, and the answer you get is the amount you pay in to the government or go to jail.

Next we will take a special case where a man is making four thou a year, and is married to a blonde girl with one child. Of course the government realizes that it costs something to keep your wife a blonde for a whole year, and it allows a little for that. Then, obviously, a child is liable to happen to any couple, and there is a reduction for that.

But in the case of a second child—ah-h! That's where the complications begin to [illegible] one. That's where you begin to multiply. You must add on the age, weight and color of the child, multiply by the hour plus the day of its birth, and subtract two, to allow for error.

By this process, it works out that the same man, to be guilty of nine children, would lose all his salary and owe the government two-ninety-eight to boot. In that case, however, I understand that there is a rebate of six dollars, which the man may blow as he pleases during the ensuing year.

I trust that this I. T. law is all clear to you now.

I've decided to run for President in 1916. I'll be out of work then so I thought I'd run. Teddy will also be out of work and he's going to run with me. He met me on a well known street in South America the other day and said:

"Hello, Hitchy-koo. I hear you're going to run for President."

"Why, yes, The," I said, "I've been thinking I'd do a Marathon for the White House if my wind holds out."

"Well," said The, "come along and I'll be Vice-President with me."

"Now, Dory," I replied, "you know I'd love to, but do you think Bryan would be willing?"

Then Teddy said, "Why, I wrote to Bill yesterday about that, and he replied he didn't care. Said he was going to run anyway."

Of course, now you all understand this is confidential. The Colonel doesn't want me to say this. But he's down in Brazil shooting nuts, and I'm up here on Broadway.

We'd be an efficient pair down in Washington. We're so alike in our tastes and hobbies. We'd go out hunting together. Roosy loves hunting as well as I do. Incidentally, I wonder that Teddy's family always stands for that hunting gag of his.

Anyhow, The and I would run something more than a matrimonial bureau at the White House, which is more than can be said for a certain party at present. I hear now they're going to marry Wilson's third daughter to Huerta. Just as if marriage ever stopped hostilities! That's where they begin!

I must congratulate myself on having been able to get back near the wings of the stage again. A great many fellows who have braved the audience from the centre of the stage never lived to get back.

I'm very glad you've enjoyed our humble efforts to entertain you. What I mean is, I hope you've enjoyed it, of course. And of course, I'll admit our play is a little highbrow, but then we feel that it is really a step in the right direction. It is a play with a distinct moral and the moral is: Come Again.

Old Man Kismet, or old Mrs. Fate, or whoever or whatever you wish to call it, is sure some joker. Now surgeons are to operate on the suffragette who recently slashed that remarkable painting "Venus."
She may know how it feels to be slashed, but from pictures of her printed in London papers, she'll never know how it feels to be a Venus.

There's a movement in Washington to start a nation-wide probing of the feeble-minded.
A lot of us are going to object to this.

Every once in a while some headline writer on a newspaper will try to be funny. Just the other day one of them wrote "Women in the Home." The fakir ought to be fired.

From Spokane, Washington, there came clicking over the wires the information that a young woman threw a stone and killed a cougar.
But the item did not state what the girl was throwing the stone at.

"Caught at Wife's Bedside," says a headline. This referred to the woman's husband.
There's such a thing as getting too familiar.

APRIL 26—Discovery of the Cut Worm by Adam, 1 A. D.

This date the slugs, cut-worms, beetles, wire-worms, plant lice and other insects are beginning to sit up and take notice. Begin preparations this day to exterminate them. To do this, plant three-pound sticks of dynamite six inches apart throughout your garden plot and explode simultaneously by means of electric battery. By doing this and then transforming your garden into a skinned tennis court and getting your vegetables at the market, the little pests will not molest your garden.

APRIL 27—Mohammed, founder of Islam, born at Mecca. Mohammed noted for saying: "He who hoeth in his garden until he hath a can of worms, and then goeth a-fishing and letteth his garden go, is a wise man, verily he is most wise."

Incandescent bulbs planted this date with a view of raising electric currents will not thrive. It is, however, the right time for raising bock. To do this plant a nickel on the counter and, grasping the glass firmly, raise it steadily to the proper altitude and then decant. A new crop of bock may be raised with much pleasure several times daily throughout this season, as long as one plants the required number of nickels.

APRIL 28—Onions discovered by Ugg in the nineteenth year of the Stone Age. Ugg soon after made Chief because he was the strongest man in the camp.

This is the time to look after your vegetable beds. By putting castors under them you can readily wheel them about so they will have the sun all day. Asparagus beds need no white enamel, but strawberry beds need coverlets until the frost is well out of the ground. If your morals are what they should be you will plant Johnny-Jump-Ups and Black-Eyed Susans in separate beds. Arrange for floral pillows to go with each bed.

APRIL 29—Isabella I. was the one who helped establish the noted Spanish Inquisition. This was first started by making victims weed garden plots twelve hours a day until they died in fearful agony before the third day.

About this time begin your plowing or spading. To do this, speak to John, the gardener, about it and go down to Nantasket for a few days until he has finished the work, otherwise, two things will happen, you either will not have your garden spaded or will have a lame back and still not have the garden a quarter spaded.

APRIL 30—Shakespeare started a fine garden out behind his home at Stratford-on-Avon, and then, throwing down his hoe and rake, went in the house and wrote "Much Ado About Nothing."

On this date never fail to remember that birds are a great help to the garden. After scattering all your seeds on the surface for them, go into town and have a hot bird and a cold bot. If you are fond of potato salad, plant grass seed and get you salad at the delicatessen.

MAY 1—Omar invented tents 1291 this date. He was also a celebrated Persian poet and wrote the following well-known verse:

A garden catalogue beneath the bough,
A case of wine, a hammock wide, and thou
Beside me watching our old gardener work,
And gardening were Paradise enow!

Omar got his idea for tents from watching the celebrated tent caterpillar. If there are no tents on your trees, be sure to provide them, otherwise the caterpillars will have no shelter. This is the time to take your rake to the dentist and have its teeth fixed.

MAY 2—Fine day this date according to the almanac. This may be relied upon because the almanac is devised by a stenographer in a patent medicine office who doesn't know how many days there are in a week.

Plant radishes this day. Rule for the amateur gardener is to plant thickly in rows and pull up 98 per cent of them in thinning out. This enables the seed man to advertise, and we need the advertising.

MAY 3—Charles Farrar Browne, better known as "Artemus Ward," America's original "Funny Man," always planted artijokes in his garden. He got his reputation by asking an English lord, while stranded in London, how to get to a restaurant. When directed he asked how to pay for the dinner. The lord thought he was serious and paid for it.

The amateur gardener who plants himself in a chair this date is arranging for the celebrated "has bean." You cannot, however, plant kippered herring and raise a thirst.

MAY 4—General U. S. Grant is noted for saying: "We will fight it out on this line if it takes all Summer." He was referring to chasing the festive cut-worm away from his young tomatoes.

This is the day to weed your garden. To do this cover the garden three feet deep with dry straw saturated with gasoline. Ignite this, and the weeds will be destroyed. To kill slugs, paint the roots and stems of the cabbages with cyanide of potassium. When they eat these they will lose all interest in their meals for an indefinite period.

MAY 5—Franz Karl Achard was noted for discovering that there was sugar in beets.

To raise a crop of beets on "time" plant four beats to the measure, syncopated time. If fungus, or fungi, as the case may be, attacks your rhubarb, take it to the Rockefeller Institute and notify Jawn D. Inasmuch as fungi multiply like interest, he will probably grab it or them. It is not improper to expose fifteen or twenty feet of garden hose at this time, providing the hose does not belong to any members of your family.

MAY 6—Rameses II started an amateur garden, but decided to build a few pyramids because it was easier.

This date sprinkle your strawberry bed with Jamaica ginger to take the kinks out of the vines. Pumpkins planted whole should be inserted in rows more than three inches apart. About this time kick a hole in your neighbor's fence and bait fishhooks with corn. The hens you will catch will bring you more profit than your garden. Set traps for dandelions about this time, varnish the young lettuce to make it waterproof.

May 7—Dreamo, a cave man born 10,000 years ago, invented the art of illustrating. He is responsible for seed catalogues. Washington was inaugurated first President of these ununited States this date 1789. Washington said: "I cannot tell a lie; my garden's a failure."

Now is the time to plant a second crop of lettuce. The cut worms will have ruined the first crop ere this. Kale is also desirable. The variety one gets from the bank is the most satisfactory. About this time pick strawberries. Joe Frutto, the man on the corner, will allow you to pick an entire box for about 45 cents.

THE unknown man walked down the aisle of the smoking car and stopped before a seat where another unknown man sat reading voraciously.

"May I sit by you?" he asekd meekly.

"Certainly," replied the occupant without looking up. "May as well be sociable. Rice is my name."

"And Freeman is mine. May I ask what you are reading?"

"Certainly."

"Well, what are you reading?"

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

"Pure trash, I have my wife's word for it."

"Who's your wife?" inquired the original occupant, beginning to betray signs of interest.

"My wife is Mrs. Freeman," with some sign of pique.

"Never heard of her. Literary shark, is she? My wife's strong for Mrs. Wiggs. You see—er, why, she wrote it."

"My dear sir," shouted the quondam critic, "there seems to be a fatal misunderstanding somewhere. Let me introduce myself again as Mr. Mary E. Wilkins Freeman."

"And I," grinned the man with the book, "am Mr. Alice Caldwell Hegan Rice, of course. Why didn't we do this before. Happy to know you."

CLERK—What is your full name?

B. Lush——By full name is Dennis when wife sees me, but when I'm sober she calls me Birdie.

Tight Titus.

FIRST STUDENT—Titus had a narrow escape last night.

Second Student—Was he hurt?

First Student—No; but he almost used his own "makings" before he saw mine.

Felt Like It.

STRANGER (after being ruthlessly butchered by rural barber for five minutes)—Are you interested in poetry?

Barber (astonished)—No, sir.

Stranger—Indeed. I thought that you might be trying to give an imitation of the "Man with the Hoe."

Entomologic.

LOUD the baby screamed, and louder;
Johnny fed it insect powder,
Answering, scolded, with a shrug,
"Little sister acted bug."

Caesar Was a Roman.

IKEY, JR. (fresh from school)—Fader, ven Caesar won a battle vonce, he chust wrote "veni, vidi, vici," in his message to Rome.

Ikey, Sr.—Ach, such a fool—und he could have sent seven more words for his quarter!

That's When He Studied.

OLD ROUE—Young man, I have graduated from the school of experience.

Young One—From the result, I would be willing to bet that it was a night school.

THE poor ye have always with you—often so close that they touch you.

Trying to Collar a Job.

PROPRIETOR of haberdasher's shop (to applicant)—What experience have you had, my man?

Would-be Clerk—Well, I counted ties all the way from Albany.

The Land of the Spree.

"HOTAIRE was good and well loaded last night."

"Yes; I heard him delivering some reflections about men being free and equal."

"Well, his reflections are on spree and sequel this morning."

All Aboard.

THE Ark was manned and well equipped
And waiting for the tide,
You'd Noah most peculiar crowd
Of creatures were inside.
The social lion had his place,
The deadly bear was there,
The rat was very plainly seen
Beneath the little hare.
The golf lynx and the legal seal
Stood by the hobby horse,
The end-seat-hog was blocking up
The passageway, of course.
The German stag, the Irish bull,
Also the Latin shark,
The sad bird and the gay bird,
The lobster on a lark
The scapegoat and the bookworm
The rabbit a la Wales,
The fire dogs and the night hawk
Were hauling up the sails.

IT is all very well to get a good start, but the start you get when some fool puts his cold hands down your neck may be too good.

Ballads of Broadway: "Hello, Central"---

By Edward Madden, Writer of Song Hits.

"HELLO, Central! Hello, Central!
What kept you so long?
Were you rougeing up a bit,
Or humming some new song?
You ask did I ring the bell?
Oh, Queen of Powder Puffs!
Did I call? Oh, not at all!
Do you wear ear muffs?"

2.

Still I'm waiting! While I'm waiting
Voices strange I hear—
"Darling, my heart's palpitating
Just to have you near."
Love! Adore! Then I get sore,
And holler o'er the wire,
"Don't believe a word he says;
I know him—awful liar!"

3.

"Wire's busy—oh, say, Lizzie,
Wait and see my gown.
Long and clinging—he's still ringing,
Some poor boob uptown.
Hello—well of all the nerve—
He said if he had known
He could walk and reach the Bronx
Before the telephone.

"Hello, hello—yes, what number?
Manager, you say?
Answer, May, and tell that jay
The manager's away.
Should he make another break
And file a new complaint,
Fool him there—we'll both declare
His language made me faint."

5.

"Hello, Central! Hello, Central!
Can't you realize
You can make a man grow foolish,
Even when he's wise?
Do me just one parting favor,
And before I die
Give me the right number once, dear,
Hello—goodby."

SPEAKING of "one-word" plays, how about these?

One word comedy—
LOVE.
One word melodrama—
MORTGAGE.
One word tragedy—
MARRIED.
One word farce—
BRYAN.

The Reason.

CONTRARY to the race suicide tendencies of their cousins in France, the French in Canada are very prolific. Their families frequently run into the teens.

A Canadian and his wife and family appeared on the circus grounds in a small town one day. Their children were really too many to count. The father of the tribe couldn't seem to locate the ticket wagon and asked a bally-hoo artist where it was. The bally-hoo stopped trying to count the children and told him. Then, to satisfy his curiosity he asked the father:

"Say, how many kids have you?"

"Les enfants? Ah, monsieur, we have ze grand fourteen."

"Fourteen? Are all the families as large as that around here?"

"Well, Madame Lebeau zere, she have seventeen; Madame Forchant over zere, she have thirteen; Monsieur et Madame Carron here, oh, about fifteen. Monsieur Parrette, over by ze tent, he have eight."

"Only eight? How's that?"

"Oh, sacre! Parrette, he marry Irish woman."

'Twas Only Eighty-Third.

THEY were on a Broadway car going uptown. She was about eighteen and pretty. He was possibly two years older and was evidently deeply interested in her. One of her little hands rested in his and every now and then he'd give it a squeeze. They seemed to be utterly oblivious to the fact that the rest of the passengers, in their end of the car, were enjoying the little flirtation.

At Eighty-third street the conductor opened the door and looked in. As he did so a portly woman across the aisle from the young couple, said:

"Stop at Eighty-fourth."

Her words brought the girl to a realization that there were others on the car and she jerked her hand away. The young man, however, wasn't to be abashed by a mere dozen people he didn't know. He reached for the hand again.

"What's the matter, Kit?" he said. "We've got four blocks yet."

Overseas Humor.

WE were glancing over London Punch last week (Hoop-la! What did we care if it was Holy Week!) and we are glad that we did glance over London Punch last week, for if we hadn't glanced over London Punch last week we would have missed this joke, which appeared last week in London Punch.

This is the joke:

☞ "Why don't you carry an umbrella?"
"Because it's lent (Lent)."

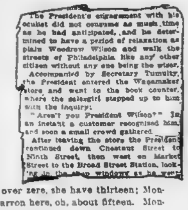
That is exactly the way it appeared—explanation and all—and we wouldn't have missed it for anything. What? Well, why don't you subscribe for it then?

Why Presidents Age Rapidly



The President's engagement with his oculist did not consume as much time as he had anticipated, and he determined to have a period of relaxation as plain Woodrow Wilson and walk the streets of Philadelphia like any other citizen without any one being the wiser.

Accompanied by Secretary Tumulty, the President entered the Wanamaker store and went to the book counter, where the salesgirl stepped up to him with the inquiry:

"Aren't you President Wilson?" In an instant a customer recognized him, and soon a small crowd gathered.

After leaving the store the President continued down Chestnut Street to Ninth Street, then west on Market Street to the Broad Street Station, looking in the shop windows as he went NGTON, Feb. 24.—President on took a long, brisk walk through the snow-covered streets of the capi to-day. Few people recognized him as he swung along rapidly through the crowds on the principal thoroughfares.

On his route back to the White House the President determined to take a short cut through the long corridor of the Interior Department. At the entrance he was confronted with a sign, "No visitors admitted after 2 P. M." When the President opened the door an aged doorkeeper stepped forward and carefully eyeing the intruder finally asked:

"Well, what do you want?"

"I'm Woodrow Wilson," answered the President with a smile.

"Well, well," said the doorkeeper nervously. "I thought your face looked familiar."

His Bit.

THE lecturer raised his voice with emphatic confidence.

"It is my belief, and I venture to assert it," he declared, "that there isn't a man in this audience who has ever done anything to prevent the destruction of our vast forests."

A rather timid, henpecked-looking man quietly arose in the rear of the hall and said:

"I—er—I've shot woodpeckers."

One Ahead of the Magician.

THE town hall of the village was crowded to the doors at an entertainment given by a magician. Some clever tricks were performed.

"I defy any one in this audience," said the magician, "to mention a single action that I can perform with my right hand which I cannot do with my left."

In the silence that followed this dare, a boy at the back of the hall shouted: "Put yer left hand in yer right-hand trousers pocket!"

Next Week's Smile

Here's a Treat for You Readers. Bigger, Brighter (if Possible) Than Ever.

NEXT week's Smile will be packed full of joy.

One story by a new writer deals with the contest of wills between a cave man and a beautiful woman.

The cave man picks up a club and—but we mustn't spoil the story for you.

Order the Smile early and spend the whole day thrilling and throbbing over this wonderful story.

Then there is a whole column of jokes. With each joke is printed a diagram and full instructions so that even a Scotchman cannot fail to get the point. It's a bear!

Did You Know That—

When you lose money, it was an "investment," when you make money it was on a "speculation"?

The Panama Canal is American?

It is easy to take the skin off an orange, but mighty hard to put it on again?

A clam goes around in a rain-proof coat, Winter and Summer?

A cat may look at a king, but it costs money to get a look at four kings?

No Doubt.

SHE—How do you account, Mr. Simple, for the publishers always refusing your articles?

Mr. Simple—Weally, I haven't—er—the ghost of an ideah.

BEARCATS.

TO THE EDITOR—I have spent the last ten years hunting for a bearcat. I have shot dozens of bears and scores of cats, but up to date I have never even seen a bearcat. Where do you think I could find one?

JAMES MURTAGH.

NEITHER DO WE.

TO THE EDITOR—I don't know whether I am insane or not.

ARTHUR EBLING SMITH.

(What of it?—Ed.)

FLOWERS.

TO THE EDITOR — April showers bring May flowers, they say. Where do they bring them? J. T. ROBINSON.

ASTONISHING EXPERIENCE.

TO THE EDITOR—In many ways a recent experience of mine in Brazil is most astonishing.

I was tracking a kuss-kuss through the jungle—the kuss-kuss is easy to track if you have a good ear for profanity—when a large blue curoro flew right across my path. My only hope of escape was to shoot the vicious creature with a poisoned fountain pen, but unfortunately I was all out of pens and had to rely on hitting it with a bottle. As all the bottles were full of cold tea, I had to empty one before striking the curoro. This took up so much time that the bird bit me on the left ankle before I scared it away. My mind has never been the same since.

EVAN EVANS.

STREET BASEBALL.

TO THE EDITOR—Isn't it annoying to be hit in the ear by a baseball as you stroll along the sunny side of the street?

JAMES X. McNAMARA

(Annoying? Decidedly exasperating, we should say: —Ed.)

IN RE CHICAGO.

TO THE EDITOR—Please tell me the easiest way to get to Chicago. Thanking you in advance. ROBERT J. CRIMES.

Bogota.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

To clean cinders, put them in the bath tub.

In papering a wall, be careful to get the right side of the paper on the outside, especially if it is on the inside.

Consumption of gas can be greatly lessened by using electricity all the time.

To peel potatoes properly, have a sharp knife and run it around between the skin and the potato.

Tea leaves are useful things to fall on—they are so soft. This also applies to feather pillows.

Vacuum cleaners should not be used too close to any one who wears a wig.

OUR WEEKLY HEALTH HINT.

When putting your head in a lion's mouth be careful to have no sneeze powder about you.

Ought to Move.

JINKS—Tired of living on mutton and beef? Why don't you have a bit of fowl occasionally?

Binks (absently)—Can't very well; none of my neighbors keeps poultry.

DON'T go away; I'm going to sing a song. If you go now you'll have to walk out; if you wait until after I sing you'll be carried out.

The name of the song I'm going to sing is, "If New York is Sick of Racket is Chicago Illinois?" The words are full of sediment, but I don't think much of the melody; I didn't write it.

Besides being a singer, I'm also an actor. I'm the guy that put the "ham" in Hamlet. Some butcher.

I didn't want to go on the stage in the first place, but my friends egged me on. The audience egged me OFF, in the last place.

I went home this morning all lit up like a church. Sweet vesper bells were ringing in my ears and I was praying that my wife wouldn't wake up. She didn't. She hadn't been asleep!

When I got to the flat I noticed a sign, "Deliver all packages by the rear entrance," and I took mine around the back way.

Somebody had moved the alley while I was away and I had an awful time getting the lay of the land. I caught my chin on a clothes-line and got the lay of the land—on my back—for almost an hour.

However, I finally rose to the occasion and started to go up the fire-escape; but somebody left the first flight of steps off and I fell nearly all the way up.

Then I started back for the front entrance and would have arrived in time; but, unfortunately for me, somebody left the outside cellar door open and I closed the show with a tumbling act. Luckily, I landed in the soft coal—on my head—and it didn't hurt me a bit; but it seemed such a pity to muss the nice clean coal all up.

To make a short story long, by some unforeseen accident, I got to my room.

Wife was there waiting for me with a stovepoker in one hand and Dr. A. Conan Hoyle's "First Aid to the Injured" in the other. I wasn't running for any office, but, right away, I knew I was elected. (Honestly, I was so scared I couldn't run for anything—not even my life!) I knew that in our little domestic card game she held the winning hand (some poker hand!) and knew how to play it; my little four-flush was no good. I should have grabbed the deck and thrown it in the grate to burn and let the boy stand on it!

Then she spoke: "Where has my little pet been and what has he been drinking? Why does he come sneaking in at this hour, in this manner?"

I said: "You didn't expect me to come home headed by a brass-band, did you? I wanted to surprise you, that's all."

She said: "Well, if you wanted to surprise me, why didn't you come home sober?"

I said: "My dear, let me 'splain. I've been sitting up with a sick monk, an' I've been drinkin' s'positively nothin' but benedictine—like any good benedict."

She said: "You've either been to a poultry show or drinking cocktails; here's a feather on your coat."

I said: "Hones', dearie, I fell asleep at the club and dreamed I died and went to Heaven and"——

She said: "The angels must have been moulting. But, what's all this black dirt on your clothes? Looks like coal dust; and, if it is, you haven't been to Heaven!"

I said: "There was a wagon out front and I climbed aboard, thinking it was the water-wagon. It was a coal-wagon instead, and I simply fell into the coal, and if the coal hadn't been soft I might have injured myself."

She said: "You must think I'm soft, too, to believe anything like that," and she gave me another black look to go with the one I already had.

I said: "WOMAN, I wear the pants in THIS house."

She said: "I know you do, but don't forget to take 'em off this time, before you get in bed."

I said: "The only time I'm happy is when I'm intoxicated."

She said: "Yes, but that's no reason why you should be happy all the time."

I said: "I was drunk when I married you."

She said: "I wish I had a good excuse like that."

I said: "I'll get a divorce if you drive me too far."

She said: "I'll only drive you as far as the courthouse; you'll have to walk the rest of the way."

I finally got even with her by becoming angry and crying all over the place!

A man has only two crazy bones—one in each elbow. A woman has a lot of them—mostly in her head.

Any man can be happy if he marries the right woman—but he never does; that's the trouble.

All a woman's got to do to be happy is to marry ANY man—and, right away, she's got as good a husband as can be had—no better.

Give a woman a yard of cloth and enough time and she can make herself a complete wardrobe. Give a man a yard of tripe and not enough time and he can make himself sick for a week.

Ask a man to have a drink and he hears you the first time. Ask a woman to have a drink and she'll say: "Oh, dearest, I ordered drinks of the Captain while you were checking our wraps!" She heard you BEFORE the first time!

A WOMAN thinks she's keeping a secret if she tells it to only one person at a time.

Rita—Vhat for-r you co-ome out on a night so bad? An', if you mus', vidout beeg tick coat?

Tom—I was thinking about something else—about you.

Rita—Me.

Tom—I was praying for you in the twilight—in the evening—in the black and dark night.

Rita—Oh, Meestair Tom!

Tom—I walked and prayed. And in my prayers I felt a little hand here on my arm—it was you.

Rita—Me?

Tom—I saw you—walking by me in the streets—and looking at me out of windows—hundreds of different women, but every one was you—and it began snowing and I thanked God because that would blot you from my sight, but [illegible] snow [illegible] there was a tiny face, your face—and you came—and came and kept on coming—thousands and millions of you—and not one spoke—you all just looked at me as if you wanted something—and suddenly I knew—you were begging me to bring your soul to God before it was too late, and I called to you, I cried out that I would! And then you smiled and vanished—and I came here through the storm.

Rita—You poo-oor, poo-oor boy.

Tom—You understand! As man and woman, we're done with one another. But I am still a minister of God's word and you're still a human being in mortal peril!

Rita—Oh, vhy you co-ome? Vat do you mean?

Tom—And tomorrow you go away. But I have you tonight, and I'll never leave you till you've given me your soul.

Rita—Ah, if you on-lee knew 'ow——

Tom—Ah! Don't you hear it now above us—in this very room?

Rita—Harr vhat?

Tom—The sound of many waters——

Rita—Eh?

Tom—The thunder of an angel's wings——

Rita—I 'ear de vind blow—an' my 'eart-rt beat—dat is all.

Tom—It's here! I feel it. Oh, dear God, you're giving me the strength to conquer her!

Rita—You vant to 'ur-r-t me! Ah, don't 'ur-r-t me—please!

Tom—My dear, I wouldn't hurt you for the world. It's love I'm offering you——

Rita—Love?

Tom—No; wait, my poor child—the love I bring you tonight is God's alone!

Rita—God's lo-ove?

Tom—Yes, His—the mighty tenderness that moves the stars, and understands when little children pray.

Rita—Vhat you mean?

Tom—Little lost soul, I've come to carry you home! Little tired heart, eager for joy, follow me and find it in His arms!

Rita—I don't qvite on'erstan—Meestair Tom—Meestair Tom!

Tom—Open your heart—let God in.

Rita—Don'.

Tom—Ah! you're proud. Well, let me tell you now that unless you repent the day will come when you will be—shattered by His wrath!

Rita—Oh! O! I am afr-r-raid!

Tom—Don't you hear that Great Voice like a light that blinds—I made you keeper of my vineyards. But YOUR own vineyards you have not kept. So you shall be cast into the bottomless pit and the lake of fire.

Rita—Ah, listen, listen! I vant to ma-ake my life all goo-ood—like your-r-s. You don't t'ink God, 'E vill forgive me—no? Ah, foolish vone—'E vill! Did 'E not make my face so men 'ave always lo-ove me—did 'E not put voice 'ere to delight de wor-r-rld? Did 'E not give vone poo-oor leetle girl—who ask 'im not'ings—so much to carr-ee dat she lo-ose' er vay?

Tom—Promise me one thing.

Rita—Vat?

Tom—Swear never to do wrong again.

Rita—Ah, vhy don' you tr-r-rust me—why you doubt me so?

Tom—I remember that you swore before——

Rita—No! No!

Tom—You looked up—just as you're looking now.

Rita—No!

Tom—And you lied—and lied—you lied to me——

Rita—No—don't, please—it is all different now!

Tom—Different? I don't see it—why, it's just the same——

Rita—No! No! I am different—I 'ave change—I am go-oing now to be goo-ood.

Tom—You'll do this—to prove you're sincere?

Rita—I vill do all you vant—ye-es, anyt'ing—on-lee believe or else I die!

Tom—I believe.

Rita—You mean it?

Tom—Yes, God bless you, dear. Good-by. But before I go there was something I wanted to—— What was it? I forget. Oh, yes, your pearls. You left them at the house. I'll put them here.

Rita—Vhat is it?

Tom—That card—Van Tuyl——

Rita—Meestair Van Tuyl—ye-es?

Tom—He's been here—then?

Rita—Si-so——

Tom—Tonight?

Rita—Ye-es.

Tom—When?

Rita—Jos' before you co-ome.

Tom—Oh! What a fool I've been! What a fool! What a blind, miserable, wretched fool!

Rita—Vhat you mean? O dea-ar Lor-rorod—vhat you mean?

Tom—Don't try to cheat me any more. While I was tramping through the storm and snow—praying with my whole heart—you were here with him.

Rita—'E co-ohme in kin'-ness, jos' be-cause 'e feel ver' sorr-ee for-r me—an' vhen 'e ask me to go back to 'im, I 'ave r-r-refuse.

Tom—What?

Rita—I 'ave r-re-fuse—you ear me? I 'ave tol' 'im "No!"—an' 'e is a gr-reat beeg man—an' onerstan' an' den I t'ank 'im an' ve say "goo-ood-by."

Tom—Will you dare deny Van Tuyl's your lover?

Rita—Yes! Yes! I do! I do! I 'aabe r-re-fuse 'im an' I tell you vhy! I t'ought it was be-cause I vant so much to be goo-ood! But now I know dat vas all meestake. I br-r-reak vit 'im be-cause I l—ove anodder.

Tom—Who is he?

Rita—You.

Tom—Don't!

Rita—Forgive me.

Tom—Oh, God! Where are you?

Rita—If you don' min', I mus' ask you now to leave me—it is almos' midnight—you 'ave you'r sair-vice in de chur-r-ch an' I myself mus' tr-r-ry to sleep a leetle. Goodby. Vhy you loo-ook at me like dat? Please go 'vay! Go 'vay!

Tom—All right—I'm going—yes—I'm going. But first pray for your soul and your soul's salvation.

Rita—No—go now! I'm in God's 'ands—'E vill take car-re of me—Oh, what you vant?

Tom—Come here—kneel down! There. That's right! Give me your hands.

Rita—Pr-r-ray! Why, don' you pr-ray? Pr-r-ray.

Tom—It's all over—I thought I came here to save you, but I didn't. It was just because I am a man and you're a woman—and I love you, darling—I love you—I love you more than anything in the world.

Rita—Oh!

Tom—We're here—together—and the night is ours——

Rita—No! No!

Tom—It's ours—the whole, long, splendid night—it's ours. I tell you—every marvellous minute——

Rita—Don', please! It is be-cause I lo-ove you——

Tom—Ah! I knew——

Rita—An' so because I lo-ove you I mus sa-ave you fr-rom your-self!

Tom—It's too late.

Rita—No! Listen—please! It is you who 'ave teach me vhat is lo-ove! I 'ave nod-ings, nod'ings—till you show me all!

Tom—Till I——

Rita—To lo-ove a man is to 'elp 'im vhen 'e need 'elp—if it cost your life.

Tom—Oh, darling, you don't really think that's love?

Rita—I know it—now. But, oh, I lear-rn it in such pain an' sor-r-row. Don't take it fr-r-rom me—now dat it is mine!

Tom—Love isn't thinking or forgetting—love's just feeling——

Rita—Don'! You must not talk dat vay.

Tom—I love you!

Rita—Oh, t'ink of dat beeg lake—de lake of fir-re—de smoke an' tor-ment dat you tell me of.

Tom—I know I'm lost—I'm done for—damned forever! But I'll have had this night—so I don't care!

Rita—But I care—I care!

Tom—You won't. Oh, my darling—my darling!

Rita—I am all alone. I have not the strength. I cannot fight you any more—but before it is too late—remember—remember what I have to say. This is the one big moment of my life. The kind of woman I am to be it is for you to say as we stand in this room now. And, oh, Mr. Tom—please let me be good—don't—don't treat me as the others have—don't let me be bad again. You are the man God sent to help the world—I need you—help me. Go away—my heart it will be with you always—I don't care—only let me keep my soul.

APRIL—What It's for and How It Happened

From "Hearst's Magazine"

APRIL was instituted so that the American householder might express his anxiety concerning the welfare of the adjacent coal dealer in a series of hoarse cacchinatory hoots, upon the delivery of which it is his [illegible] to retire to the basement and [illegible] furnace expire with great enthusiasm. Meteorologically the month enjoys [illegible] equal to that displayed by a charity patient [illegible] an old physician [illegible] [illegible] out among the [illegible] holders, made [illegible] at the head of an [illegible] also equally armed with kerosene cans and dynamite cartridges [illegible] the first equal [illegible] livery of which was [illegible] the same [illegible] the arrival [illegible] Ingersoll's works [illegible] theological [illegible].

The period is also vitally important as being the birth month of the w. k. mimeographed Mexican ultimatum, which in [illegible] made [illegible] first firm demand to the cruel usurper for his abdication. This steadfast Administrative policy has been continued bi-weekly ever since and is now regarded as one of the [illegible] pastimes [illegible] Department, sometimes taking the place of the daily [illegible] brass [illegible] despatch [illegible] the Capital indicate [illegible] mimeograph [illegible] a steel [illegible] been suggested for use [illegible] future.

It was [illegible] 1616, that the first [illegible] performance [illegible] "Hamlet" [illegible] relief much thanks, 'tis bitter cold and I am sick at heart." A short time previously he had paid his compliments to the month in which the catastrophe occurred by writing in "Romeo and Juliet" the line, "where well-apparelled April on the heels of Winter treads."

In the United States, April is best known for its intimate association with its first day, known as All Fools' Day. This useful anniversary has many tender reminiscences for the Democratic office seeker who has been promised the postoffice berth of a Republican contemporary, and it has become the custom for this class of individual to paste in his hat a riband bearing the simple legend: "There's one of them born every minute." The day after, he purchases a railroad ticket for home.

During April Pittsburgh newspapers keep standing and ready for use the line reading: "The sun [illegible] for [illegible] and [illegible] minutes at [illegible] to-day." [illegible] papers please copy.

Heard on the Common

Needed a Doctor.

AN old man who looked like a foreigner was walking along a London street playing a concertina that had seen better days. Noticing a brass plate with the words, "Doctor of Music," written under the name on it, he went up to the house and rang the bell. The door was answered by a servant, who asked his business.

"Please," he said, "is the doctor [illegible]"

"[illegible] is it you want?" the [illegible].

"[illegible] pop in an' ax him [illegible] change to mend [illegible]" was [illegible] the reply.

American [illegible] And how much commission [illegible] get?

He Wouldn't Do

"NOW, my friends," said the candidate, making another effort to arouse enthusiasm in his hearers, "what do we need in order to carry this constituency by the biggest majority in its history?"

The response was immediate and enthusiastic.

"Another candidate!" yelled the audience.

Excitement on the Campus Until the Battle End 21 to 15, in Favor of the Younger Girls.

The Wellesley College Juniors yesterday beat the Seniors in an exciting—yes, exciting—game of baseball. The score was—take it from our private adding machine—21 to 15 in favor of the Juniors.

A box score of the game was kept for almost an inning. At that point it expired of delirium tremens. Estimated fatalities, however, were about as follows:

JUNIORS	AB.	R.	SENIORS	AB.	R.
Eleanor Mason, c	7	4	Gladys Gorman, p	6	3
Ruth Hoyt, p	7	4	Marjorie Boynton, 2b	6	1
Harriet Holt, ss	7	3	Catherine Schmidt, c	6	2
Margaret Dawson, lf	7	0	Elizabeth McConaughy, ss	6	1
H. Sleeper, 3b	6	0	Frances Baker, lf	6	0
Miriam Wilkes, cf	6	4	Henrietta Gilmore, 1b	6	2
Carolyn Taylor, 1b	6	2	Marjorie Day, cf	6	0
Margaret Moorehouse, 2b	6	4	Helen Stanberry, rf	6	3
Alice Place, rf	6	2	Anna Rieder, 3b	6	3
Totals	58	21		54	15

The score by innings tells a harrowing story. The Juniors started off with three runs, and the Seniors got two. In the second, each got 2. In the third, the Juniors piled up six, while the Seniors failed to score. In the fourth, the Seniors got one, and in the fifth they got five. That made it 11 to 10 in favor of the Juniors.

In the sixth—marvellous—neither scored.

In the seventh—lucky seventh—the Juniors got one, but the Seniors made 4 and took the lead, 14 to 12.

But their triumph was short lived, for in the eighth, the Juniors made 6, and three more in the ninth, while the Seniors made only one. Final score, 21-15.

Franklin Fette of the Department of Hygiene was umpire, and did his part with discretion and tact. Protests were few. After the smoke of battle had cleared away, Misses Gladys Gorman, Marjorie Boynton, Eleanor Mason, Ruth Hoyt and Harriet Holt were awarded their "W's" for excellence, by Catherine Schmidt, head of the Athletic Association. The rest got their numerals. And everybody went away happy.

C. E. R. WINNER AT DORCHESTER

The Dorchester Driving Club held a card of three fast races at the Franklin Field Speedway Dorchester yesterday afternoon. A large crowd despite the cold wind blowing over the track witnessed the events.

One of the features of the afternoon was the fast pace in which E. F. Powers's pacer, C. E. R., beat out A. S. Gushee's new acquisition, Mona Maid, in two straight heats, the second of which was in 1:06½, fast time for the early season going.

D. M. Spinney's Quo Vadis, won his first race of the season, beating out George M. with O. C. Charles up, and Green Mountain Boy with E. F. Potter at the reins.

The summary:

CLASS A—PACE.

Conroy Wins Golf Honors at Brockton

BROCKTON, April 25.—James Conroy, a veteran golfer, won both the gross and net prizes at the Thorny Lea Club this afternoon with a gross of 80 and a net of 71, being fine scores for so early in the season. Conroy took the gross prize and C. W. Kingman and Charles L. Barry were tied for the net prize. The match was a golf ball sweepstakes. The summary:

James Conroy 80-9-71; C. W. Kingman 90-[illegible]; C. L. Barry 96-24-72; S. W. Goddard 92-[illegible]; George L. T[illegible] 97-22-75; [illegible]; [illegible]; F. H. Wood 103-22-81; [illegible]; A. [illegible] 103-20-83; W. R. Hill 107-24-83; F. H. Thompson 104-20-84; H. C. Low 112-[illegible].

GREATEST YEAR IN GOLF OPENS

Francis Ouimet's Triumph Has Started an Unprecedented Interest in the Game.

By H. P. FARRINGTON.

Unprecedented interest in early golf has marked the opening of the 1914 season. One young golfer in particular is responsible for this.

The win of Francis Ouimet last Fall advertised golf better than any other medium could have done. Moreover, the flavor of international rivalry exerting itself upon the American golfing public and upon Americans who had never witnessed a game in general, stirred up interest.

It was noticeable last Fall when the final rounds of the open championship were played that the galleries which followed the leading players were not made up entirely of those who appreciated the fine points of a scientific game of golf, but many were there because they had read or seen pictures of the game, had seen pictures of crowds following a couple of players, and natural curiosity had led them out to Clyde Park.

BETTER SCORING THIS YEAR.

Yesterday, a week ago yesterday and Patriots' Day found thousands of players "chasing the pill" on the various links in Massachusetts, and better scoring has been done thus far in members' events than at the opening of previous seasons.

The first open competition starts next Wednesday at Wollaston, and it is anticipated that many of the best players in the State will take this opportunity of getting into shape for the Spring season. The event consists of an 18-hole qualification round with match play on the three succeeding days.

As the course at Montclair is laid out over land which is little affected by Winter weather, good scoring is sure to result when the players who have been South, or kept in form by practicing at the indoor golf schools or by getting out to their home courses on favorable days, get together in competitive play.

RECORDS SURE TO GO.

Judging from the elaborate schedules already arranged by most of the Greater Boston clubs and from the waiting lists at all but a very few of the well established clubs it looks as if all records for competitive golf in members' tourneys and open events are sure to be broken this year.

As a general thing golfers have put away their clubs on Thanksgiving Day and not taken them out again until the opening of the season, April 19. This habit is changing. Many players now recognize no closing or opening dates.

For the information of the golfers who follow the open tourneys that mark the week-ends throughout the year a list of dates has been compiled and announced by the Massachusetts Golf Association. The dates also of the important State team matches and championships will be found embodied in the list, which is published in another column.

PEARY AND BEACHEY DIFFER.

While Admiral Peary, as the guest of the Aero Club, said in an after-dinner speech that he had no hesitation in predicting that within a short time aeroplanes would not only cross the Atlantic and fly around the world, but would reach the North Pole across the polar basin, Lincoln Beachey comments on the "across-the-Atlantic" trip with a very decided "not yet!" and somehow one cannot help feeling that Beachey's views are sounder than those of Peary

Lord Northcliffe has offered $50,000 for the first airman to fly across the Atlantic. The Panama-Pacific Exposition has notified the Aero Club that $150,000 in prize money has been placed on deposit for an around-the-world aeroplane race, and that $50,000 has been appropriated to arrange for supply stations 300 miles apart along the route of the proposed flight

DIFFICULTY OF TRANSOCEANIC FLIGHT.

Harry Atwood, another sanguine and practical flyer, speaks confidently about the stability of machines over the ocean, and mentions the great advantage of this flight over land flights in the total lack of dangerous, baffling air currents.

It is his belief that a mile from the coast it will make no difference whether there is no wind or a howling gale. He says the equilibrium of an airship is affected only by the sudden changes in velocity of the wind, and that the most violent extremes over the expanse of a broad surface of water neither build up nor fall off quickly enough to be a serious menace to equilibrium. He speaks principally from his experience over Lake Erie

Continuing further, he admits that there would be some difficulty if the airman were obliged to alight on the water during a big storm when the waves were running high.

Mr Atwood further says the flyer may also encounter widespread fogs; he may be obliged to drop on the ocean and look for a steamer for provisions or fuel supplies, or possibly to make repairs

These latter prospects are not so tempting, and it is certain that if every plan went perfectly, the airman would have to sit for twenty-five hours, driving through daylight and darkness, exposed to the elements and in the constant hypnotic roar of the engine

If he does give way to the drowsiness, which under these conditions would seem wellnigh certain, and fall asleep, the trip will be at an end

CURTISS TO MAKE SOME TRIALS.

Meantime, at St. John's, Newfoundland, this Summer, Glenn Curtiss is going to make some practical tests, in conjunction with the Weather Bureau, on the humidity of the air at an altitude of from five to ten thousand feet, as he finds it is extremely important that there be plenty of moisture in the air at that altitude if the engine is to work properly, since it seems to lose power when the air is dry

Wright agrees with Beachey, and he places definitely the reason in the inability to carry sufficient fuel.

BEWARE OF TOO MUCH REGULATION.

Professor Ehler of the University of Wisconsin, demanding direct faculty control of all athletics, says: "The regulation of intercollegiate athletics must cease to be inactive and must become positive and constructive

"Constructive regulation is based primarily upon a recognition of the nature and function of play as the fundamental determinant in the growth and development of all children and youth in respect to the physical organs and their functions, intelligence and character

"Until this association goes consciously and deliberately to the root of this whole matter and enters upon a constructive campaign to actually carry into effect the resolution and its implications that were unanimously indorsed three years ago, all other efforts to regulate athletics will be largely futile and barren of constructive results."

Three long years and nothing done yet! And boys all over this broad land heedlessly continuing without the control of the faculty to use that "fundamental determinant" play! I wonder what has happened meantime to their "physical organs, functions and intelligence"!

* * * * * *

TOO MUCH CONTROL BY ELDERS.

I apologize to Dr. Ehler. I didn't mean that to sound so critical as it reads. But so far as the play of boys is concerned we are run mad with too much organization and control by the elders, whose viewpoint has changed with years. An English writer tells us so in a dry, but very cage remark

He says: "It is a fearful responsibility to be young, and none can bear it like their elders." "Mea culpa." I, too, have sinned like the good doctor, and so have we all of us!

The boy, too, will know better when he is the doctor's age, but meantime how about the doctor when he was in his teens? Did he then stop at the brink of the stream where he was going to take that forbidden swim to think what would be the "fundamental determinant in respect to his physical organs?"

And, morally, I wonder if he ever "played hookey"

Regulation is good, but young America won't stand for too much of it, and it is better to go slow rather than tie him up until he kicks over the traces in real earnest and becomes a little rebel.

Dean Briggs, in commenting upon the evils besetting our college athletics, says:

"What I have said is an old story, regarded by some persons as that brainless conservatism which would stop an express train by putting a hand on the track, or would pit against the lusty garrulity of athletic youth the futile garrulity of a back number."

Boston Athletic Association Has Inspired the Youths to Successful Rowing—This Year's Regatta 17th Annual Contest

The Boston schoolboy rowing regatta for 1914 promises to eclipse all previous water meetings of Hub youngsters. With the new B. A. A boat house, near Cottage Farm Bridge for a headquarters, with additional coaching and boating facilities, and with the incentive of splendid trophies, the future greats have taken hold better than ever before. Daily the Charles is thickly dotted with spiderlike shells of prospective members of varsity eighths

The big regatta will be held on June 5, a week later than usual. The trial trials will be Thursday and the finals Saturday, two days later. The regular schedule of events will be followed out and in addition the regatta committee will very likely arrange several special races. One of these will see a picked eight from the Boston schools rowing some out of State crew for an interstate trophy

The history of interscholastic rowing in Boston is as interesting as that of any branch of schoolboy sport

STARTED BY MR. WARDWELL.

In looking back, one name stands out very prominently—that of Harold P Wardwell, member of the governing board of the Boston Athletic Association. He it was who conceived and put through the idea that the one way to make the sport popular was to have a wealthy club like the B. A. A. take up the work and see to it that the youngsters had the proper facilities

Back in the old days, it was only the rich student who could try for the crew when he went to college. Without the chance of some sort of training, the new college athlete could hardly hope to go in and make a place on the eight. Only the gilded youth could afford the equipment necessary to such training

It was in 1898 that Mr. Wardwell, always a lover of oarsmanship, proposed that his club take the youngsters in hand and give them all a chance to develop, when they were at the proper age. His plan was heartily favored, and on April 12, 1898, the Boston Interscholastic Association was organized. Since that distant day, the guiding spirit has had the pleasure of watching an ever increasing interest in his favorite sport among the schoolboys.

PRIVATE SCHOOLS FIRST.

For a time, it was only the private schools that took to the game, as most of the public institutions could not see the way clear to provide costly shells for the would-be rowers.

Latterly, however, things have changed, and scarcely a school but has its boats and crew heroes.

On the Charles today, husky bunches of athletes from the High School of Commerce, Boston Latin School, English High, Rindge Technical, Boston College High, Brookline High and Cambridge Latin are working out, not to mention crews from almost all the private schools. Each year, larger and larger numbers of youths report for the practice

Everything possible has been done and is being done by Mr Wardwell and the B A A. The best of coaches are on hand at all times and give the youngsters the benefit of their experience free of charge. Jim Ten Eyck, Ned Hanlan, Frank Greer, Jim Wray, Dick [illegible], Pat Donovan and a host of other noted figures of the scull have given their services and developed many a fine oarsman

The Harvard rowing authorities have also stepped in, given the youngsters use of launches, shells and advice. The Crimson heads realize that the hope of their crews lies in obtaining the right kind of material, with a proper basic training, from the schools

And Boston schoolboys have played their part full well in giving Harvard good oarsmen. No fewer than six members of the "H" crew in 1909 were Boston high school graduates, while the Yale stroke, of the same year, first learned to handle a sweep on the local river

MANAGER BROWN WORKER.

George V. Brown, athletic manager of the B A A., has been, since 1901, the promoter and mainspring of the actual working part of the program. As permanent secretary-treasurer of the Interscholastic Association, he has always handled details for the schoolboys, arranged meetings, outlined regatta plans and cared for the thousand and one things necessary.

He has worked hand and glove with Mr. Wardwell, and has been an almost equally big factor with him in the success of the organization.

He it was who urged the building of the new boathouse, which the youngsters at present enjoy. The club had plenty of boathouse facilities for its own members and the new edifice, which is one of the finest on the river, will be the property—so far as use goes—of the Boston schoolboys as long as they care to avail themselves of it

RINDGE LOOKS STRONG.

Of the crews now on the river Rindge Technical is looming up as a favorite to win first honors in the regatta. Captain Roger Coleman, at stroke; W. Coleman, 3; N. McDonald, 2, and Kalloch, bow, present a good quartet of schoolboy oarsmen. The boys are heavy, have got strength and have had experience in a crew.

The Cambridge Latin and Brookline High crews are showing improvement in every workout and will be dangerous factors

Boston English is turning out a good boat, as is the High School of Commerce and Boston Latin.

Huntington School put a crew on the river for the first time this season and the outfit looks mighty strong. The second also appears very promising

ITHACA, April 25.—Cornell defeated Stevens in lacrosse here this afternoon by the score of 9 to 0, keeping the play in the visitors' territory throughout the game. Danforth, Lawless and Randolph played a brilliant game for the Ithacans, while Dunn did the best work for Stevens.

BOSTON AMERICAN BEAT LYNN FOSSE

Boston Americans once again showed their class by defeating Lynn Fosse 3 goals to 0 in the third round of the State Cup series yesterday at Locust-street grounds. The game was replete with fast, brilliant plays, first one goal and then another being assailed. Fine work by Rourke ended in this player scoring amidst great enthusiasm of the home followers of the Americans. Fosse tried hard to equalize, but could not.

Again Rourke took the agressive and fooling the Fosse defence beat Fletcher for a second time. Lynn Fosse were awarded two penalty kicks, but Price, who took the kicks, failed to score. Americans continued to press and Coy failed to score from a penalty kick. Price played a fine game, showing pretty footwork. Daly was penalized and checked for pulling down Underwood. Excitement at this period was intense. From a cross by Underwood Crawford scored Americans' third goal.

LONDON, April 25.—Burnley won the big English football final here today, defeating the Liverpool team by a score of 1 to 0.

About ninety four thousand people saw the game, which was one of the hardest fought championship matches in the history of English football.

The cup which the winners received as a trophy was presented for the series by King George.

Harvard Lacrosse Team Wins, 8 to 2

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 25.—Harvard's lacrosse team secured an easy victory over the University of Penn here this afternoon, winning by a score of 8 goals to 2. The score at the end of the first half was 3 goals to 2 in favor of the Crimson, which made a spurt in the second half and swamped the Red and Blue.

Gorman, captain of Harvard, and Russell of Penn were hurt in the face in the first half and were forced to quit the game. Gorman wanted to play in the second half, but was too groggy and had to quit. Neither was seriously injured

Yale Soccer Team Wins from Cornell

ITHACA, N. Y., April 25.—Yale won from Cornell at soccer today, 3 to 1, on a field of mud. Cornell got the jump, Lynch scoring the first goal in five minutes. Yale scored in 18 minutes by Clay. In the second half Yale outplayed Cornell and Bright and Tucker scored, the latter from the centre of the field.

Tech Track Tryouts Produce Good Sport

Members of the Tech track squad that were not taken to Bowdoin were tried out for third and fourth entries in the Holy Cross meet next Saturday, in a meet at Tech Field yesterday afternoon. The best contests were between Nye '14 and Wall '15 in the two-mile, and between Pollard '15 and Guerney '15 in the half-mile

Wall and Nye ran together until the last lap when the former jumped his man and opened up a big lead. Pollard made up ten yards and caught Guerney at the tape, making it a dead heat. Brown '16 made the best time in the mile. Zimmele qualified as a quarter-miler in fair time.

ED SMITH'S TALKS ON SPORTS

By ED W. SMITH.

ACCORDING to the latest mails from Australia the recent battle between Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., and Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N J, fought before 12,000 persons in the gigantic stadium at Sydney, N. S. W., almost completely changed the fighting map of that country. It resulted in a number of astonishing things, not the least of which was the dethroning of McGoorty as middleweight king of that land and the "arrival" of Smith as one of the main contenders for the big title. It resulted also in the banishment of Arthur Scott as referee of main events in Australia

IT APPEARS now that McGoorty, careless and shiftless as usual in the matter of conditioning himself for the Smith battle, though he knew that the New Jersey man was one of the toughest of them all to down, did not put up a good battle after the first ten rounds of the twenty had been decided and as a result Smith piled up such a tremendous lead on him that there seemed but one verdict possible under the circumstances. When Referee Scott declared McGoorty the winner there was almost a riot in the big arena

HOOTING and hissing were so terrific and the clamor of the ringsiders so insistent that the management was forced to take a hand to restore order, something that never had happened before in the orderly place

* * *

ONE bookmaker, we are told in one of the stories of the contest, laid 15 to 1 in the sixteenth round that Smith would receive the verdict. The critics of the papers were unanimous in declaring it one of the worst decisions ever rendered in Australia and praise Smith for what they term his "gallant victory"

* * *

THIS isn't the first complaint that has been heard here in America about Scott's work, although it has been generally admitted that he is one of the best in the antipodes. His place was given the day after the McGoorty-Smith bout to Harold Baker. The latter is "Snowy" Baker's brother and a notable Australian athlete with fame almost equal of his blond brother. He is a great swimmer, an excellent boxer and one of the leading football players of the country. His appointment as referee was well received by the public

TOMMY BURNS, former champion of the world, was one of the ringsiders at the battle and dissents from the general verdict. He declares that McGoorty was entitled to every consideration from the fact that he carried the fight to Smith almost all the way and though admitting that Eddie was outpointed, he believes that a large majority of American referees would have declared the affair a draw. Burns says the American viewpoint of boxing is vastly different from the Australian

* * *

HARRY KEESING, who is acting manager of the Stadium in the absence of "Snowy" Baker, decided before the men had left the ring to accept Smith as the real winner of the contest and in consequence Smith was given the Easter Monday encounter with Jimmy Clabby. Inasmuch as no reports of this contest have reached America, it is supposed that Clabby declined the issue without further time, as he must have arrived in Australia but a short time before the day set for the contest

General Electrics Win from Buntings

LOWELL, April 25.—In an overtime game this afternoon on Bunting field, the soccer team of the General Electric Company of Lynn beat the Buntings of Lowell 5 to 1. The game will be protested by the Bunting's. Four of the five points of the General Electric team were made in the overtime. The score:

BAY STATE CLUB PLANS OUTINGS

Committees at Work Arranging for Active Social Season.

By J. C. KERRISON.

Many good times are being planned by the Bay State Automobile Association for the entertainment of its members during the Summer months. The annual outing of the club will be held as usual on June [illegible], and Walter Williams, who is in charge of the arrangements, promises a run that will long be remembered by those participating in the same. The hotel at which the run will end has not been [illegible] upon as yet, but it is understood that some hotel within easy driving distance from Boston will be selected.

One of the features of the outing [illegible] in addition to the annual [illegible] will be an exhibition [illegible] of the young members of the club. At this time the golf [illegible] of the association will be given a chance to show their ability and demonstrate [illegible] to serve [illegible] which will [illegible] the Boston [illegible] dealers [illegible] New York [illegible]. [illegible] captain of the [illegible] golf team, is going ahead with the arrangements for this match, and by the time of the outing next June hopes to have a golf team that will not only do justice to the Bay State Automobile Association, but will bring home the bacon from the big metropolis.

Ralph [illegible], chairman of the entertainment committee, is planning another smoke talk, which he promises will prove of interest not alone to the members of the club, but to the individual motor car owners as well.

Makes Record Run in Dry Motor Car

Having waited several days for the arrival of his Studebaker Six, A. W. Smith of [illegible], Tex., was finally [illegible] by the dealer that his car had just arrived in a shipment from Detroit.

Mr. Smith—an experienced motorist—went to the yards, helped unload [illegible], hastily poured in a couple of gallons of gasoline and a little oil, and started with several friends for San Marcos, where he was due to meet [illegible].

The car [illegible] to run away with [illegible] Mr. Smith let it slip along in lively style, making the twenty-one miles in forty-eight minutes over rather rough road. This pleased Mr. Smith, as the time is the best on record.

At San Marcos the train was reported as two hours late, so Mr. Smith rolled around to a garage and ordered the tanks filled to capacity. When this was done an attendant suggested that the car, being new, might also need water. Much to the amazement of Mr. Smith, the attendant and several bystanders, the water ran straight through the radiator and out at the petcock at the bottom. Investigation showed that the car had not been supplied with a drop of water since the radiator had been drained, prior to the departure from the Studebaker plants in Detroit.

Creates Favorable Talk Everywhere

In speaking of the unusual value offered in the Studebaker "Four," Joseph Donovan, local distributor for this popular priced car, says:

"There are many excellent talking [illegible] four cylinder model [illegible] is creating much favorable comment wherever it has been introduced and it is generally conceded that it is a whole lot of a car for the money.

"As with the Studebaker 'Six' the 'Four' comes fully equipped and ready for immediate service. The equipment includes everything required by the up-to-date motorist including a speedometer. This car is electrically lighted and electrically started and the system used is the Studebaker-Wagner equipment. We are calling particular attention to the mechanical construction of the 'Four' and a distinctive feature of this Studebaker is the full floating rear axle equipment with Timken bearings even to the hubs. This construction is unusual in cars selling anywhere near the price of our four-cylinder model.

"Its low [illegible] consumption reduces the cost of maintenance to a [illegible] and makes an ideal car for the man who wants all the enjoyment of motoring, minus the expense of the heavier cars."

Car Hauls Three Loaded Wagons

"There are other things claiming the attention of the people down on our Southern frontier besides the fall of Torreon and the depredations of the Mexican bandits," states Harry [illegible], vice president and general manager of the Cartercar Company, Pontiac, Mich.

"Down the main street of the little town of Douglas, Ariz., the other day, a procession wended its way.

"Heading the parade was a Model Cartercar, containing five passengers. This car was the new model brought out for the first time this year by our company.

"Drawn by the Cartercar were three big [illegible] wagons loaded high with lumber, the combined weight of which was over twelve tons. Behind came forty other automobiles and men on horseback."

EFFICIENCY OF THE MOTOR TRUCK

Most Practical Test Given Vehicles in Recent Trips.

Had the manufacturers of motor trucks planned a reliability run of the [illegible] power wagons [illegible] practical conditions [illegible] have had a more per[illegible] given to four score or [illegible] vehicles taking [illegible] they journeyed from [illegible] to Boston [illegible] with machines weighing [illegible] for the Textile [illegible] opens tomorrow in [illegible].

[illegible] Campbell, manager of the [illegible] Automobile Show and also [illegible] the Textile Show, was [illegible] surprised at the long [illegible] that pulled up [illegible] during each day [illegible] machines and other [illegible] from Worcester, New [illegible], Worcester, New [illegible] Whitinsville, Mass., [illegible] New Hampshire and Maine [illegible] was [illegible] miles and [illegible] a matter of a few hours [illegible] while a horse-drawn [illegible] the railroads would not have delivered the goods within [illegible] hours from the time they received [illegible].

[illegible] of the motor truck was never so forcefully impressed upon [illegible] Campbell as he [illegible] the rear of Mechanics [illegible] a score of motor trucks [illegible] to unload its tons [illegible] exhibition." For instance [illegible] three trucks here from Worcester. Not one of them have a load less than four tons, yet the trip was made in less than four hours without resorting to only the average speed. Not a single truck in the eighty or more that covered from forty to a hundred miles or more failed to come through without a single mishap and on prompt scheduled time.

A Right to Protest Against Jokers

"Professional chauffeurs have a right to [illegible] up and protest against [illegible] made 'the goat' of the theatrical jokesmith," says Ralph [illegible] Kissel Kar.

"[illegible] from graft to sabotage [illegible] against this [illegible] of men, not [illegible] but none the less [illegible].

"[illegible] is guilty of the practice [illegible] no matter how they get laughs, [illegible] they have harped on the [illegible] because it seems 'to go' with the [illegible].

"I do not believe that there is a class of [illegible] who average better for sobriety, loyalty and honesty [illegible]. They are generally [illegible] know no hours when their services are needed and save their employers expense through their knowledge of cars and their keep. Of course, there are exceptions, as in every class, but the kind I describe is typical."

Returns to Old Custom

Customs come and customs go in the automobile industry as in other avenues of business. When the first Lozier motor was tested out, the insurance laws did not permit the use of gasoline around the factory building at Stamford, and the engine, therefore, had to be run with artificial illuminating gas. This was more than ten years ago and this method of testing engines has not been given much thought since. Recently, however, the Lozier Company has again begun making use of artificial gas, and now all Lozier engines are motor block tested in this way, a device perfected by Mr. F. E. Fox of the Lozier service department having rendered this economically possible. The extreme simplicity of the carburetors used on Lozier cars makes any adjustment other than that which they receive in the road and final test unnecessary.

REDUCTION OF ACCIDENTS.

In London the ratio of fatal accidents to the mileage of motor omnibuses has been reduced one-half since 1912. At a recent general meeting of the London General Omnibus Company a statement presented showed that the ratio of one person killed to every 443,056 miles run by the 'buses in 1912 had been reduced to one fatality in 665,402 miles run during the first six weeks this year.

GOOD ROADS IN GENERAL DEMAND

President Wilson of A. A. A. Is Impressed with Conditions Found.

"After [illegible] trip across the country, which has included talks and conferences with officers and directors of A. A. A. clubs," President Wilson of the A. A. A. said, "I can hardly fail to note the pronounced enthusiasm of men who are laboring for all these things which tend to accelerate the use of the vehicle that now enters into every progressive phase of human existence. In every State visited I found the same demand for highways improvement, the reaching out from market places to outlying farms and the more healthful [illegible] [illegible] in the [illegible] co-operation between communities, town and country, and [illegible] greater understanding between States as to their common needs.

"When it comes to the question of Federal aid to roads betterments, it may be true that the Western States will more thoroughly appreciate that which will come from the central source, [illegible] Eastern common-wealths must keep in mind the plainly [illegible] that the greatest quantity of the country's food stuffs must come from the Prairie States of the section beyond the Mississippi."

Something New in Non-Skid Tire

There are so many kinds and styles of non-skid tires, chains and other devices for use on cars that it would seem that the problem of supplying a non-skid device for motor trucks would be easy.

The "Gripper" non-skid tire protector for motor trucks [illegible] built by the Hift [illegible] Mfg. Co., of Youngstown, Ohio, is the latest device.

It is absolutely unique in construction and application. It consists of a series of steel castings, each of which has a [illegible] V shape tread. This V tread is Harvexized. The steel bars are [illegible] by two steel cables running circumferentially around the tire. The cables are made of plow steel with nineteen wire strand centre [illegible] ample protection against stretching or breakage.

The Gripper is designed to prevent skidding in mud, ice or snow, to provide traction on steep grades and in addition to protect rubber tires and prolong their life.

TURN LIGHTS OFF QUICKLY.

Turn off acetylene lights quickly, do not allow them to die out gradually, or [illegible] deposited in the burners, which will eventually harden and clog up the passages. Especially in generators should the lamps be extinguished quickly. A good [illegible] is to cut off the flow of gas altogether for a moment by pinching the rubber tube, thus extinguishing the flame instead of allowing it to die out slowly after the generator is put out of operation.

How Motor Traffic Is Handled by the London Policemen

Some Useful Hints by the London Commissioner to His Force.

The Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police in London has just been circulating some useful hints regarding the handling of motor traffic in London, in which he tells his force:

"The regulation of traffic so as to prevent obstruction or accident requires tact. Never get flustered or annoyed.

"The rule of the road is that foot passengers keep to the right and all wheeled traffic to the left. When the presence of tram lines does not alter conditions a vehicle overtaking another would ordinarily pass on the right offside.

"To hold back traffic to allow foot passengers or vehicles proceeding in another direction to pass, extend the left arm boldly and horizontally from the shoulder.

"Holding traffic too long must be avoided. A minute or a minute and a half is generally sufficient.

"Always give drivers sufficient warning of your intention to stop the traffic by signalling to the second or third driver approaching you, so as to obviate the necessity of their pulling up short, which is liable to cause collisions.

"Look out for royal carriages, carriages of ambassadors and other privileged persons, royal mail vans, ambulances and fire engines, whose progress must be facilitated.

"Step [illegible] well behind the [illegible] in order to give persons plenty of room to cross the road. To do this, walk in the centre of the road and after giving the signal to the driver you intend to stop allow the other vehicles to proceed. This is a most important rule.

"Do not allow vehicles to stop on crossings or persons to congregate unless they are on the refuges.

"Waiting vehicles must not be allowed to cause obstruction. If necessary, drivers should be directed to wait in side streets or go away until required.

"Slow moving traffic should be directed to keep to the near side as far as possible. If the roadway becomes slippery or dangerous owing to grease from motor vehicles, rain or frost, give information to the local authorities and request that it be sanded by their employees."

New Yorkers need not smile at the [illegible] about the facilitation of the progress of royal carriages as we have our own royalty here in the shape of city employes' cars, who are required to pay little or no heed to traffic regulations.

INCREASE OF ROAD DANGERS

Practice of Roller Skating on Highways Should Cease.

The dangers of intown motor driving have been greatly increased since roller skating on the streets and boulevards has become popular with the young class. Today those who have occasion to use the asphalt and macadam roads in the Back Bay and outlying districts have to use caution to prevent accidents to children who delight in roller skating in the highways. The children in going to and returning from school have recently adopted the roller skating [illegible] and seem unmindful of the great danger of the practice. Not so the motorists.

The practice will continue to increase until the police take action in the matter and prohibit the practice, or perhaps until such time a motorist is charged with manslaughter for running over some child. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of caution, and the practice should cease at once.

Will Drive Under Their Own Numbers

PARIS, France, April 25.—Shattering every precedent in racing history, the Automobile Club of France is granting competition licenses to all Europeans entered in the next Indianapolis 500-mile sweepstakes race. The foreigners, therefore, will compete under their own racing numbers, at the same time preserving those assigned by the speedway, so as to furnish virtually a contest within a contest.

Never before has an American sporting event been honored in so signal a fashion. Heretofore Europeans, in the mistrust for everything trans-Atlantic, have refused to regard Yankee race meets and time trials as worthy of their notice. The victory of Goux in the Indianapolis contest put an entirely different aspect on the situation, however, so that now official recognition has been extended.

WILL DRIVE AN AMERICAN CAR

Teddy Tetzlaff Will Handle a Maxwell in the Big Race.

"Terrible Teddy" Tetzlaff, the [illegible] of the Pacific Coast and the present world's record champion, is to drive a Maxwell.

[illegible] foreign [illegible] has [illegible] to shift his allegiance to [illegible] American car.

[illegible] last [illegible] which Tetzlaff has [illegible] were [illegible] Fiat and the Isotta. Tetzlaff is best known as the winner of the two Santa Monica races, one of which he lowered the world's record by driving the [illegible] at an average of 78.[illegible] miles per hour, a record which stands today after many other [illegible].

This nomination practically completes the personelle of the Maxwell team, which now has two Californians at the wheel, Tetzlaff and Carlson.

The Maxwell will enter three cars and will not have one entered in the name of an individual. Carl G. Fisher, president of the speedway, has advised Morss that this method of entering cars will not avail as long [illegible] three [illegible] teams in the race. In [illegible] of having more than thirty entrants, Mr. Fisher explained that the thirty fastest cars would be the starters.

Pneumatic Tire Record Is Broken

"[illegible] interesting [illegible]," says an official of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, "[illegible] through our factories at Akron [illegible] 62,873 pneumatic tire casings for automobiles [illegible] motorcycles last week, and thus [illegible] the world's record for production [illegible] we ourselves [illegible] formerly made, [illegible] tires themselves [illegible] better tires [illegible] Goodyear ever made before.

"On [illegible] of last week our production [illegible] the [illegible] was [illegible] casings, more than twice as [illegible] as any other single tire factory in the world has ever produced in the same time.

"Let us [illegible] because of our insistence [illegible] quality Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires [illegible] the most expensive in the world to make. We have steadfastly refused to sacrifice quality to expediency [illegible] that [illegible] our sales have grown from [illegible] to $[illegible] in [illegible] years, [illegible] that has [illegible] we shall continue to grow and to please the tire-using public."

Well Pleased with Results

Norman H. Halliday, New England distributor of Marion cars, is more than pleased with the results obtained from his recent announcement. He states a large number of inquiries have been received and the number of sales made goes to prove out his theory that the buying public appreciates the efforts of a dealer who has eliminated to a large extent the excessive overhead expense that competition has forced upon the motor car dealers. By doing this Mr. Halliday claims he has put himself in a position to give the purchaser a [illegible] better trade proposition allowance for his used machine.

Figures Show Size of Motor Industry

Though the figures th[illegible] are impressive, few people who are unfamiliar with the magnitude of the industry can appreciate what an annual production 50,000 automobiles really means. The total makes a fine mouth-filling set of figures to handle, but it is not until a comparison is made with something with which they are familiar that the average layman realizes the vast volume of effort such a business entails. In this respect the monthly car movement report made by the traffic department of the Willys-Overland [illegible] of Toledo, makers of the [illegible] automobile, is an eaught [illegible].

[illegible] figures for March, in which there were twenty-six working [illegible] shows that a total [illegible] of cars incoming [illegible] at the [illegible] average of more [illegible] per day or [illegible] every seven minutes [illegible] day. Of the total [illegible] 748 were [illegible] materials and parts and [illegible] carrying finished [illegible] every part of the [illegible] outlet [illegible] least [illegible] also [illegible] the figures [illegible] well over [illegible] twenty-six days.

TRUCKS FOR STANDARD OIL.

HIGH MORTALITY OF AUTO BILLS

Only Twenty-Three Out of 182 Introduced Have Become Laws.

[illegible] every body interested in automobiles and motor trucks by a report just issued by the [illegible] Association [illegible] status of [illegible] legislation of [illegible] during the [illegible] Winter and Spring.

The Massachusetts session will continue [illegible] or two, and Rhode Island [illegible] month more. The only other [illegible] sessions will be in Georgia [illegible] convene June 24, and in Louisiana [illegible] May 11.

No drastic or very objectionable measure has been enacted in any State, but a number of bills approved by [illegible] motorists have been enacted. Massachusetts, New York and Rhode Island [illegible] adopted laws requiring lights on [illegible] vehicles at night.

Of [illegible] bills, in Kentucky, some [illegible] only one got through. It is a [illegible] measure which, as amended, fixes registration fees for motorcycles at $[illegible], of twenty-five horsepower [illegible] twenty-five to fifty horsepower $[illegible], and of more than fifty horsepower $[illegible].

The Greatest Tire

Yet 16 Makes Now Sell at Higher Prices

We Dropped 28%

In 1913, No-Rim-Cut tire prices dropped 28 per cent. No other tire dropped that much. Our mammoth output and new equipment gave us great advantage. And we pared our average profit last year down to 6½ per cent.

Now 16 makes sell at higher prices. Some up to one-half higher. You can get four Goodyears for the price of three of several rival makes.

Yet All Lack These

Yet all those higher-priced tires lack these four exclusive features:

Our No-Rim-Cut feature, which has ended rim-cutting entirely.

Our "On-Air" cure, which extra process costs us $1,500 daily. It is done to save the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.

Our rubber rivets, hundreds of which we create in each tire before we vulcanize. They are formed at the point where tread separation occurs, and they lessen this danger by 60 per cent.

Our All-Weather tread, double-thick and tough, as flat as a smooth tread, yet presenting to wet roads the deepest, sharpest, most resistless grips.

These features have made No-Rim-Cut tires the most popular tires in the world. They have won, we judge, at least 400,000 users. They have saved tire users many millions of dollars. Yet not a tire sold at higher prices offers you any one of them.

Then Why Over-Pay?

Men are right in seeking the utmost in a tire, whatever the utmost costs. Tires skimped to sell at an underprice are the costliest tires in the long run.

But the evidence is that No-Rim-Cut tires are the best tires built today. And no reasonable reason can be given for a higher price.

Any dealer will supply you Goodyears if you say that you prefer them.

Large Purchase of Motor Trucks

Express Company Places Large Repeat Order with Autocar Co.

The act of the Adams Express Company in purchasing twenty-five more autocar delivery vehicles indicates no loss of confidence by that concern in returning business conditions. When this order is filled Adams Express Company will have 213 autocars, probably the greatest fleet of delivery cars of one make in America.

The success of the Adams Express Company with auto cars dates from the Fall and Winter of 1909 when [illegible] cars were received from the factory at Ardmore. These cars were at once put into commission in various localities and for two years were subjected to close scrutiny under the severest road conditions in both city and suburban work. The result of this long test spoke eloquently for motor delivery.

In 1912 the Adams Express Company purchased sixty-four more autocars, in some localities replacing their entire horse equipment with cars and in others adding cars to their horse equipment in order to reach out for new trade too remote for horses and wagons to handle.

Last year the fleet of delivery cars was swelled by 113 more autocars and the company discontinued the use of horses entirely in its Philadelphia territory. This Spring's order for twenty-five additional cars indicated no falling off in confidence in the autocar as a business getter.

CONVENTION DATE CHANGED.

The date of the Indiana State F. A. M. convention has been changed from the middle of May to June [illegible] and 7. The route of the motorcycle endurance run, which is to be a feature of the meet, has also been changed so that the entire course will be on Indiana soil. The run will be the longest ever staged in the State, covering between [illegible] and 6[illegible] miles.

Half a Million Motor Cars Sold

DETROIT, Mich., April 25.—More than half a million Fords have been built and sold up to date. The five hundred thousand figure was passed about the middle of April. The company's big Highland Park, Mich., factory was speeded up and complete automobiles were being turned out at the rate of more than eleven hundred a day as the half million milestone was left behind. This was but a continuation of the pace set in March when for twenty-six consecutive working days the daily production exceeded eleven hundred cars.

Since 1908 the growth of the company, as indicated by the yearly car sales, has been phenomenal. That year the sales totaled more than six thousand, the next year they jumped to more than eleven thousand, the next year they were more than nineteen thousand, in 1911 they exceeded thirty-seven thousand, in 1912 they were more than seventy-four thousand, and in 1913 they were in excess of one hundred and eighty thousand.

And this year's sales are keeping up to the pace. The Fords built before 1908, those built and sold so far this year, and the total of the sales for the six years given above combine to make a grand total of more than half a million.

Paige Makes Unique Record in California

Mathews Hill at Arcata is famous throughout the countryside as a bugbear to automobilists who travel through that portion of the State. A Paige "36" recently succeeded in climbing the 35 per cent grade to the summit.

There were five in the car at the time of this trial. The grade of this hill is 35 per cent. There have been many cars of different makes that have tried this hill but the Paige is said to be the first and only car to date to make the ascent.

HUNDREDS WANT TO DRIVE RACERS

That there is at least one amateur race driver for every fifty inhabitants in the United States is vouched for by Designer Ray Harroun, who is superintending the construction of three Maxwell cars for the next 500-mile race.

"For the last three weeks my desk has been piled high twice daily with requests for positions on the Maxwell racing team," said Harroun yesterday. "Up to the present nearly a thousand young hopefuls have expressed in writing their desire to pilot one of our cars on Memorial Day. I haven't the slightest doubt that thousands more are suppressing their [illegible] by sheer will power. It's reached a point where I have to devote most of my time answering the applications as I go to [illegible] after handling the three cars."

REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE MARKET OF PAST WEEK

Sales in Suburbs Lead Week of Trading Marked by Increased Activity.

BIG APARTMENT HOUSE SOLD

Suburban trading led the real estate market during the past week, a market which exhibited strong symptoms of activity, growing more pronounced toward the end of the week. Altogether it was one of the best weeks brokers—and particularly suburban brokers—have had in several weeks.

The holiday on Monday afforded opportunity for many people to view suburban dwellings, and brokers were busy conducting prospective purchasers through Boston's suburbs. Hence the large number of sales recorded in the outlying sections of the city.

Last Monday also marked the opening of a large number of tracts of land in and around Boston, and the sale of a goodly number of lots was reported.

FAVORABLE OMEN.

The increased volume of business during the past week, coming at the official opening of the Spring realty season, has been taken by brokers as a favorable omen, and an active market throughout the Spring season is anticipated.

Sales in the down-town section did not show up as well as those in outlying sections, but a number of transfers of fair proportions went to record. Only one transfer of record proportions was reported. This was the five-story apartment house, numbered 56 Fenway, and known as "Fenway-gate," which was sold by Russell G. Fessenden and Frederick Parker, executors and trustees under the will of Henry Bigelow Williams. The name of the purchaser is withheld.

This apartment property is assessed for $304,000, of which $54,000 is apportioned to the 12,000 square feet of land. It contains five suites of seventeen rooms each. These suites are understood to bring the largest rental in the city.

Activity Prevails in Mortgage Market

Easy Financial Conditions Stimulate Mortgage Business.

No perceptible change was apparent in the mortgage market during the past week. Continued easy conditions in the money market, as in previous weeks, resulted in a large total of business for the week.

The feature of the week was the greater amount of money placed in the mortgage market by savings banks of the State, particularly up-State banks. This is in marked contrast to the attitude of the banks last Fall, when very little money was being placed in mortgages by the savings banks of the Commonwealth.

With the greater supply of money in the banks, even co-operative banks, which a few months ago were loaned up, now have money available for realty loans.

The changed attitude of the banks has been followed by similar action on the part of private trustees, who are also in the market for loans with [illegible].

The attitude of public and private investors has [illegible] the result of the [illegible] condition of the stock and bond market, particularly of railroad securities.

Plan Building for Roxbury Boys' Club

With the purchase of a large estate in Roxbury as a site for the new boys' club, for which almost $100,000 was raised recently after an exciting ten days' campaign, plans are being prepared for the structure, which will cost close to $100,000.

The estate purchased is located at Nos. 80 to 86 Dudley street and Nos. 5 and 7 Perkins place. It contains 19,500 square feet of land. There are large single and double-frame dwellings. R. F. Andrews & Co. of No. 2343 Washington street were the brokers in the transaction.

The grantor was George W. Jackson, et al. The Boys' Institute of Industry took title.

It is the intention of the association to use the buildings on the property temporarily. The new structure will be fitted with workshops, lecture and reading rooms and showers.

Open Big Tract of Land in Arlington

Another development in Arlington is being opened up by the W. E. Jewett Land Company of Melrose Highlands, and comprises the old Weir estate on Bow street and the Lennon tract on Park avenue extension, containing about twenty-five acres in all. It is called Highland Park.

This property possesses much natural beauty, has a high elevation and is considered very healthful. It is near the electrics and railroad station. The streets are being built to grade, as approved by the department of public works.

It is Mr. Jewett's intention to have desirable restrictions. The new Summer street boulevard will pass this property.

Build Apartment House in So. Boston

Foundations have been constructed for a brick and stone apartment house to be erected on Bolton street, South Boston, for the United Building and Commercial Company. The structure will be four stories high and will cost $18,000. It will contain six apartments. Plans were drawn by J. M. Parks.

Transfer Estate in West Roxbury

Through the office of Robert Fowler the estate at No. 22 Hewitt road, West Roxbury, has been conveyed by Fred H. Tretheway to Frank A. Lowe. The property consists of a new single-family dwelling and 4,000 square feet of land.

Prepare Plans for Cohasset Hotel

Plans are being drawn for a hotel to be erected by the Cohasset Hotel Company at Kimball's Point, Cohasset. The structure will have 205 rooms, of which 150 will be equipped with salt water shower baths. The corporation behind the venture is capitalized for $400,000.

Draw Plans for West Roxbury Structure

Plans have been drawn for the construction of a block of six stores to be erected at the corner of Centre and Corey streets, West Roxbury, for Frank E. Cruff. The block will be 109 by 36 feet and will be built of brick, stone and wood. J. G. Hutchinson is the architect.

TRANSFER E. BOSTON HOME.

Bagley & Bagley have sold for Sarah L. Scott the estate at No. 34 Falcon street, East Boston, which consists of a two-apartment frame dwelling and 2,625 square feet of land. George P. Clark is the purchaser.

BUILD OFFICE BLOCK.

Work will be commenced soon on a brick store and office block to be erected by the Whittier Real Estate Trust at Nos. 410-412 Massachusetts avenue. The building will have a frontage of thirty-six feet. Plans were drawn by F. A. Norcross.

EXTENDED FIRE LIMITS PUT OFF UNTIL JULY 1ST

Petition of Builders for Delay in Installing New Fire Hazard Law Successful

The new fire limits, as extended by act of the City Council last Fall, which were scheduled to go into effect on Friday, have again been deferred, and will not become operative until July 1. The extended fire limits were originally scheduled to become effective March 1.

The new fire limits take in part of Brighton and other sections of the city. Within these limits only first and second-class structures may be erected.

The date of application of the new limits were deferred upon the petition of a number of builders who had commenced third-class dwelling buildings within the new limits before the enactment of the ordinance, and who would have been unable to complete the structures by the time the bill became operative.

According to the interpretation of the law by the city's legal department, a structure must be entirely completed prior to the time the law goes into effect, or will be torn down. Builders declared that this would have been a hardship, on account of the delay resulting from the severe Winter.

The new fire limits, within which only first and second-class structures may be erected beginning July 1, are as follows:

NEW LIMITS.

All that portion of the city which is included within a line beginning at the intersection of the boundary line between the City of Boston and the cities of Somerville and Everett; thence by the boundary lines between the City of Boston and the cities of Everett and Chelsea to the intersection with the centre line of Trumbull street extended northerly; thence by said centre line of Trumbull street extended, the centre line of Trumbull street and said centre line extended southerly to the Harbor line; thence by said Harbor line to its intersection with the easterly line of Pier No. 5 belonging to the Boston & Albany Railroad Company; thence by a straight line across Boston Harbor to its intersection with the Harbor line at the easterly corner of Pier No. 1 in South Boston; thence by the Harbor line in the northerly, easterly and southerly portions of South Boston to an angle in said Harbor line nearly opposite the intersection of the centre line of Columbia road with the centre line of location of the Old Colony Railroad; thence by a straight line to the said intersection; and by the centre lines of Columbia road, Blue Hill avenue, Seaver street, Columbus avenue, Atherton and Mozart streets, Chestnut avenue, Sheridan, Centre, and Perkins streets, South Huntington avenue, Castleton street and the said centre line of Castleton street extended to the boundary line between the City of Boston and the town of Brookline; thence by said boundary line to a point therein one hundred feet southwest of Washington street in the Brighton district; thence by a line parallel to and one hundred feet southwesterly from the centre line of Washington street to an angle formed by the intersection of said line with the extension of a line parallel to and one hundred feet northwesterly of the centre line of Market street to a point one hundred feet south of the centre line of Western avenue; thence by a line parallel to and one hundred feet south of the centre line of Western avenue and said line extended to a point in the boundary line between the City of Boston and the town of Watertown south of Watertown Bridge, so called; thence by said boundary line and the boundary lines between the cities of Cambridge and Somerville to the point of beginning.

National Banks May Make Realty Loans

Treasury Department Sends Authority for Farm Loans.

Real estate men all over New England are interested in the announcement from the Treasury Department at Washington that national banks members of the new financial system legally may make loans secured by real estate, provided such real estate security is improved farm land unincumbered by a prior lien.

According to the announcement the property must be located in the same Federal reserve district as the bank making the loan; the loan must not exceed fifty per cent. of the actual value of the property and for a period not longer than five years.

Another provision made is that the total of such loans by any bank must not exceed one-third of its time deposits and must in no case exceed one-fourth of the capital and surplus of the bank. Comptroller Williams has sent to each national bank a letter setting out the restrictions under which real estate loans may be made and directing that to each note secured by farm land a certificate be attached stating the facts of the transactions by the officers making the loan.

REALTY EXCHANGE OPPOSES BILLS

Opposition to bills affecting realty interests was registered by the Legislative Committee of the Boston Real Estate Exchange, according to the following statement, issued yesterday by the exchange:

"Bills providing for compensating cities for loss of taxes, on account of the exemption of educational institutions, were opposed by the Legislative Committee of the Boston Real Estate Exchange for the reason that Boston would be obliged to pay a third of such compensation. Leave to withdraw has been reported on House No. 555 on this matter by the Committee on Taxation. Senate No. 59 providing for compulsory insertion of the address of a grantee in deeds was also opposed as unnecessary and inexpedient. Report of leave to withdraw by the Committee on Legal Affairs has been accepted.

"The recommendations of the Homestead Commission that residence districts be defined in cities for protection against unwelcome intrusion of other uses was opposed as far as Boston is concerned as inexpedient for the reason that the constant changes in the evolution of a great city rendered such action inexpedient. The Committee on Social Welfare has reported no legislation necessary on this matter."

Brisk Demand for Lots in Arlington

Many Lots Sold at Arlington Terrace.

The demand for lots at Arlington Terrace has increased with the good weather of the last week. Already eleven lots have been sold, and a number of options on desirable lots have been given. The roads are being rapidly made to the approved grades and a number of houses will soon be built for investment. The approval of Summer street extension by the town will open up a very desirable right of way through the Arlington and Lexington valleys.

Arlington Terrace has over twenty acres of level land free from stones, and has been considered one of the finest market garden farms in Arlington. Three minutes from Massachusetts avenue, with an average elevation of over 200 feet above sea level, it will rapidly be developed into a high class residential section of Arlington [illegible] restricted to one and two family [illegible].

Sales reported this week include: Lot 155 to James W. Wanamaker, 147 Forest street, Arlington; lot 83 to Frank W. Nicholson, 185 Gravelly Creek road, Medford; lot 169 to George M. Bilafer, 22 Grove street place, Arlington; lot 170 to Mary Bilafer, 22 Grove Street place, Arlington; lots 50 and 51 to G. H. Hewitt, 36 Park avenue extension, Arlington, lot 136 to Niles Turner, Somerville, and deeded lots 76 and 77 to S. A. Tornsjo, 1 Rockingham avenue, Malden.

CO-OPERATIVE BANKS MEET REAL NEED OF PUBLIC

For 36 Years Co-operative Banks Aid in Encouraging Public to Save

By ERNEST A. HALE,

Treasurer, Suffolk Co-operative Bank.

For many years there have been forces at work in this State with the direct purpose of encouraging the habits of thrift and saving and of helping the average man and woman to own their home. Today the general public is not entirely familiar with the operation of these organizations, although the co-operative bank has for over thirty-six years been teaching and helping the person of limited means to save money and to acquire his own home.

Organized as they are on a different principle from the other savings institutions, they come in closer contact with their members for many reasons. Usually the local co-operative bank has convenient hours for receiving money and is located near the homes of its members. Any members or shareholders, as they really are, pay their monthly savings at the office of the bank and come in direct touch with the officers who manage it.

These officers are selected by the shareholders, who are, of course, the depositors. The directors are chosen from the men who take an active interest in the affairs of the bank. All the directors serve without compensation, and the only officer who is paid is the treasurer, who must of necessity supervise the clerical work.

PAYMENTS ARE REGULAR

The attractive feature of the co-operative [illegible] receives [illegible] the [illegible] on or before [illegible] institution of [illegible] together with the [illegible] shareholders, makes it possible for the shareholder to receive a larger dividend than he can from any other savings institution and enables the co-operative bank [illegible] per cent. dividends to its shareholders.

The well-managed local banks only invest their money in first mortgages on improved real estate. In nearly every case the house is occupied by the owner. This makes an ideal investment security, as the monthly payments which are made to the bank by the borrower rarely exceed the rent paid for the place, and as the borrower is paying monthly instalments, as it were, against his loan (in reality is paying for enough shares to retire his loan in about twelve years), the bank's security is better each month than it was the previous one.

Under the statute, if there is any surplus of money on hand which cannot be invested in the regular form of mortgages these banks are permitted to invest their money in the same class of securities in which the law permits savings banks to invest, but the demand for first mortgages on homes is always greater than can be handled, so the co-operative banks rarely invest in any other way.

Complaint Declares Company Doing Illegal Banking Business in New York.

STATEMENT OF ATTORNEY

NEW YORK, April 25.—The American Real Estate Company is [illegible] into the limelight in a suit brought in the Supreme Court by Arthur Geissler. Geissler's counsel, Gustav Lange, Jr., in his memorandum of motion, says:

"The complaint embraces two causes of action to recover the total sum of $4,000.06, upon the theory that the certificates or instruments under which the defendant received the moneys of the plaintiff are ultra vires the defendant, inasmuch as it is not a banking corporation nor licensed to do a banking business within the State of New York, in which State said certificates or contracts were made.

"The action is similar to that of Jacobs vs. Monat[illegible] Realty Investing Corporation, which latter company is in the hands of a temporary receiver because of its hopeless insolvency.

"The defences of the American Real Estate Company, in short, are three:

"First—That the defendant was authorized lawfully to do business within the State.

"Second—That the moneys received from the defendant, although received under the contracts [illegible] and described in the complaint, was borrowed as an incident of and for use in its business and that they were necessary for the transaction of its said business.

"Third—That the contracts are Illinois contracts.

"As to the first claim, that the defendant is entitled to do business within the State of New York, it may be said that this may be true, but there was no claim made that it was entitled, or licensed, to do business as a banking corporation within the State of New York, and that is the crux of the situation. This corporation is entitled to do business within the State of New York, it will may be assumed, as a business corporation, but it is not licensed nor authorized to do business in this State as a banking corporation or as an insurance corporation, and this allegation in the complaint nowhere is denied in these defences. The claim, therefore, that the defendant received the certificate authorizing it to do business in this State is not essential.

"The second claim, that the money was borrowed as an incident of the defendant's business and was necessary for the transaction of its business, is also immaterial. It is conceded that the money was received under the terms of the contracts attached to the complaint.

"AGREEMENT CONTROLLING."

"The agreement under which these moneys were received therefore is controlling, and an examination of this contract will show nowhere any statement that it is made in pursuance of the lawful powers of this defendant, to borrow money under Section 6 of the Stock Corporation law (which is [illegible] within which it seeks to bring itself by this allegation), nor is there any allegation that the contract is made as an incident to the defendant's business, or that it is necessary to the prosecution of the defendant's business.

"The contract, of course, cannot be varied or contradicted by parol evidence and, therefore, this alleged oral agreement in the answer, claimed to have been made in the city of Chicago, is not binding and cannot be received, especially in view of the fact that this contract says at the very end of the 'Privileges and Pro[illegible] authority to [illegible] the terms of th[illegible] the company by any [illegible] herein contained [illegible] at means [illegible] the terms of the agreement under which the defendant has received the moneys of the plaintiff are embraced in this agreement. What other purpose could it have and why should the defendant now be permitted to make a new contract between it and the plaintiff after having received his money, and in the face of the express claim made by itself that no person has authority to [illegible] or change the terms of [illegible] or bind the defendant [illegible] statement not contained therein.

"The third claim is also untenable. This contract is [illegible] contract. It was made [illegible] is to be performed [illegible] very first page of [illegible] that the defendant [illegible] plaintiff the sum [illegible] at its office [illegible] New York, and it [illegible] follows.

"In witness whereof, the American Real Estate [illegible] these presents [illegible] by its president [illegible] corporate seal to be [illegible] affixed and attested by its [illegible] or assistant se[illegible] in the City of New York this [illegible] day of February, 1913."

William D. Guthrie, retained as special counsel for the American Real Estate Company [illegible] a most astonishing confession of how this [illegible] for the 20,000 persons [illegible] are investors [illegible] wants it understood that the American Real Estate Company only "borrows" money.

MORAL:

CLEAN-UP AND PAINT-UP

We don't care what the job is, we have the best paint to do it. Look over the following list and see if there is not one or more of the below-mentioned you could improve by giving a coat of BAY STATE PAINT:

House, barn, fence, floor, roof, piazza chair, lawn swing, screen door, window screen, wagon, buggy, flower box, boat, canoe, etc

We have given over sixty years of careful study to making a specially prepared paint for each and every one of the above. If you have anything to paint call on us.

SMOKING ROOM

PRIVATE DECK. IMPERIAL SUITE

Vaterland Displaces Sister Ship, Imperator, as Largest Steamship in the World.

The distinction of being the largest [illegible] the world is now held by the S. S. Vaterland [illegible] the Hamburg-American Line. While closely resembling [illegible] her famous sister ship, the Imperator [illegible] of the [illegible] exceeds her in [illegible] dimensions. The Vaterland measures 950 feet, or [illegible] blocks in length [illegible] has a tonnage [illegible] decorators of [illegible] to design [illegible] place in its [illegible] The Vaterland will [illegible] her maiden trip May 14, arriving on May 21 and [illegible] for Paris, London, Hamburg [illegible]

Every conceivable precaution has been taken in the construction and equipment of the Vaterland to assure [illegible] As in the case of [illegible] has been constructed [illegible] inner skin [illegible] the water line, [illegible] within a ship, [illegible] longitudinal [illegible] rendering [illegible] She carries lifeboats [illegible] to accommodate [illegible]

The woodwork throughout is richly carved, the walls are panelled with rare tapestries and set with statues.

Newspaper Men to Dine on Cleveland

Hamburg-American Liner to End Long Cruise.

What promises to be one of the [illegible] events in steamship circles is an informal banquet to be given by the Hamburg-American Line to the newspaper representatives of Boston next Tuesday evening on board the big liner Cleveland.

A. von Schroeder, the New England representative of the company, will [illegible] host. He will be assisted by Matthew Claussen, advertising manager for the Hamburg-American Line [illegible] the United States.

The palatial steamship Cleveland on which the event will take place, has just ended her eastern cruise half way around the world and back, arriving in New York last Monday and after discharging her passengers and coaling will arrive in Boston in ample time for the occasion.

The Cleveland will be an important addition to Boston service, along with the sister ship, the Cincinnati which is identical in size and tonnage to the Cleveland. In addition to this unsurpassed service, the S. S. Amerika (22,500 tons), the largest steamship ever to enter the Boston port or used in Boston service, will make her [illegible] and special vacation trip June 3, furthering the Hamburg-American Line's slogan, "Sail from Boston."

ROXBURY ESTATE SOLD.

Colonial Line Popular Route

Two Fast Steamers Ply Between Providence and New York.

With its two speedy screw steamers the Concord and Lexington plying between Providence and New York in twelve hours, the Colonial line which is the only independent line between New England and New York is rapidly becoming recognized as the most popular route between those two great centres.

Business men who travel to New York by the Colonial Line steamers have found many [illegible] in the way of comforts [illegible] to commend this route.

Attendants aboard the Colonial line steamers are well trained in the little details of service that add to the pleasure of a journey. It is the intention of the management to provide the best possible passenger service. The Boston [illegible] of the Colonial Line is at No. 232 Washington street.

Poultry Department

I have come to the conclusion that four-fifths of the poultry literature is written by men and women of limited experience. The advice we are getting might be likened to a confusion of tongues. It is seldom that two of the writers agree and even when they do the suggestions do not always fit my conditions.

Will the AMERICAN please give its readers some information regarding the raising of chickens—information from a large, profitable plant where correct methods are in use on a business basis? J. M. R.

The [illegible] Farm offers the following [illegible]

Everything depends on the [illegible] ment of the [illegible] It must develop [illegible] his powers of observation sufficiently [illegible] at once [illegible] changes in the chicks' condition to govern his feed and methods accordingly.

Exercise is essential to their health, and [illegible] method of handling [illegible] make provision for this.

Chicks on range in nature secure a considerable amount of meat [illegible] mash food and green food. These must be supplied in some form under artificial conditions.

It is [illegible] to keep a dry mash before the chicks at all times [illegible] all the [illegible] and the mash [illegible] allowed to [illegible] empty at times [illegible] and the dishes are filled again the chicks [illegible] on it [illegible] to [illegible] hoppers [illegible] is interested to [illegible]

If [illegible] the chicks should be [illegible] for [illegible] a short time. That is they should not [illegible] their fill of it [illegible] continuous [illegible] when the [illegible] it [illegible] also be thoroughly cleaned after each feeding so that they will [illegible] sour and [illegible] food.

SCALD THE DRINKING VESSELS.

Drinking vessels should be cleaned each day and scalded at least once each week. The litter should be cleaned out at the end of the first week, and at least twice each week thereafter. Sanitary conditions have mush to do with the successful rearing of chicks.

It is better to feed small feeds frequently than to feed too much at once. It induces exercise and keeps the chicks more lively. Every particle of food for the chicks should be examined carefully and tested for mustiness, sourness or other unusual or wrong conditions. Every effort to raise chicks is in vain if poor, unwholesome food is given them.

Chicks know when it is feeding time, and irregularity in it disturbs them as well as causing irregular appetites, under-eating at one time and overeating at other times.

Do not try to shirk the responsibility of loss of chicks on to the quality of the stock, because in ninety-nine times out of a hundred the loss is due to some carelessness or oversight or ignorance on the part of the party handling the chicks.

The matter of proper heat is one of greatest importance. It is well understood that either chilling or heating will bring on bowel trouble. One should be extremely careful that the heat is kept well regulated by night as well as by day. In cold climates the difference in temperature from the middle of the day to the middle of the night is considerable and cannot help affecting the temperature of a brooder, consequently the heat under the hover is affected and is liable to go down at night more than one expects. This oftentimes without the knowledge of the operator causes chilling of the chicks and bowel trouble. One's personal feelings should help him govern the heat for the chicks. When the air feels chilly to you it is quite likely to feel so to the chicks oftentimes when the thermometer would not indicate any reason for it. One acustomed to the work can undoubtedly judge of the proper heat by the actions of the chicks.

To our minds there is little danger of having too much heat, as the chicks can get away from it if they need to. We recommend a tempera-

THERE IS ALWAYS SOMETHING WRONG.

First feed whenever the chicks seem to be ready to eat, whenever it is, but in no event too soon. This feed [illegible]

[illegible]

After [illegible] grain [illegible] to feed a [illegible] mash composed of 4 parts corn meal.

[illegible] part b[illegible]
1 part [illegible]
1 part ground oats,
1 part beef scrap.

Feed the mash twice a day, and do not put any in the dish the second time [illegible] first feeding has not been [illegible]

[illegible] variety to the [illegible] desirable feed once [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the same make-up as [illegible] mash for laying hens, or it may [illegible] as a wet mash as we have been [illegible] our hens for the past year. [illegible] experience has shown that the [illegible] will like the wet mash better [illegible] they will do better on it than [illegible] dry mash. Be sure to feed no [illegible] than they will eat up clean in about ten minutes.

Chick food is made up as follows:

8 parts cracked wheat,
8 parts cracked corn (finely cracked),
[illegible]
[illegible] commercial chick food.
[illegible] cracked bone.
[illegible] black measure
All of the measurements by bulk.

When the chicks are put on range it used to be our practice to feed the dry mash and grains in a hopper, but we have had better and more economical results by feeding the grain to them in the grass twice each day and feeding them a wet mash once each day. Either the "dry" or the "wet" way is satisfactory if properly carried out.

We feed our chicks from the start and all through their growth the same kinds of feeds they are to have as matured birds. The feed may be in different form, but it is of the same composition and is fed in the same manner.

The Race of the Laying Hens

In the Storrs contest two Nutmeg pens tied for the first place in the twenty-fourth week of the International Egg Laying Contest at Storrs. Waverly Farm's Barred Rocks from New [illegible] and A. B. Brundage's Rhode Island Reds from Danbury laid [illegible] eggs [illegible] Second place was [illegible] by N. W. Hendryx's White Leghorns from New Haven and Merrythought Farm's Wyandottes from [illegible], each having produced 53 eggs, while D. J. Ryan & Son's White Wyandottes from Bridgeport tied with P. G. Platt's Leghorns from Wallingford, Pa., for third place with 52 eggs to their credit. Close seconds to these were the National Columbian Wyandottes Club, a Massachusetts pen of Rhode Island Reds, a Pennsylvania pen of White Leghorns, a New York pen of Leghorns, a Massachusetts pen of Barred Plymouth Rocks, each having yielded 51 eggs during the week. The total production of all pens was 3,5[illegible] or a loss of 17 eggs as compared with the preceding week.

If You Want Eggs in Summer

Most poultrymen are undoubtedly getting satisfactory egg-yields at this particular season, but it may be a different matter to get Summer eggs, those that are laid in July and August when the days are hot and the poultry yards have become bare.

[illegible] station says it is well for all of those who are keeping hens on [illegible] to plan now for the extra green food they will require to produce the Summer eggs. Lettuce or Swiss chard, [illegible] the latter, will meet all requirements. In planning for the hens, however, the poultrymen must not forget the growing chicks.

The lateness of the Spring has made it necessary to keep many little chicks indoors up to [illegible] Due perhaps partially to lack of mineral matter in their food and to lack of exercise some breeders are now having trouble with [illegible] that is to say, weak legs in their little chicks.

This condition can in almost all cases be corrected by getting the chicks out on the ground so that they can get abundant exercise and will at the same time perhaps pick up enough mineral matter to meet their needs. If sour milk is being used freely for the chicks as it should, the supply of beef scraps should be materially cut down or else the chicks, especially those that have been confined in small quarters, may literally be grown off their feet.

300 LICE Or More on One Hen

is by no means uncommon. No one would expect to fatten a steer with that number of "ticks" sucking his blood, but many expect the old hen to go ahead shelling out eggs while lice and mites are sapping her very life. We have counted over 2000 dead lice under a row of ten hens, on a roost board painted the night before with Lee's Lice Killer. This great killer does double duty—contact kills mites, lice, bedbugs, etc. about the roosts; the vapor kills lice on the chickens sitting over it. Put up only in airtight cans. GOVERNOR WALSH TO VIEW PARADE OF SUFFRAGISTS

Big Demonstration to Be Held in Behalf of the "Cause" on Saturday.

The headquarters of the Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association is busy with floats, costumes and sections for the big suffrage parade next Saturday afternoon. That date is set aside all over the country by suffragists as a national suffrage day.

This State will be represented in the parade by more than eighty cities and towns. Many of the State leagues will furnish their own floats.

The parade will form on Beacon street at 4.30 p. m. and will start at 5. Governor Walsh and Mayor Curley will review the women at the State House. Then the parade will go on School, Washington and Eliot streets to [illegible] Boylston and Tremont streets to Tremont Temple. There the suffragists will hold a mass meeting.

The formation of the parade is:

Americans to View Discovery of Swiss

Dr. Stauffacher Checks Foot and Mouth Plague.

PARIS, April 25.—Several scientists and government experts are expected here in the early Summer from America to investigate a remarkable discovery by a Swiss professor, Dr. Stauffacher, which apparently means the extermination of that dread foot-and-mouth disease in animals, so much feared the world over.

For the last year or two foot-and-mouth disease has been a very serious plague in Switzerland, the number of cases in 1913 having amounted to rather more than 69,000, an increase of 43,905, as compared with 1912. Owing to the strict measures of the Veterinary Department, however, the disease is now virtually extinct.

Ambassador Penfield to Get LL. D. Degree

Hobart College Will Honor Him. American Visitors in Vienna.

VIENNA, April 25.—United States Ambassador Frederic C. Penfield was informed this week that Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y., has decided to confer on him the honorary degree of LL. D.

Morris Gest of the David Belasco Company, and Mr. Amberg of New York arrived here this week. They plan to produce several American plays here.

United States Judge and Mrs. C. C. Kohlsaat and daughter of Chicago are passing a few days here. They will leave shortly for Budapest and Munich en route to Hamburg, whence they will sail for home.

Provinces as Dowry for Czar's Daughte

Report Bessarabian Territory to Go with Tatiana.

BUCHAREST, April 25.—If reports circulating in the highest circles prove true, Grand Duchess Tatiana, second daughter of the Czar of Russia, will bring a remarkable dowry when she comes here as the wife of Prince Carol, the Roumanian heir-apparent.

This dowry will be no less than the Bessarabian provinces. They will be ceded back to Roumania by Russia to seal the new entente between the two nations.

COKE PRODUCTION.

The coke output in the Connellsville district decreased 2,[illegible] tons in week ending April 18. The week's production was 334,655 tons, compared with 364,725 tons for the previous week. The price of contract furnace coke remains firm at $2.

MRS. CURTIS APPEALS TO FRIENDS OF SUFFRAGE

PHOTO POTMAN

By Mrs. Frances G. Curtis.

THE suffrage parade of May 2 in Boston will be what all processions have been for ages past, and that is a profession of faith, for what more can man or woman do to show his or her belief in a cause than to take a banner and make a pilgrimage in that belief's honor?

Abraham Flexner recently wrote "Civilization has stripped for a life and death struggle with tuberculosis, alcohol and other plagues. It is on the verge of a similar struggle with the crasser forms of commercialized vice. This will be a contest that will tax the courage, the self denial, the resources of humanity to their utmost."

Anyone in Massachusetts who believes that the women of this country need the modern weapon—the ballot—to help in this struggle of good against evil which is before us, and who remains supinely in her house or someone else's house on May 2nd, will be indeed, in my opinion, apostate in neglecting to do her share to visualize to the public by force of numbers the strength and reality of the suffrage cause.

"Once to every man or nation comes the moment to decide," and I ask all suffragists to decide NOW to help with their presence in our parade.

WAR STRENGTHENS THE ANTI-TOLLS POSITION

By ANDREW R. KELLEY.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—It has [illegible] relief that many members of Congress with a weather eye to the political future have seen the Mexican situation develop to its present acute state. With the attention of the nation attracted towards [illegible] the [illegible] interest in the tolls repeal would greatly lessen.

The reverse has been true. The spirit of patriotism which characterized all of the speeches on the Mexican resolution has been reflected on the Panama Canal question, and the demand for tolls exemption for American ships is increasing rather than diminishing.

At the time of the passage of the repeal bill by the House proponents of the measure prophesied a majority of at least ten in the Senate, and Senate public hearings and the national discussion of the question has caused a change in these same predictions until a margin of five votes or less is all that is claimed.

No Lack of Patriotism.

There is no lack of patriotism in Massachusetts, judging from the number of communications which every member of the delegation has received requesting commissions when the volunteer forces invade Mexico.

There is little prospect of these volunteers being sent to the front just at present, as the administration feels that the regular army is sufficiently large enough to handle the situation. It is the intention to use the volunteer militia as a reserve force with the possibility remote that they will see active service.

However, the requests for commissions pour in upon Congressmen, and they have all been referred to the War Department, where the qualifications and ability of each applicant to command is being thoroughly investigated.

Another Bay State Tribute.

The favorable passage by the committee on judiciary of a federal workingmen's compensation act is another tribute to the progressiveness of Massachusetts legislation.

The bill reported is founded upon the Massachusetts bill which was enacted into law under the first administration of Governor Foss.

The practical and beneficial results of the law as it worked out in the Bay State were told to the committee by Congressman Mitchell, a member of the committee, and he will be one of the leaders in the fight for its passage when debate begins in the House.

Radical Bill of Dietrick.

The latest and most radical pension bill yet introduced in Congress has Congressman Dietrick as the author.

The Dietrick bill provided a pension of $50 per month for those who have been unfortunate enough to lose both arms, both legs, an arm and a leg, complete loss of sight, or other distressing physical disabilities.

"I certainly intend to strive my hardest to see that this bill is enacted into law," says the Cambridge Congressman. "While we are pensioning others, the government has [illegible] recently forgotten all about those who were compelled to go through life with the severest handicap. I propose that we do something to make these unfortunates independent by a fixed income that will offset their [illegible] and at the same [illegible] them for the suffering [illegible] endured."

Delegates Very Well Treated.

No State delegation has been better treated in the matter of committee appointments than that of Massachusetts, and the newest [illegible] of the delegation [illegible] for a most important assignment.

The committee on ways and means will meet tomorrow to decide the question and the race for the committee [illegible] is between Gallivan from the Twelfth Massachusetts and a more experienced member from the Middle West, with the odds strongly in favor of the former.

Not even the President himself [illegible] greater attention when he arose to speak on the Mexican question than did Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, as he took the floor in the upper branch of Congress to discuss the resolution.

Every seat on the floor of the Senate was occupied and the galleries were packed to suffocation. Besides being an able scholar, the senior Senator from Massachusetts is an expert on matters of foreign policy through his long service on the committee on foreign relations.

His auditors hung on every word that was spoken and the effort is considered one of the best which he has made in his long career in the Senate.

Rogers the Only Star in Game.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers was the only one of the Massachusetts delegation to star on the baseball team of the Harvard Club of Washington in the annual game with the Yale Club of Washington, but the alumni of the Cambridge University could put a full-fledged nine in the field from among the Bay State delegation.

Headed by Senator Lodge the Crimson graduates are: Congressmen Gillett, Rogers, Winslow, Gardner, Phelan, Deitrick, Murray, Peters, Gallivan and Thacher. Incidentally, this list includes all three Boston Congressmen.

Congressmen Paige, Gilmore and Greene are the only three of the entire delegation who do not boast college degrees, which speaks well for a university education as a foundation for politics.

Gallivan Boy Had Good Seat.

Eleven-year-old James A. Gallivan, Jr., comfortably seated on the knee of the secretary of War, listened with rapt attention, while President Wilson spoke his earnest words to the Congress.

It was some distinction for a schoolboy and was due to the fact that the children of members are permitted on the floor of the House of Representatives, where young Jim became a strong favorite with the members.

Dwyer Named for Boston Job.

Former District Attorney Michael J. Dwyer [illegible] is reported to be mentioned [illegible] successor to United States [illegible] Attorney French.

While [illegible] looked as though Hugh D. McLellan was certain of appointment, friends of other candidates reported to the Department of Justice that he was an enrolled Republican. Apparently the story was given much weight, for it is understood that his appointment is no longer considered.

Since the appointment has been so long delayed it is now almost certain that there will be nobody named to succeed French until after the next Congressional elections.

Big Demand for Seeds Made.

Congressman Gallivan is finding it an exceedingly difficult task to meet the wants of his constituency as expressed in the demand for government seeds.

Necessarily the demand exceeds the supply in almost every district, but in the [illegible] this is particularly true, since the South Boston Congressman did not arrive in time to get the quota alloted to each member. [illegible] the law the [illegible] must [illegible] for by [illegible] and the new [illegible] was not [illegible] until after [illegible] his share in the [illegible] distribution reverted [illegible] to the Department of Agriculture.

BUILDING IN CANADA.

That building has increased in Canada is shown by the fact that in 1912 the Dominion consumed 1,434,413 barrels of imported Portland cement, an amount larger than total importations of the three preceding years. In the same year there was an increase of approximately 1,470,000 barrels in consumption of domestic cement.

COTTON EXPORTS.

Exports of cotton since September 1 in round numbers total 8,000,000 bales, for which the country has been given an international credit amounting to $520,000,000. This compares very favorably with the movement a year ago when exports were about 500,000 bales less and were valued at $450,000,000.

'TEXTILE WEEK' TO OPEN TOMORROW AT BIG EXHIBIT

Delegates from United States, Canada and England to Gather in Mechanics Building.

Thousands of high officials in the textile industry are headed towards Boston, journeying from every mill section in this country, Canada and England, to take part in the observance of "Textile Week." It will be the greatest gathering of mill owners, agents, treasurers, superintendents and other officials in the United States.

"Textile Week" will officially open tomorrow at 3 p. m., when the doors of Mechanics Building are opened upon the Fourth National Textile Exhibition. It will be the largest and most comprehensive display of textile machinery, accessories and power equipment ever gathered together in the world. The exhibit is so great and complete that thousands of men will make the journey to inspect the wonderful array of machines.

Tomorrow morning several hundred members of the Southern Textile Association are due in Boston. The southerners left Charlotte, N. C., yesterday morning. The majority of them will come from the Carolinas and Georgia, although every cotton State in the south will be represented. The Southern Textile Asociation will not have any formal exercises. With them the visit is strictly one of education. Tuesday has been set apart as "Southern Textile Day."

The convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, which will be in session in Paul Revere Hall on Wednesday and Thursday, will be the big event of the week. Governor Walsh will make an address of welcome, and the response will be by R. M. Miller, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK.

The associations and the date they will be guests of the New England Association of Commercial Engineers are: Monday, American Society of Mechanical Engineers; Tuesday, Blue Room Club; Wednesday, the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers; Thursday, National Association of Stationary Engineers; Friday, Commercial Engineers; Saturday, Master Mechanics Association.

"Overseers Day" will be on the last day of the show, when the National Association of Woolen and Worsted Overseers will hold its annual meeting in Paul Revere Hall. Friday will be opened as "Lowell Day," by the graduates of the Lowell Textile School, which will be one of the three textile schools that will have an exhibit.

At the opening exercises, President Edward Farnham Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills, will address the members. William M. Stewart, chief statistician for manufacturers, United States Bureau of Census, Washington, will read a paper on "Why does the Federal government take a census of cotton manufactures for 1914?"

Former Mayor Fitzgerald will talk on the "Export Side of the Textile Industry," at the afternoon session. John S. Lawrence of Boston will read a paper on "Efficiency and Cost of Doing Business;" Ralph M. Odell, commercial agent, Department of Commerce, Washington, will discuss "Opportunities for African Commerce in American Cotton Textiles," Professor William L. Puffer, Boston, will read a paper on "Electric Power Contracts," and E. Howard Bennett of the American Wool and Cotton Reporter, will discuss "Textile Credits."

CONE TO READ PAPER.

Papers will also be read at the Thursday session by Edward K. Cone, president of the New York Cotton Exchange, "Cotton Type Standards;" Louis J. Matos, Ph.D., New York, "Improved Methods in the Handling and Dyeing of Raw Cotton, Yarns and Piece Goods;" Andrew Fisher, Jr., Hyde Park, "Systematic Supervision in Dyeing and Bleaching"; H. A. Burnham, Boston, "Methods of Reducing the Fire Hazards of Cotton Conveyors," Professor William Henry Perkin, Oxford, Eng., "Cost of Permanent Fireproofing of Cotton Goods;" William F. Hunt, New York, "Economy in Handling Material in Cotton Mill Timbers"; Charles C. Phelps, New York, "Use of Compressed Air in Cotton Mills"; G. H. Stickney, vice-president of Illuminating Engineering Society, "Recent Developments in Incandescent Lamps and Their Application to Cotton Mill Lighting" and A. G. Hosmer, Utica, N. Y., "Mill Steam Plant."

The power show in the basement, under the auspices of the New England Association of Commercial Engineers, will be another big feature of the exhibition.

BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL NEWS Edited By Experts

MEXICAN WAR COMPLICATES CRIPPLED BUSINESS SITUATION

Financial Leaders Counsel Extreme Caution as Safeguard Against Demoralization—Heavy Government Borrowing Likely to Tighten Money Rates—Freight Advance and Federal Reserve Board Appointments Would Help.

By B. C. FORBES,
Financial Editor.

After talking confidentially with the most powerful financial and business leaders in this country, I can make this statement:

B C FORBES

1—Extreme caution is counselled.

2—A general and horrifying war with Mexico is believed inevitable.

3—The effect upon investments, upon general trade and upon social conditions is expected to be very depressing, not to say demoralizing.

4—The purchase of speculative and semi-speculative stocks is not recommended, despite the relatively low quotations now ruling.

5—Heavy government borrowing for war purposes may tighten money rates.

6—The inexplicable scramble for gold by France, Russia and Germany is in danger of draining the United States of millions of gold.

7—President Wilson is urged to appoint the Federal Reserve Board without delay and to expedite the establishment of the new banking system so as to facilitate the handling of financial problems.

8—An announcement that the administration will postpone anti-business legislation would help materially.

9—Rumblings in the labor world—the more radical sections of it—are causing uneasiness.

10—Even a favorable freight rate decision, it is now feared, may not prove equal to saving numbers of weak railroads from bankruptcy if conditions do not improve more rapidly than is anticipated.

11—Tariff effects are only beginning to be felt; widespread complications from this cause are believed certain.

12—European holders of American securities have begun to sell out on a large scale, and this may aggravate the whole position here.

After listening to an analysis of the situation along the lines of the foregoing, I remarked to one of America's best-known financiers and railroad directors.

"I hate to have to croak so much."

"But haven't you been right?" he flashed back.

That may be true, yet at any time during these many months I have been trying to show unpleasant conditions and possibilities, I would have been very willing, for the sake of the army of idle workmen, the thousands of hunger-stricken homes and the unnumbered hosts of suffering investors, to have been proved a false phophet.

However, I cannot but feel that the sombre picture drawn above is very nearly true. It has, of course, war as a background. Let the war clouds be lifted miraculously, and the picture would have to be repainted, in much brighter colors.

The present outlook is that the United States, having put its hand to the plough, will not be able to draw back. The furrow threatens to be as bloody as any in modern history.

Temporizing with one set of rebels while slaughtering another is merely an effort to ride two horses galloping in opposite directions. The moment movement starts, the rider hits the ground.

Therefore, bewail war, the devil's bedlam, as we may; shrink from the thought of incalculable bloodshed, as we must—the facts must be faced.

And all the facts at this instant point to a general invasion of Mexico, a sanguinary struggle against the whole republic, protracted guerilla warfare for many months and perhaps several years, and, in the end, some form of American overlordship of Mexico.

Invading a country may be likened to the snake that put his head through a narrow fence and swallowed a rabbit. It found it could not draw its head back again.

And so it may be with America and Mexico.

Now, war often causes sudden activity of trade. There is an abnormal demand for grain, for canned foodstuffs, for cotton, for certain kinds of clothing, for leather, for freights, for horses, for fodder, for medicines, to say nothing of arms and ammunition. Then, too, war temporarily relieves the problem of the unemployed.

But all these developments are of passing efficacy. A trade boom inflated by war brings an inevitable reaction, sometimes a violent collapse, although not always immediately.

Nor can war prove helpful to investments. War entails destruction of tangible wealth, and investments are based on wealth. War also interferes with the production of life's necessaries.

Hence, interest rates are liable to rise and the price of securities (except those directly blown up by the war) is likely to fall.

The imposition of onerous war taxes on various forms of business and on commodities likewise bears upon citizens.

There is a disposition, I note, to draw comparisons with what happened in 1898. This is not quite wise, for the Spanish fracas was only opera bouffe, not war of the kind we must expect if we undertake the subjugation of Mexico. Despite the difference in the race, a better comparison would be with events in South Africa during the Boer War of 1899-1902.

In concluding this disagreeable narration, let me remark that the outbreak of hostilities finds the security markets in a sold-out instead of a grossly inflated state; that credits have been kept down to a reasonable level by bankers; that the nation is able to absorb any needful amount of war loans, and that the prospects for bountiful harvests could not be brighter.

BIG 1913 PROFITS.

It is expected that the Butte & Superior annual report for 1913 will show net operating profits for the year of almost $1,000,000. It will probably be shown that the concentrates throughout the year averaged close to 50 per cent. zinc, or a little higher. It is stated that the concentrates are now running better than 54 per cent., which is the highest grade that the property has ever produced.

Longs in Wheat Uphold Market

By JOSEPH F. PRITCHARD.

CHICAGO, April 25.—The abnormal strength displayed by the wheat market under the most bearish conditions and circumstances ever known has been the result of strong props which have rested under the May future.

As viewed at a distance and from an impartial standpoint, the longs in May wheat doubtless expect to make some trouble for the shorts before that month has come and gone. There are many in the trade who are complaining of what they call a manipulative market in May wheat. It seems that a goodly number of the cash men have been forced to take off their hedges, and this has meant losses to them.

Crop prospects were never as favorable as they are at the moment. There is hardly any chance of marked deterioration being seen in the Winter wheat belt at this late date, but the Spring wheat may give the bears more or less trouble before it is far enough advanced to be pronounced on an equal footing with that of the Winter wheat plant at the moment.

Cotton Goods Demand Is Light

By EDWARD LOW RANLETT.

NEW YORK, April 25.—There is no buoyancy in the cotton goods division of the dry goods trade. On the contrary, there is a feeling that with the progress of Spring the trade is backward enough in its demand for goods to indicate lack of energy in retail departments and lack of buying power among the people as a whole.

The effect of war with Mexico on cotton goods is not estimated at present to be an important factor, nor is it likely to become so. A qualification of this view may reside in the activity usual in special needs for army and navy supplies, but it should be observed that these needs will only slightly increase on all ready normal necessity. They cannot form the basis of a large increase in spinners' output or a relief against accumulations in other lines by spinners.

STEEL TRADE.

The steel industry is still dull and manufacturers report that rail inquiries are very light. It is now doubted if Eastern roads are granted an increase in freight rates that they will do any heavy ordering before Autumn. But according to the Iron Trade Review, one large concern reports new business in April better than 2 per cent over March and predicts that second quarter business will equal if not exceed first quarter.

Stagnation is reported in the Southern iron market, and there is no improvement in the steel situation there. Present orders would only provide for operation at 60 per cent of capacity.

GRAIN PRICES.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Wheat advanced ⅛ to ¼ today. Corn was up ⅛ to 1⅛c, and oats showed gains of ⅛ to ¼c. Hog products were better. Prices were:

STOCKS LOWER, BUT LOSSES LESS

Americans Firmer in London in Spite of Fears of Stock Exchange Troubles.

By W. H. ROSS.

Stocks were still weak at the end of the week, but they had better support during the final session and declines did not average so much. Foreigners did not resume wholesale liquidation of Americans and less selling of that sort was observed on this side. The comparative firmness of Americans in London was encouraging to bulls, considering that the tone of that market was not good on the whole. It was reported from Vienna there is more hope for the recovery of Emperor Joseph, one of Europe's peace conservators, and this helped sentiment. War between Mexico and the United States was less of an adverse influence at all and the majority of American stocks showed gains at the close. The improvement of Canadian Pacific helped all internationals. The failure of an important London stock exchange house did not have much effect upon stocks at the British capital, but there is fear there will be trouble at the fortnightly settlement which begins on Monday. Continental bourses were not quite so nervous as on the day previous.

The foreign stock market situation served to steady New York, where trading was active from the start. Transactions for the morning totaling nearly 300,000 shares. Although a few issues closed higher, most of them showed losses. Among those to recede the most were Amalgamated, American Beet Sugar, American Car and Foundry, American Smelting, American Tobacco, Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, St. Paul, Chino, General Motor, Louisville & Nashville, Mexican Petroleum, Pressed Steel Car, Utah Copper and Westinghouse. Bethlehem Steel, Canadian Pacific and New Haven gained a point or more. Lehigh Valley was strong. Most speculative leaders declined fractionally on Steel being off ⅛, Reading ⅜, Union Pacific ⅝ and Southern Pacific ⅝. Weakness of many industrials was a discouraging feature.

In Boston coppers continued weak, with Greene-Cananea showing the greatest loss. Its weakness was due to war reports from its property in Mexico. Prices in the local market at the end ranged above the low for the morning. Greene-Cananea sold as low as 21½ against 27 at the Friday finish. It closed Saturday at 24.

Mexican war news seemed to be less of a factor in all stock markets. Some claim that the war is almost discounted, others that there will be another slump next week. Following either view looks like a gamble.

COPPER METAL.

At the end of the week the copper metal market was quiet and it was reported that electrolytic had been sold as low as 14⅛ cents a pound. It will be shipped in June to consumers in the Connecticut Valley. Large selling interests have been asking 14¼ cents a pound in the absence of any buying. Now it is said "producers have withdrawn all prices until demand appears." Export demand has declined and domestic purchasing has been the smallest in years. It is said that some producers have not received an inquiry from abroad for more than a week, while the home market is flat. One of the large brass works has just booked an order with a cartridge manufacturing concern, but at the moment there does not appear to be much new business in sight.

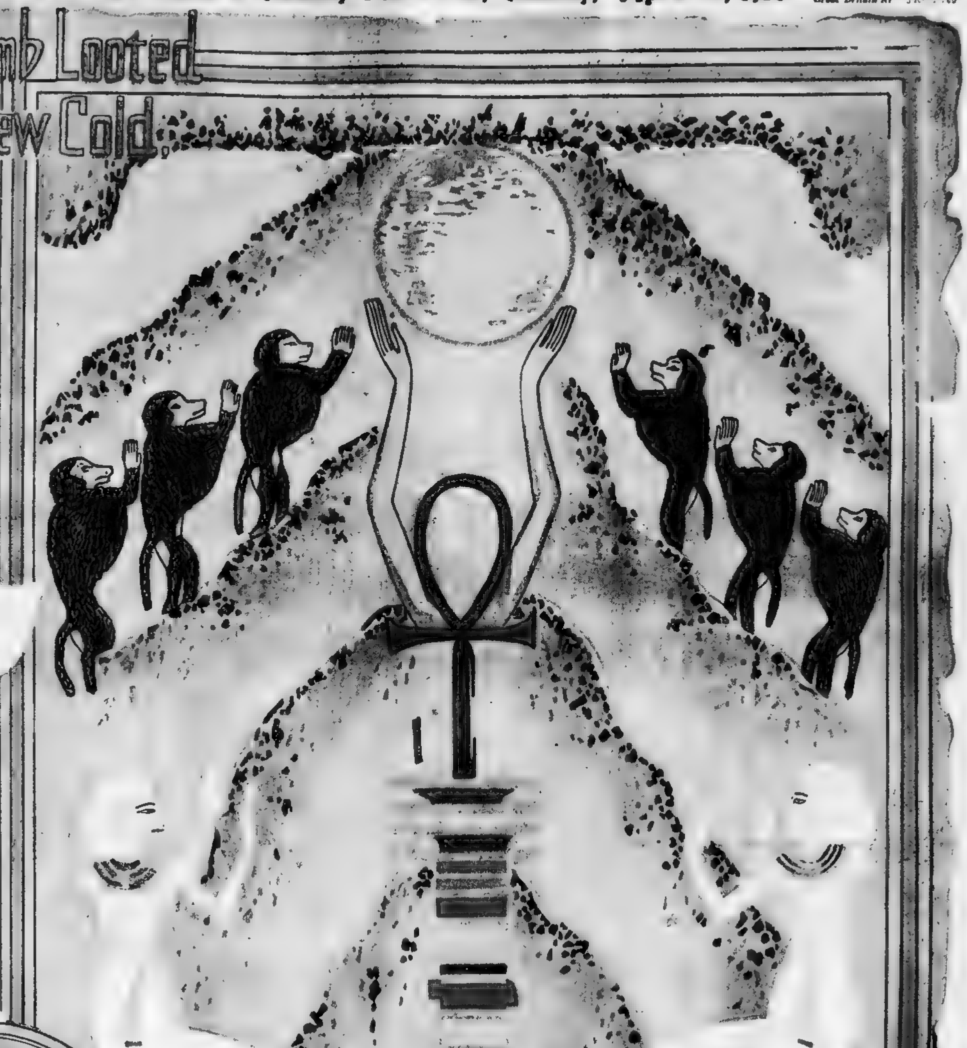
Pharaoh's Tomb Looted Before He Grew Cold

The Oldest Pyramid on Which a Monarch Expended Every Resource to Make it Inviolable, Now Found Stripped of its Wealth by the Very Guardians Trusted to Protect its Sacred Treasures 5000 Years Ago.



The Worship of Ra, the Sun-God, as Depicted Upon a Papyrus Found in the Tomb.

A MOST unexpected shock awaited Professor Flinders-Petrie, the British archaeologist, when he delved, after tremendous labor, into the pyramid tomb of Pharaoh Snefru of Egypt. The Professor found that some one had been there before him—about 4,814 years ago.

Snefru died in 2900 B. C., and almost before he grew cold robbers broke into his tomb. Professor Petrie found that everything of great value had been taken, although many interesting objects remained. The Professor judged that the tomb was robbed immediately after Pharaoh's death, because it was located with peculiar secrecy, and yet the robbers had found a direct way to enter it. It seems probable that it was looted by the guards chosen to protect it.

The pyramid containing the tomb is at Meydum. It is called a "step pyramid," because instead of being a perfect pyramid like the familiar ones of Cheops, its exterior is finished in steps or terraces, reminding us much more of the stage towers of Babylonia than of the later Egyptian pyramids.

This pyramid was built by Snefru. He is regarded as one of the greatest of the early pharaohs. The later ones often compared their prosperity with the wealth of his age. He built vessels one hundred and seventy feet long for traffic and administration upon the Nile: he developed the copper mines in Sinai, leaving a record of his triumphs on the rocks. He erected the fortresses at the Bitter Lakes, in the Isthmus of Suez, and roads and stations in the Delta bore his name 1,500 years after his death.

He was determined that his body should remain untouched safe from all succeeding conquerors or from the thieves of his own age. The ordinary mastaba, or square brick tomb of earlier ages, seemed insecure to this mighty conqueror so he selected limestone as the material out of which his last resting place was to be built. He selected a site near Memphis, and first erected a mastaba of the limestone. Then he enlarged it by building over it seven terraces of stone, the steps of which were to be filled out into the first of the pyramids. It was designed most cunningly, so that after the body was deposited in the tomb-chamber beneath the mastaba there would be no entrance, but a solid mass of rock would bar the ingress of any one trying to force his way to the tomb.

This is the pyramid which Professor Flinders-Petrie has just explored on behalf of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt, with most surprising results. Knowing that this was the oldest of all the pyramids, the explorer had a right to expect that when he had tunnelled into it he would find the body of the pharaoh and treasures of that early Fourth Dynasty such as would astonish the world with their magnificence. But Professor Petrie was the astonished one, for he found that some one had been before him—not a week or a year or a century but very shortly after the burial of Snefru, if the indications which he found were to be believed.

According to the description given by Professor Petrie:

"There was a curious feature about this mastaba in that the chamber was built and the mastaba blocked with its plug stones before the mastaba was heaped up, as there had never been a communication between the chamber and the outside. A short, sloping passage leads upward from the chamber, only to stop short in a small courtyard in the middle of the mastaba, the chip which forms the mastaba lying over it on all sides. It therefore looks as if the owner had died early in its construction, and the piling up of his great mastaba had been the first duty of the pyramid builders.

"When we reached the bottom we found that a wide excavation had been made, in which the chamber and the passages were built. The passage was roofed with very large beams of stone set up on edge. In our work of digging down through the mastaba we had passed the abortive tunnels of thieves, but the successful thief had plundered the tomb before the secret had been forgotten.

"He knew exactly the position of the chamber, and tunnelling from the south end for about twenty yards from the point nearest to the construction, he made straight for the end of the long north and south passage, which he struck unerringly, and forcing out one stone, apparently by means of a charcoal fire, he entered. We found a large quantity of charcoal against the outside of the wall at the end of the tunnel, and the stones in the immediate neighborhood all bore clear traces of fire, being scorched pink and gray.

"The robbers had forced the lid off the sarcophagus and had rolled it back on two mason's mallets. The one still under the lid was as hard as stone from the pressure and the salt with which it was saturated. The lever with which the lid was forced off was found at the north end of the chamber. It is merely an acacia branch about six feet long and about two and a half inches in diameter, sharpened at the end to a chisel edge.

"Unfortunately the thieves had scattered everything. All the vases except one big one were lying in the north and south passages. At the north end of the hall we found a single large vase, several ox bones and four model copper axe heads. In front of the coffin were lying many fragments of gold foil, several copper rods and model chisels.

"In the sarcophagus all was confusion. The body had been broken up and searched in the part exposed by the diagonal rolling off of the lid, and among the human bones which we removed from the sarcophagus were found a portion of a breast bone, the skull and two other pieces of bone of a large bird, perhaps a goose, and part of a skull of a much smaller bird, perhaps a pigeon.

"There was apparently no wooden coffin inside the sarcophagus. The body was buried with a wooden model insignia, consisting of a mace and two crooks. From the thickness of the cloth on the neck the dead man had evidently been restored to his living shape. Skin was plainly observable on the head, as a pale brown parchment on the cheeks and scalp, on which there was a considerable quantity of curly black hair. But the skin had been removed from the brow all around the eyes. There was no trace of the eyes in the eye-sockets, which had been filled level with the eyebrow by a ball of paste.

"The tomb must have stood open for some time after it had been rifled, as the sloughs of two snakes were left here after their owners had cast them and gone away."

No one can tell what the thieves carried away with them so many thousands of years ago, for it must have been at least fifty centuries since this act of robbery was committed, but there must have been jewels, gold and precious ornaments to tempt their cupidity. Fortunately a few of the jewels have been brought to light in some parts of the pyramid not reached by them. These can merely suggest the great mass of valuable and interesting objects that must have been in the great tomb of the pharaoh.

The sarcophagus itself, of red granite, is of very fine workmanship, such as would have been provided for a king alone, and will be treasured as one of the oldest and finest known. The inside of it was hammer-dressed and partially polished, showing where it had been worked with a copper or bronze tool.

What's Wrong With the "GAY WHITE WAYS" of Many Cities

How the Improper Use of Glaring Lights Ruins a Street's Beauty and Hurts Business

By F. Laurent Godinez,
Consulting Expert in Lighting.

THE proper lighting of a city at night involves more than a uniformly lighted street with myriads of dazzling lights distracting the eye. The artistic blending of window, sign and street lights is what distinguishes the lighting of one city as artistic and attractive and another as inartistic and commonplace.

The spirit of the City Beautiful prefers to originate, not imitate, and its lighting is no exception to this rule. It is much more desirable for the visitor to leave your city impressed with the originality of the lighting, rather than to remark, "It's just like our White Way."

This phrase, "White Way," has been adroitly coined as a slogan by manufacturers, whose motive in promulgating "White Ways" is a thoroughly practical one—the sale of glaring lamps, globes and "ornamental" iron posts. It is questionable whether the wholesale adoption of more or less "ornamental" iron columns, topped with lighted glass, by various cities throughout the country can be regarded as a serious and proper expression of the attractive character in public lighting which should be typical of the American city.

Public lighting, like any other form of advertising, must be properly executed in order to possess genuine advertising value, and in lighting, as in any other form of advertising, it is invariably the "something different" which attracts attention and provokes comment—never the ordinary, commonplace thing.

Public impressions of lighting in any form are gleaned by general observations, or such contrasts as force themselves upon one's attention in a passing glance. It is the lighting effect different from the commonplace which always attracts attention. The next time you find yourself pausing to regard a window display, or mayhap the interior of a store, take notice and you will find that something about that store or window was different from all others or it would not have compelled you to stop. Upon investigation you will usually discover that the lighting arrangement is unique—a part of the decoration perhaps—at least different from such globes or shades as are commonly used in that locality.

Let us analyze the ornamental-post type of lighting from several viewpoints, assuming that, regardless of whatever faults or virtues any system of public lighting may possess, it is, of course, necessary to have sufficient light on the street to prevent accident and crime and avoid an impression of gloom.

First, as regards appearance, the most important and most neglected feature of lighting to-day. Irrespective of individual ornament and artistic design, regularly spaced rows of lamp posts with lighted balls atop all look alike to the general public. This is due to the positive and lasting impressions conveyed by general or surface indications. In observing the "White Ways" of cities throughout the country, where the effect is derived from lighted balls on "ornamental" standards, the first impression is of the absolute monotony of such lighting.

One does not notice whether there are two, four or five lighted balls atop the column; neither is the individual decorative treatment of each post impressive. The suggestion is one of sameness and monotony—a lamp post with a cluster of lighted balls, nothing more. In narrow streets this effect, together with impedimenta (such as trolley poles, telegraph poles and lamp posts) has about as much artistic expression as a mammoth picket fence. When clusters of three balls are placed atop a column, the perspective of the street suggests an unlimited number of pawnshop advertisements, and each store becomes to all intents and purposes a pawnbroker's establishment.

The supposition that these rows of lamp posts, with brightly lighted balls atop, constitute an irresistible attraction factor is correct only with reference to localities where the "White Way" and "main street" constitute the sole business district of the town; and even here the attraction, or the startling contrast of a blaze of light where darkness previously was, wears off after the novelty of the thing becomes passe. We have reached a stage of development where it is insulting to a community to urge that they are to be attracted like insects by a blur of light.

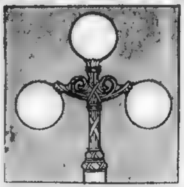
Every city, large or small, has individually different and greatly diversified lighting requirements; hence endless rows of bright lights which reveal everything are not always appropriate.

One of the finest avenues in New York City has ornamental posts which are really almost perfect from a critical, aesthetic viewpoint. The lighting reveals every detail of what might appropriately be termed a Renaissance in modern commercial architecture, yet at night there are no crowds—a vital "something" is lacking.

In the main business thoroughfares of many cities old ramshackle structures, which are veritable eyesores to the community, rub shoulders with attractive examples of modern architecture. Lighting which complimentarily reveals the beauty of such new buildings and uncompromisingly discloses the ugliness and lack of paint of the old is a public injustice to merchants, who, as citizens and taxpayers, are entitled to equal rights in their community. A city has no right to adopt a system of public lighting which discriminates in favor of one merchant against another.

The merchant obliged to sign an unyielding lease to occupy the ground floor of an ugly old structure is not pleased with public lighting which nightly advertises this fact to the public while across the street his competitor in a new, attractive building rejoices.

In some cities street lighting is intended to attract the public to certain commercial districts. In other cities certain streets attract, not by virtue of their miserable lighting arrangements, but just because the name of the street and its fame are widely known. Some cities acquire "White Ways" at this belated day to gain a reputation, while other cities contemplate lighting improvements to sustain one.



"Lamps in clusters of three give a street the air of being devoted entirely to pawnshops."

The important thing to be decided in lighting a city is the adoption of a plan expressive of character, originality, permanency and attraction which will be different from any other city's, and of so artistic and pleasing a nature as to provoke universal enthusiasm and commendation.

The idea of projecting brackets from buildings to support glassware in the form of lighted balls is impracticable. The street brightly lighted above and below is only as attractive by night as it is by day, a fact of peculiar significance when one considers that the friendly mantle of night hides many faults in architecture glaringly conspicuous by day.

The advertising value of the electric sign lies in its function of attracting the eye of the public from a distance. The effectiveness of the sign depends upon contrast, the contrast of the bright lamps against a dark background.

The lights of the White Way posts which generally waste as much light in a direction skyward as they direct downward on the street, destroy the contrast effect of the bright sign letters by making the buildings too bright, as well as by revealing many defects not pleasing to the eye.

One of the most noticeable defects of the ornamental post lighting scheme is that the lights are distraction factors, intruding within the visual field and destroying the pictorial effect and attraction of display window lighting. Besides, they direct so much wasted light against the polished surface of the window glass that the resultant glare prevents one from seeing the arrangement of display within, and the value of the window space to the merchant is thereby destroyed.

Look about you and you will find many excellent window displays literally blotted out by the glare from brightly lighted glass balls atop iron posts.

The possibilities of using light and color in display window lighting are only vaguely comprehended to-day, owing to the general ignorance of artificial light. It is unfortunate that the merchant should be robbed of such attraction as his display window possesses by virtue of mere "brightness" alone, through the effect of incorrect street lighting.

The attainment of character and attraction in city lighting demands that window lighting, sign lighting and street lighting must be reconciled. The possibilities of utilizing light and color in bringing out the architectural expression of a building—perhaps the interior of an arch or the color contrast background of a vestibule against a hanging lantern—are practically unlimited, requiring only the co-operation of men possessing artistic perception, imagination and a higher ideal than the use of light from the utilitarian viewpoint of the engineer.

The City Beautiful represents co-operative effort on the part of individuals. The merchant who tries to make his establishment attractive and different from the commonplace thrives and prospers, and cities which have done the same have attained their success through the consistent co-operation of such citizens.

Merchants' associations and similar organizations should consider the special problems of their communities exhaustively before deciding upon lighting which may prove to be more of a hindrance than a help to civic progress. It is absolutely necessary to refrain from a narrow consideration of a lamp or lamps and, instead, to regard light and its accessories as a part of its environment, influenced greatly by other than street light and dependent upon a careful adjustment of everything which has a direct bearing on the general effect and its difference from the commonplace. The city de luxe does not imitate, but originates in its lighting as in all things.

Just Why "APRIL SHOWERS BRING MAY FLOWERS"

HOW much man has always appreciated the value of rain is shown from the fact that the greatest of ancient gods were worshipped because they were credited with the power to fertilize the earth with this precious moisture. Jove was called Jupiter Pluvius because of his dominion over the clouds. He has usually been imagined as a Supreme God with a handful of thunderbolts in his fist.

Rain is heaven's most precious gift to the tiller of the soil. It is as necessary to the land as saltpeter, lime and the other fertilizers. Its great value has always been accredited to the sweet purity of rain water over all other kinds of water, but just why rain water is so much more helpful to the soil than river water or irrigation water brought from lakes, and other sorts of still waters, has never been fully understood. Indeed, it has often been doubted if the water you dip from a rain barrel after a good Summer shower is any more beneficial than any other sort of water.

Mr. G. H. Wiesner, of Mount Vernon, Iowa, was, however, convinced by the observations of Mr. Shutt, of Ottawa, Canada, that the reason rain water and melted snow are more conducive to the growth of crops than other waters is due to the fact that the free nitrogen in the air is seized by the descending drops and thus carried into the ground.

The best fertilizers are those which contain a high percentage of nitrogen. Saltpeter, ammonia, fish fertilizer, guano, the leguminous plants, nitrogen-making bacteria, manure and the new electrically made nitres all owe their usefulness to nitrogen.

The air is three-quarters nitrogen, and until the nitrogen-seizing bacteria and the electric furnace disclosed methods of utilizing this nitrogen, it was supposed to be a good thing absolutely gone to waste. Of course, those "wise," practical husbandmen, who are always convinced that agricultural colleges, experimental stations and science are of little real service on plantation or farm, hardly knew that there was such a substance as nitrogen, much less that it is as free as the air itself.

In a village of 1,700 inhabitants, in which there are no manufacturing industries and where the atmosphere is always free from dirt and dust, Mr. Wiesner collected rain and snow in two porcelain-lined pans, each more than half a yard in diameter. The analysis of many different samples showed that the falling rain and the melting snows from February until June contained free nitrogen, ammonia and other nitrogenous mixtures. After thunderstorms more nitrogen was present than at other times. Moreover, the waters often contained not only nitrogen, but chlorine or one of the constituents of chloride of lime and table salt.

The presence of chlorine and nitrogen even in very small quantities is the reason why rain will make flowers, grain, vegetables and other forms of vegetation grow better than any other kind of water.

An EARTHQUAKE Every FEW MINUTES

CONTRARY to popular belief, earthquakes are by no means rare occurrences. As a matter of fact, practically all places on the surface of the earth experience some kind of tremor or shake at least once an hour, and lesser tremblings are even more frequent. This fact has been established since the opening throughout the world of stations where seismographs record the constant movement of this earth of ours.

Science declares that we live in a perpetual storm centre of vibrations of various kinds. Our ears are constantly assailed with various vibrations of the air. Our eyes are continually affected by the ether vibrations of light and heat, while our bodies are constantly being shaken by the tremors of the earth.

Besides the earth's local vibration, it is now known that its axis wabbles along through space. Even the sun and the whole family of planets all move along in a more or less vibrational fashion.

The seismographs can be made to serve several other useful purposes besides the recording of earthquakes. Some of them are so delicate that a railroad train running a mile away will affect them.

Seismograph records have frequently been produced in court to show that the operation of heavy machinery produced sufficient vibration in nearby buildings to make the owners of the factory liable for damages.

Probably the most unusual purpose to which the seismograph has ever been put is that of determining the amount of vibration in a locomotive as a result of unbalanced driving-wheels. Engineers have devised some ingenious methods of cutting down this vibration, which means a greatly decreased consumption of coal.

WARM FLOORS Help You LIVE LONGER

A COLD floor is one that conducts heat away from the body, not necessarily one that is cold in itself. A wooden floor and a stone floor exposed to the cold will in themselves have no great difference in temperature. But one may walk barefooted over a wooden floor with comparative comfort, no matter how cold the weather, while a stone floor will seem to freeze the feet.

On the other hand, in a warm room, the stone floor will be warmer than the wooden floor, for it will take the heat. Thus the heat from a radiator standing on a stone or tile floor will make it warm for several feet in every direction, but it will affect the wooden floor only slightly. A cold floor, therefore, is not a floor that is cold into the body through the feet, but one which takes away the body-heat, leaving it cold.

Warmth consists in keeping up the body-heat. It is in order to get sufficient body-heat that we eat, and to retain it that we wear clothes. Were there no wind, and if we moved hardly at all, clothes would not be necessary, because the heat of the body would keep a layer of heated air about us all the time. But the wind and our natural movements constantly disperse this layer of heated air, and in consequence we wear clothes to keep this layer in.

In Summer coolness is secured by loose clothing, which lets the wind blow away the heated air; in Spring and Fall more closely woven garments keep the heated air near. In very cold weather furs are used, because the skin and the fur afford a powerful resistance to the escape of body-heated air. As long as the body heat is kept up, illness is likely to be a long time away.

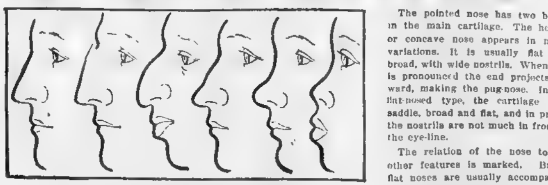
Cold floors rob us of body heat—they steal away our vitality. The slow sapping of vitality that comes from standing on cold floors is fearfully weakening to the system. No matter how old or ragged a rug or carpet, no matter how thin a cork or fibre mat, it will lengthen your life and save you from numberless discomforts which cold floors cause.

How to Tell if YOUR NOSE FITS YOUR FACE

THE shape of your nose is determined largely by your race and your individuality. Noses are generally divided into the classes of long and slender, short and broad. The first occur usually in connection with thin, long faces, the second in broad, fat faces.

The length of the nose is determined by the position of its root. As a rule the nose is as long as the brow is high. The greatest distance between the outer edges of the nostrils should be that of the distance between the inner ends of the eyes. In profile the nostrils should match the lips. The main shapes of noses are the straight, the Roman (convex), pointed (with double bow), the hollow (concave), and the flat.

The straight nose is considered the most artistic by us, as it was by the ancient Greeks. This is because in it the triangular cartilage is a direct continuation of the nasal bone. In the Roman nose the triangular cartilage stands out at an angle to the nasal bone. The form miscalled Jewish, while occurring among some Jews, is also found among other races. It is usually characterized by short nostrils, exposing the red membrane of the centre.



THE VARIOUS TYPES OF NOSES.
From Left to Right—the Straight Nose, the Roman, the So-called Jewish, the Pointed, the Pug and the Flat.

The pointed nose has two bends in the main cartilage. The hollow or concave nose appears in many variations. It is usually flat and broad, with wide nostrils. When this is pronounced the end projects upward, making the pug-nose. In the flat-nosed type, the cartilage is a saddle, broad and flat, and in profile the nostrils are not much in front of the eye-line.

The relation of the nose to the other features is marked. Broad, flat noses are usually accompanied by large mouths and thick lips, while well proportioned noses generally have finely cut mouths, well formed eyebrows, and delicately shaped ears. Most of us prefer, from an artistic point of view, small, straight noses, not too high, corresponding with the Greek ideal.

BLUSHES to Match Your GOWNS

NOW that the purple wig, the green eyebrow and the sapphire-pencilled lip have come into startling prominence as a part of feminine adornment, the Parisian mannequins are besieging the doctors and makers of cosmetics to invent a way whereby their blushes can be made to suit the color of their frock and hair.

It has been tearfully pointed out that a rosy blush is most inharmonious with a yellow dress and that even if every blush cannot be made to match exactly, at least a harmonizing color might be devised. The doctors reported that any girl who wanted her blushes made to order had lost the power of blushing, but several modes disproved the statement.

As yet the best solution of this problem to be suggested is the concealment of exquisitely small electric light bulbs in the hair. These, when switched on, give a glow to the face which is scarcely more luminous than a hearty red blush, and which, of course, can be arranged in any color of the rainbow.

An improvement on this device is to set another row of these lights just under the corsage, so that, a moment after the orange-colored blush has been seen overspreading the face, it begins to creep down until the neck and shoulders are suffused in the sunset glow.

The makers of this device are also putting on the market an ingenious arrangement of lights to be worn under filmy fabrics to give a greater richness to the pattern of the design, and to suggest a gossamer effect. Gracefully done and modulated to an extreme softness the effect is said to be fairylike and appealing.

FOUND--The MICROBE That Makes SCARS PAIN YOU

FOR twenty years after Koch and Pasteur began their remarkable researches in bacteriology hardly a day passed without the announcement of the discovery of a new microbe. The bacterial causes of tuberculosis, anthrax and a host of other diseases were unearthed in a surprisingly rapid succession.

Within the past few years there has been a noticeable lull in these discoveries. So few microbes remain to be brought to light that the discovery of a new one is given an importance which perhaps the germ itself does not warrant.

This, however, is hardly the case with the microbe whose existence has just been proved by Dr. Anthony Bassler, of the New York Polyclinic Hospital. This microbe is a very unusual sort of creature and solves many problems which have long vexed physicians and surgeons.

It has always been a mystery why certain scars, particularly on the inside of the abdomen, should follow surgical operations for appendicitis, rupture, ulcers, gallstones, obstructions of the bowels, abscesses of the liver and the like, and cause the patient severe pain long after he has been discharged from the hospital as cured.

Surgeons have attributed these "after-pains" to "adhesions" by which they mean merely the "sticking together" of scarred or injured parts. Thus, after an appendicitis operation the stump of the appendix may become glued to the inside wall or stick to some other part of the inside of the body. Most of the pains from which so many women suffer are due to such adhesions. They cause lifelong aches and sleeplessness.

At last, some new light has been cast upon this subject. Dr. Bassler has been experimenting upon these adhesions and finds they are undoubtedly caused by a new microbe which has been named the "Bacillus Adhesioformis." This bacillus has been found in these adhesions, and Professor Bassler is positive that it causes all the trouble.

This bacillus is described by Dr Bassler as sausage-shaped. It is about as thick but not as short as the pneumonia microbe.

One strange thing about this bacillus is that it will not grow in the air or in the presence of oxygen. Like the lockjaw bacillus, it will only develop in tight, closed places from which air is excluded.

The bacillus produces a sticky, glue-like stuff. This may in part explain why the lining membrane of the abdomen, of the chest and that around the liver, gall bladder and stomach become so adherent after an operation and thus cause the pains.

Dr Bassler says that no doubt the typhoid and many other microbes may at times cause adhesions, but this new bacterium is the only one which has the power always to form adhesions and to form them so strongly.

YOU MIGHT TRY---

To Make Windows Bright.

A SPOONFUL of kerosene added to a kettle of very hot water is excellent for making windows, looking-glasses, and picture glasses bright and clear. Use a small clean cloth, wring it dry and rub it over the glass, after wiping down the framework with an oiled cloth. Then wipe dry with a large clean cloth. No real polishing is required to make the glass look clean and shiny.

A Test for Seeds.

SEEDS not sufficiently ripe will float in water, but when arrived at full maturity they will sink to the bottom, and this is proof that they are good to plant.

Saving the Peaches.

IF you open a can of peaches and find them fermented do not throw them away. Heat them over, sweeten a little and make them into pie.

A Famous Chef's Advice.

IN making a fruit cake pour half the batter in the pan before adding the fruit, then the fruit will not be found at the bottom of the cake.

Mending an Umbrella.

TAKE a small piece of black sticking plaster and soak it until it is quite soft; place it carefully under the hole inside and let it dry. This is better than darning as it closes the hole neatly and without stitching.

A Real "HELLO GIRL" in Every BRAIN

ONE of the greatest discoveries of recent times is that of Dr. Cajal in regard to the brain. He has found that the brain cortex, which had long been thought to be the centre for all mental processes, is in very fact a telephone central and operator all in one. This is not only a figurative analogy, but a literal one, for he has found that radiating from the cells in this part of the brain are fibers which have their ends dangling or curled up when the brain is at rest, but which reach out and connect with fibres from other cells when the brain is active.

He was enabled to make this discovery only by reason of another discovery by some one else. This was that different tissues would take different dyes—so if a red dye were placed on a conglomeration of cells it would be absorbed only by a certain set and be rejected by all the rest. So these certain cells would stand out clearly from the general mass.

This staining of cells is a whole story in itself, as many recent things in medicine hinge on it. It advanced research in biology and botany over a hundred per cent. It showed that different tissues even closely connected would not take the same dye or substance and thus paved the way for several new treatments.

The question now is, what kind of impulse travels along the nerve fibres of the brain telephone system after they are connected. It is easy to assume that an electrical impulse does, but we know that a nerve impulse is very much slower than an electrical. Electricity travels at the rate of light, while a nerve wave travels only about seventy-five miles an hour. It could easily be, however, that the nerve impulse consists of an electric current travelling into a surface, which then would act on the laws of a condenser. It takes time for a condenser to become charged to a certain potential—so it is possible that the nerve impulse will not act until its capacity as a condenser is satisfied to the proper potential for perception.

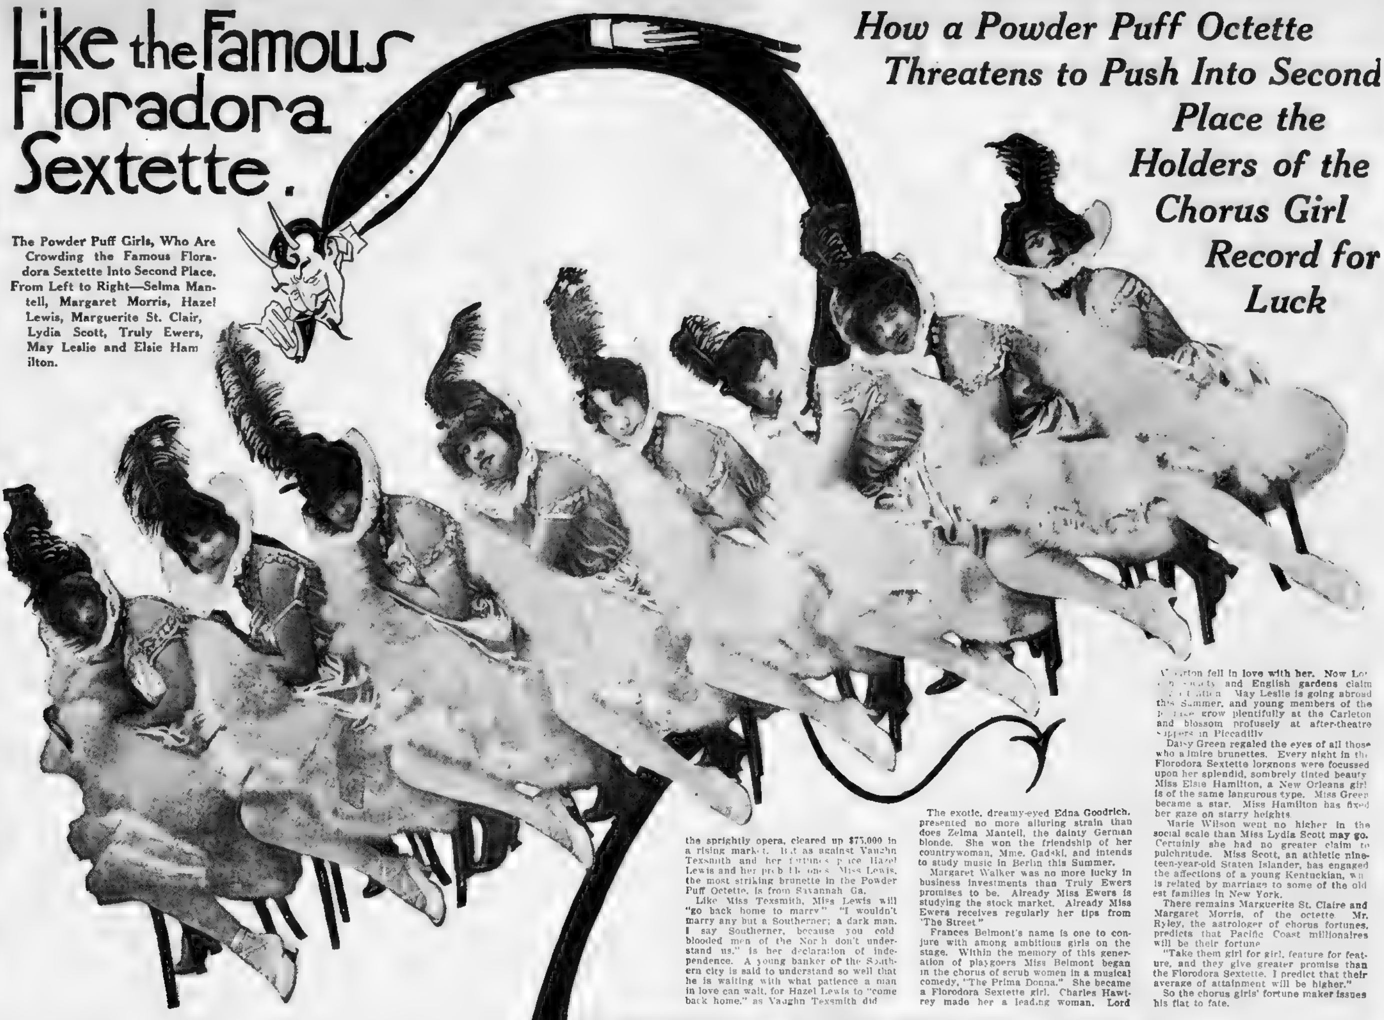
How a Powder Puff Octette Threatens to Push Into Second Place the Holders of the Chorus Girl Record for Luck



NO six singers were ever so famous as the Florodora Sextette, nor ever a sextette upon whom collectively and individually, fortune so brilliantly smiled. "You are as lucky as the Florodora Sextette" is a proverb.

Brilliant marriages, stage stardom or millions were the fate of the six beauties. A simple sextette of chorus girls outshone the star. Their tinkling, tin-panny notes deafened the ears for the rich notes of the prima donna. While star and prima donna have been forgotten, the sextette is as radiant a picture in memory as it was when "Florodora" ran for two years at the Casino.

Thomas W. Ryley, the manager who gave the sextette its chance by producing the opera in which it appeared, has produced another musical play, "The Queen of the Movies," in which he introduces a revival of the famous sextette. The octette known as "The Powder Puff Girls," he says, is more attractive than the Florodora Sextette and will have an even more brilliant future.

Recently the company started on a tour of the United States. Mme. Valli Valli, the prima donna, will charm, of course, but it is to the octette that the manager looks for chief popularity.

"They are prettier than the sextette, and more gingery. If the sextette went upon the stage now it wouldn't cause a ripple," said Mr. Ryley. "I guarantee that every one of the Powder Puff girls will be engaged to a millionaire or two when she returns to New York, or at least will have had a chance to marry on tour. Or if any of them prefer careers, Wall Street or vocal lessons in Paris will be open to them.

"The difference is that the sextette is of another decade. Chorus girls are flowers that bloom but ten years at most. They are decade blooming plants. The old sextette could come back upon the stage and receive a welcome as individuals, but not collectively. The sextette is mature. Its members are in their Autumn or at least their Mid-summer. These girls are in their Spring. Everybody loves youth.

"It isn't the girls themselves that brought them luck. It is the songs they sang. The law of association is one of the strongest of mental laws. We like something that is associated in our minds with something pleasant. We reopen a letter with pleasant expectations because even though we do not recognize the handwriting, we know that it is associated in our minds with something or some one that is pleasant. The public and various individuals fell in love with the Florodora Sextette when it wouldn't have cared for any of the members alone. The secret of their popularity lay in the song itself. As soon as the first strains of Leslie Stuart's song, 'Tell Me Pretty Maiden,' were heard, the audience began to applaud. That was before the girls came on the stage. But it was pleasing preparation for the advent of the girls themselves. The girls were associated in its minds with the words, and especially with the melody:

"'Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?
There are a few. There are a few;
I must love some one, and it might as well be you.'

"The association was pleasant. Pleasant association means popularity. That is the psychology of the success of the Florodora Sextette.

"It is the same with the Powder Puff girls. There are chords of gay, chatty music. Then the words:

"'Oh, Cecelia, don't make those eyes at me,
Oh, Cecelia, there's no necessity!
For I'd help you greatly if I'm let,
With due regard for etiquette.'

"Then the girls flash on in their dainty short skirts, edged with elderdown, and, looking like moving powder puffs, because of their elderdown gowns and their soft white neck ruffs, their fluffy hair and their waving plumes, producing a soft, furry effect.

"There's a difference between them and the sextette, and I regard it a sign [illegible] of the times. It is human to always [illegible] the new. These girls are new, in the sense of being of different types. The Florodora Sextette were tall, stately and mildly [illegible]tatious. The Powder Puff girls a[illegible] nimble and vivacious.

"The Florodora Sextette set the fa[shion] in tall girls. Thereafter only tall girls were the mode. But the dainty [illegible] Powder Puff girls are setting a new st[yle] the charm of petiteness.

"The song and dance have been [illegible] great agencies for charmin[g] [illegible] the beginning of the world. I [illegible] to the story of Salome, who won [illegible] of John the Baptist by dancing before Herod.

"Associate the song and dance [illegible] woman only fairly pretty, and [illegible] is made. And oddly enough the [illegible] greater, is cumulative as it were, if there are several women, instead of one.

The original Florodora Sextette included Marie Wilson, who attracted the w[illegible]ing gaze of Freddie Gebhardt, forced it to concentrate upon her as she sang "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" to such extent that she became his wife, and fin[illegible] Edna Goodrich wedded N. C. Goodwin [illegible] quired a large part of his fortune, starred, creating the role of "Evangeline" in the drama form, and when not playing enjoys life in Europe. Frances Belmont became Lady Ashburton and resides in England. Vaughn Texsmith, returning to her native Texas, married one of the ric[illegible] ranchmen in the State. Marguerite W[al]ker, through reliable tips furnished by the late James Keene and others, who were repeaters, that is, who went frequently to the sprightly opera, cleared up $75,000 in a rising market. But as against Vaughn Texsmith and her fortunes place Hazel Lewis and her prob[ab]le ones. Miss Lewis, the most striking brunette in the Powder Puff Octette, is from Savannah, Ga.

Like Miss Texsmith, Miss Lewis will "go back home to marry." "I wouldn't marry any but a Southerner; a dark man. I say Southerner, because you cold blooded men of the North don't understand us," is her declaration of independence. A young banker of the Southern city is said to understand so well that he is waiting with what patience a man in love can wait, for Hazel Lewis to "come back home," as Vaughn Texsmith did.

The exotic, dreamy-eyed Edna Goodrich, presented no more alluring strain than does Zelma Mantell, the dainty German blonde. She won the friendship of her countrywoman, Mme. Gadski, and intends to study music in Berlin this Summer.

Margaret Walker was no more lucky in business investments than Truly Ewers promises to be. Already Miss Ewers is studying the stock market. Already Miss Ewers receives regularly her tips from "The Street."

Frances Belmont's name is one to conjure with among ambitious girls on the stage. Within the memory of this generation of playgoers Miss Belmont began in the chorus of scrub women in a musical comedy, "The Prima Donna." She became a Florodora Sextette girl. Charles Hawtrey made her a leading woman. Lord [illegible]ton fell in love with her. Now Lo[illegible] [illegible] and English gardens claim [illegible] attention. May Leslie is going abroad this Summer, and young members of the [illegible] grow plentifully at the Carleton and blossom profusely at after-theatre suppers in Piccadilly.

Daisy Green regaled the eyes of all those who admire brunettes. Every night in the Florodora Sextette lorgnons were focussed upon her splendid, sombrely tinted beauty. Miss Elsie Hamilton, a New Orleans girl is of the same langurous type. Miss Green became a star. Miss Hamilton has fixed her gaze on starry heights.

Marie Wilson went no higher in the social scale than Miss Lydia Scott may go. Certainly she had no greater claim to pulchritude. Miss Scott, an athletic nineteen-year-old Staten Islander, has engaged the affections of a young Kentuckian, who is related by marriage to some of the oldest families in New York.

There remains Marguerite St. Claire and Margaret Morris, of the octette. Mr. Ryley, the astrologer of chorus fortunes, predicts that Pacific Coast millionaires will be their fortune.

"Take them girl for girl, feature for feature, and they give greater promise than the Florodora Sextette. I predict that their average of attainment will be higher."

So the chorus girls' fortune maker issues his fiat to fate.

The Good and Evil for May as Foreshadowed by the Stars

MAY'S is a martial lunation, but with the god of war in not a very creditable light. Though "elevated" in the lunar scheme he is conjoined with Neptune in the ninth mansion, and out of his element in the watery triplicity.

This bodes rather ill both for the military and the naval branches, and obstacles will impede the development of defensive or strategical methods. The heads of these portfolios in the national ministry will incur criticism, also scandals will manifest in their respective departments. The same application may be made to State national guards, with cabals and intrigues to mar the efficiency of the service.

The shipping interests are jeopardized through this coalition of the planets, with danger to the cable systems, the Atlantic being the probable maritime quarter, and probable around the 1st, the 14th, the 21st or the 28th.

Some notable marriages of international interest will occur, denoted by this same position, and especially between the 13th and 15th. Business interests are jeopardized, and calamity to public buildings may be looked for, more through the visitation of God than of man, the elements and not incendiarism.

The weather is fairly equable, with st[illegible] [illegible]ulses covering the first few d[ays] [wi]th precipitation around the 7th extending to about the 8th with a [illegible] temperature crossing the co[illegible] between then and the 12th; a d[illegible]d area between the 21st and 2[illegible] followed by cooler weather, a [illegible]quence to atmospheric per[illegible] The death rate exceeds the [nor]mal.

Are These Our "Heavenly Homes"?

The Startling Suggestion by a Famous German Scientist That Paradise May Lie Hidden Behind Dark, Mysterious and Unthinkably Vast Curtains That Hang Between Our Earth and the Milky Way

"The dark bodies observed by Professor Barnard lying just beyond the confines of the solar system fulfil all the requirements that a metaphysician could suggest as an ideal location for Heaven."

The Two Mysterious Solid Bodies Lying in Front of the Milky Way in the Andromeda Nebula, Which It Has Been Suggested May Be Paradise. A Drawing by the Distinguished French Astronomer Trouvelot.

A SPECULATION of the deepest interest to humanity has been raised by some recent astronomical observations.

Professor E. E. Barnard, of the Yerkes Observatory, has stated that several of the so-called "black holes" in the Milky Way appear to him to be solid objects in front of the Milky Way rather than holes in it.

These observations of a distinguished astronomer have led Professor Rudolf Hensingmuller of Heidelberg, to suggest that these mysterious dark objects in the sky are, in fact, the actual physical location of heaven.

Professor Barnard's last observations on the subject of the mysterious dark spots in the heavens were contained in the Astrophysical Journal for December. There he wrote:

"The so-called 'black holes' in the Milky Way are of great interest. Some of them are so definite that possibly they suggest not vacancies, but rather some kind of obscuring body lying in the Milky Way or between us and it, which cuts out the light. This explanation seems to become more and more plausible the more we know of these objects. In previous papers I have called attention to this possible obscuring matter, splendid examples of which are connected with the great nebulosities about the stars Rho Ophiuchi and Nu Scorpii."

Professor Barnard describes three of these obscurities lying in front of the Milky Way, between us and that formation, but situated countless millions of miles away from us. His article is highly technical and is largely devoted to showing how the progress of astronomical photography makes it possible to ex[illegible] the position of these infinitely distant objects, which in earlier pictures seemed merely black holes. Concerning one of these bodies he writes:

"Known to me in my early days of comet seeking, this object has always been of deepest interest. I have examined it repeatedly with the great telescopes of the Lick and Yerkes Observatories. In these visual observations there has sometimes been a suspicion that I could see an actual object at this point. An observation of this kind, however, requires both good definition and good transparency. A little unsteadiness of the air blurs the light of the many nearby stars into a mistiness of the field, and a want of transparency cuts off any feeble luminous object and readily defeats any effort to see it.

"On the night of July 27, 1913, the conditions were favorable both for transparency and steadiness. Under these conditions the hole or spot was examined very carefully with the forty-inch telescope. With its following edge cutting across the middle of the field, which is some three times smaller than the spot, it was quite definitely seen with the preceding half of the field, in which there were no stars, was very feebly luminous, while the following side showed a rich, dark sky, with a few small stars on it. From the view one would not question for a moment that a real object—dusky looking, but very feebly brighter than the sky—occupies the place of the spot. It would appear, therefore, that the object may not be a vacancy among the stars, but a more or less opaque body.

"The photographs with a portrait lens show this object black against a luminous sky. The explanation of this apparent anomaly is that the sky about it is filled with innumerable small stars, both visible and invisible, with perhaps some nebulosity. The effect of this upon a plate is to counterbalance the feeble light from the matter forming the hole, and thus to produce by contrast the appearance of a vacant spot, or, in other words, if the object were placed on the ordinary dark sky away from the Milky Way it would be seen and photographed as a luminous spot, sharply defined on one side and diffused on the other, or, similar to a sunspot, it is black only by contrast with its brighter surroundings."

Professor Hensingmuller, of Heidelberg, a scientist who has become noted for his daring metaphysical speculations, suggested in an address to his students that the dark bodies might be heaven.

"[illegible] that the spirits of the virtuous dead are carried to some distant region in the skies is as old as the human race. We find it among such widely separated peoples as the ancient Egyptians and the American Indians. We can hardly doubt that this belief has its foundation in a natural instinct akin to that [illegible] intimates to all of us that we are endowed with immortality. The child who has [illegible] learned a line of religious doctrine believes that heaven is somewhere in the skies.

"The churches generally teach that heaven is a real locality, and that it is situated in the skies above us. In doing this they have only followed the most primitive and natural human beliefs.

"If the soul is a real thing, even though it be intangible, it must have a dwelling place after its separation from the body. It is not reasonable to suppose that the disembodied souls will continue to linger on earth among scenes of sin, suffering and misery, and surroundings that must inevitably cause them much unhappiness. The soul will need a separate place where it can exist in purity and serenity in the company of the blessed only.

Reasons Why These Dark Objects May Be Heaven.

"Where else can this place be but in the heavens above? It would be absurd to suppose that it is in the dark and hot interior of the earth. The idea has been advanced that one of the planets or stars may be the site of heaven.

"Neither suggestion is acceptable. The planets are a great deal too much like the earth for this purpose. On the other hand, it is not reasonable to believe that heaven should be on one of the stars. We know that there are literally countless millions of stars, and not one of them has any special relation to the earth. Why, then, should one of them be chosen as a dwelling place for departed spirits from the earth?

"The dark bodies observed by Professor Barnard lying just beyond the confines of the solar system fulfil all the requirements that a metaphysician could suggest as an ideal location for heaven. The fact that there are many of these dark bodies is entirely in harmony with a rational conception of the problem. Heaven would, we should expect, be divided into separate localities for the various degrees of virtue and happiness. We could not suppose that a soul of perfect beauty and ideal development would find an appropriate dwelling place in the same sphere with one who had led a blameless life, but had attained less spiritual development. There must, then, be graded spheres in heaven.

"These celestial bodies are dark in order that prying eyes may not see what is happening there. It would not be right that living men should actually see heaven. What the astronomer sees perhaps is a dark veil that hides the actual dwelling place of the blessed. It is very interesting to recall that Dante, the most inspired of poets, imagined heaven as a place where the souls of the blessed flow around in the sunlight in a manner that strongly suggests the spiral nebulae that astronomers are now able to watch in the skies."

In connection with Professor Hensingmuller's statement it is interesting to recall that the highest church authorities assert that heaven is a real physical locality. In the Catholic Encyclopaedia, Father Joseph Hontheim, professor of dogmatic theology in St. Ignatius's College, Valkenburg, Holland, writes:

"Where is heaven, the dwelling of God and the [illegible] Some are of opinion that heaven is everywhere, as God is everywhere. According to this view, the blessed can move about freely in every part of the universe, and still remain with God and see Him everywhere. Everywhere, too, they remain with Christ (in His sacred humanity) and with the saints and with the angels. For according to the advocates of this opinion, the spatial distances must no longer impede the mutual intercourse of the blessed. In general, however, theologians deem it more appropriate that there should be a special and glorious abode, in which the blessed have their peculiar home, and where they usually abide, even though they be free to go about in the world.

"For the surroundings in the midst of which the blessed have their dwelling must be in accordance with their happy state; and the internal union of charity which joins them in affection must find its outward expression in community of habitation. At the end of the world the earth, together with the celestial bodies, will be gloriously transformed into a part of the dwelling place of the blessed (Apocalypse, XXI.). Hence there seems to be no sufficient reason for attributing a metaphorical sense to those numerous utterances of Holy Writ which suggest a definite dwelling place of the blessed. Theologians, therefore, generally hold that the heaven of the blessed is a special place, with definite limits. Naturally, this place is held to exist, not within the earth, but, in accordance with the expressions of Scripture, without and beyond its limits. All further details regarding its locality are quite uncertain.'

The black spots in the Milky Way that have given rise to Professor Hensingmuller's speculations are commonly known as the "coal sacks," a name first given to them by sailors. They have excited discussion among many scientists besides those mentioned here. Professor Garrett P. Serviss, the distinguished astronomer, says in his "Curiosities of the Sky":

The Strange "Coal Sacks" in the Milky Way.

"The name 'coal sacks' given to these strange voids is hardly descriptive. Rather they produce upon the mind the effect of blank windows in a lonely house on a pitch dark night, which, when looked at from the brilliant interior, become appalling in their rayless murk. Infinity seems to acquire a new meaning in the presence of these black openings in the sky, for as one continues to gaze it loses its purely metaphysical quality and becomes a kind of entity, like the ocean. The observer is conscious that he can actually see the beginning of its ebon depths, in which the visible universe appears to float like an enchanted island, resplendent within with lights and life and gorgeous spectacles, and encircled with screens of crowded stars, but with its dazzling vistas ending at the fathomless sea of pure darkness which encloses all.

"The [illegible] of Milky Way surrounds the borders of our island in space [illegible] land, and when openings appear in it they are, by contrast, far more impressive than the general darkness of the interstellar expanse seen in other directions. Yet even that expanse is not everywhere equally dark, for it contains gloomy deeps, discernible with careful watching.

"The most famous of the 'coal sacks' and the first to be brought to general attention before astronomers had awakened to the significance of such things, lies adjacent to the Southern Cross, and is truly an amazing phenomenon. It is not alone the conspicuousness of this celestial vacancy, opening suddenly in the midst of one of the richest parts of the Galaxy, that has given it its fame, but quite as much the superstitious awe with which it was [illegible] early explorers of the South Seas. [illegible] well as to those who listened in [illegible] to their tales, the 'coal sack' seemed to possess some occult connection with the mystic Cross. In the eyes of the sailors it was not a vacancy so much as a sable reality in the sky, and as, shuddering, they stared at it, they piously crossed themselves.

"All around, up to the very edge of the yawning gap, the sheen of the Milky Way is surpassingly glorious; but there, as if in obedience to an almighty edict, everything vanishes. A single faint star is visible within the opening, producing a curious effect upon the sensitive spectator, like the sight of a tiny islet in the midst of a black, motionless, waveless tarn. The dimensions of the lagoon of darkness, which is oval or pear-shaped, are eight degrees by five, so that it occupies a space in the sky about one hundred and thirty times greater than the area of the full moon. It attracts attention as soon as the eye is directed toward the quarter where it exists, and by virtue of the rarity of such phenomena it appears a far greater wonder than the drifts of stars that are heaped around it. Now that observatories are multiplying in the southern hemisphere, the great astral 'coal sack' will no doubt [illegible] attention proportioned to its importance as one of the most significant features of the sky. Already at the Sydney Observatory photographs have shown that the southern portion of this Dead Sea of Space is not quite 'bottomless,' although its northern part defies the longest sounding lines of the astronomer.

"There is a similar but less perfect 'coal sack' in the northern hemisphere, in the constellation of 'The Swan,' which, strange to say, also contains a well-marked figure of a cross outlined by stars. This gap lies near the top of the cross-shaped figure. It is best seen by averted vision, which brings out the contrast with the Milky Way, which is quite brilliant around it. It does not, however, exercise the same weird attraction upon the eye as the southern 'coal sack,' for, instead of looking like an absolute void in the sky, it rather appears as if a canopy of dark gauze had been drawn over the stars.

Just above the southern horizon of our northern middle latitudes in Summer, where the Milky Way breaks up into vast sheets of nebulous luminosity, lying over and between the constellations Scorpio and Sagittarius, there is a remarkable assemblage of 'coal sacks,' though none is of great size. One of them, near a conspicuous star-cluster in Scorpio, 80 M, is interesting for having been the first of these strange objects noted by Herschel. Probably it was its nearness to 80 M which suggested to his mind the apparent connection of such vacancies with star-clusters which we have already mentioned.

"But the most marvellous of the 'coal sacks' are those that have been found by photography in Sagittarius. One of Barnard's earliest and most excellent photographs includes two of them, both in the star-cluster 8 M. The larger, which is roughly rectangular in outline, contains one little star, and its smaller neighbor is tune-shaped—surely a most singular form for such an object. Both are associated with curious dark lanes running through the clustered stars like trails in the woods. Along the borders of these lanes the stars are ranked in parallel rows, and what may be called the bottoms of the lanes are not entirely dark, but pebbled with faint stellar points. One of them, which skirts the two dark gaps and traverses the cluster along its greatest diameter, is edged with lines of stars, recalling the alignment of the trees bordering a French highway. This road of stars cannot be less than many billions of miles in length!

"All about the cluster the bed of the Galaxy is strangely disturbed, and in places nearly denuded, as if its contents had been raked away to form the immense stack and the smaller accumulations of stars around it. The well-known 'trifid nebula' is also included in the field of the photograph, which covers a truly marvellous region, so intricate in its mingling of nebulae, star-clusters, star-swarms, star-streams and dark vacancies that no description can do it justice. Yet, chaotic as it appears, there is an unmistakable suggestion of unity about it, impressing the beholder with the idea that all the different parts are in some way connected, and have not been fortuitously thrown together.

"But, to return to the black gaps. Are they really windows in the star-walls of the universe? Some of them look rather as if they had been made by a shell fired through a luminous target, allowing the eye to range through the hole into void space beyond. If science is discreetly silent about these things, what can the more venturesome and less responsible imagination suggest? Would a huge 'runaway sun,' like Arcturus, for instance, make such an opening if it should pass like a projectile through the Milky Way? * * *

"The difficulty of these questions indicates one of the reasons why it has been suggested that the seeming gaps, or many of them, are not openings at all, but opaque screens cutting off the light from stars behind them. That this is quite possible in some cases is shown by Barnard's later photographs, particularly those of the singular region around the star Rho Ophiuchi. Here are to be seen sombre lanes and patches, apparently forming a connected system which covers an immense space, and which their discoverer thinks may constitute a 'dark nebula.'"

Curing Diseases by Burning Little Nerve Ends in the Nose.

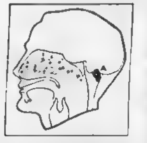

Diagram showing the spots in the nasal cavity, by cauterizing which Dr. Bonnier cures many diseases: 1. Dyspepsia; 2. Appendicitis; 3. Diabetes; 4. Morbid Growths; 5. Rheumatism; 6. Eczema; 7. Toothache; 8. [illegible]; 9. Asthma; 10. Bronchitis; A. The Medulla Oblongata.

DR. PIERRE BONNIER, a distinguished Paris physician, has published an account of a novel method of treating disease.

He calls this method "centrotherapy," meaning the cure of disease through the treatment of the central nervous system. In practice the method consists of applying a slight [illegible] to certain areas in the [illegible] to the nervous centres that control every part of the body. The stimulation is a light cauterization, or burning, applied to a certain spot, but it is very different from the cauterization ordinarily used by throat and nose specialists.

In his book he gives a record of about 3,000 cases, in all of which he claims to have obtained complete cures or great improvement. The ailments treated range from [illegible] to cancer.

It is interesting to note that other medical men are working along closely related lines. Dr. William H. Fitzgerald, a nose and throat specialist, of St. Francis's Hospital, Hartford, Conn., recently reported a remarkable [illegible] of treatment through [illegible] in the nose.

Dr. Fitzgerald produces complete anaesthesia of certain parts of the body by pressing down a related area in the nose. [illegible] method he can remove a foot [illegible] the patient feeling no pain. By simply massaging the area in the nose Dr. Fitzgerald can cure disease in the related area of the body. Dr. Fitzgerald discovered these sensitive areas while [illegible] as a regular throat and nose specialist.

Others have discovered a close connection between the nasal cavity and diseases apparently far removed. While [illegible] at the [illegible] Bonnier and his colleagues found that the germ of this terrible disease entered the body first through the nose, then made its way along the olfactory nerve to the brain and thence to the spinal marrow, where it does most of its harm.

The [illegible] feature of the Bonnier method is in applying the cautery close to the centres of nerve control. These centres [illegible] are in the medulla oblongata, the bulb which forms the top of the spinal column, and is located within the skull. In this bulb there is a centre that controls every area of the body. Its activity and vigilance are necessary to the life and health of each part. If disease gains an entrance at any part of the body, whether it be an inflamed toe, or an appendix, it means that the functions of the nerve centres in the medulla have [illegible]

[illegible] the medulla can be reached through the nasal cavity is that this is the nearest surface in direct nerve communication with the medulla. All other surfaces are related to the nerve centres, but they are much farther away. All the remedies we now use, according to Dr. Bonnier, operate through their effect on the nerve centres. For instance, when the doctor puts an ice pack on the abdomen to reduce an inflamed appendix, it does not operate by directly freezing the appendix, but sends a stimulation to the appropriate nerve centre [illegible] makes it try to do its work of keeping the appendix in normal condition.

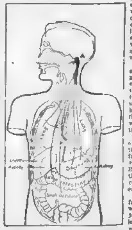

Diagram showing how the controlling [illegible] genes. Dr. Bonnier stimulates these nerves to healthful activity by burning connecting nerve ends in the nose.

Just under the surface of the nasal cavity runs a branch of the great trigeminal nerve which supplies the face and is in close relation to the medulla. According to the theory of Dr. Bonnier, a certain spot in the nasal cavity leads back through the trigeminal nerve to the centre in the medulla that controls some other part of the body.

"The medulla is the wise guardian of our [illegible] life is continued from second to second. Every illness is a deviation from this physiology. The medulla of every sick man knows infinitely more than any doctor. It is the great physician whom we must consult. It is the conductor of the [illegible] when it goes wrong it is because the medulla is out of order or asleep. [illegible] pushing on the wheels of the automobile, regulate the source of power. Wake it up and it will work," says Dr. Bonnier.

The relation of one nervous centre to another explains the extraordinary manner in which one disease changes into another or cures another. Thus, according to Dr. Bonnier, [illegible] will cure asthma, and then change into a headache, which will give way to hemorrhoids, which will be followed by vertigo, which will change into nervous prostration.

In such cases the [illegible] the intestinal inflammation, but which has fallen out of activity. The new disease may answer the same [illegible] Dr. Bonnier's cautery. In many cases we find that an affection of the skin, like eczema, cures some disease of a deep-seated organ, especially the digestive apparatus.

It seems that when one nervous centre falls out of use it is kept down by the weight of the nervous activities around it, just as a brick that has fallen out of place is kept down by the others around it, but when you put it back in place the other nervous centres keep it [illegible]

[illegible] upon which the [illegible] of Dr. Bonnier is based. It will now be interesting to learn what methods he uses in his system.

He applies a slight electric cautery, produced by a galvanic current, to the mucous surface. People who have their noses treated by nose and throat specialists with an electric cautery [illegible] Bonnier's theories are correct, the treatment has not cured them of every disease.

Dr. Bonnier explains that the nose specialist's violent cautery gives the nervous centres a shock which makes them [illegible] and reel. It does not [illegible] normal activity, but, on the contrary, may put them out of use.

He barely touches the mucous surface, producing a tiny burn, of which all trace will disappear in a day or two. He uses no cocaine. The application acts upon the nervous centre like a dash of cold water on a person who has fainted.

From long experience Dr. Bonnier has mapped out a great number of areas in the nose which correspond to the centres of nerve control. He begins at the orifice of the nasal cavities and describes the various areas.

Nearest to the entrance of the nose [illegible] are the areas that control [illegible] of the bed [illegible] organs.

Along the middle line of the lower turbinate bone are the areas that control digestion. Slightly further back [illegible] that regulate the functions of the [illegible] centre that [illegible] appendicitis. Here are also the points through which he checks the great variety of troubles known by the name of rheumatism, which are associated with disordered conditions of the large intestine.

On the upper part of the turbinate bone, by the side of the digestive centres, he finds the areas that regulate diabetes.

Dr. Bonnier has also located a series of centres along the lower turbinate bone that regulates a number of microbial infections varying from catarrh to tuberculosis.

Towards the base of the nose, in the ethmoid [illegible] areas that check asthma, bronchial troubles and stuttering. Still higher up are those areas that act against anxiety, depression and melancholy.

How We Learned to Talk by Making Noises While Eating

IN some Eastern countries it is considered polite to make while eating noises with tongue and lips indicative of the satisfaction and pleasure of the eater. In the more cultured communities these noises are frowned upon, and etiquette demands [illegible] at eating. A theory recently put forth by eminent English scientists, and accepted by the mass of savants, declares that we owe our faculty of articulate speech solely to these impolite noises we make when eating. Language, in fact, is only a development of feeding sounds. Man learned to talk in the primeval dining room.

The late E. B. Payne, the famous anthropologist, was the first to promulgate the idea, but only among his learned friends. Not enough ancient remains had been discovered at that time to test the theory. Recently, however, the finding of the Piltdown skull, dug up at Sussex, England, and at least 500,000 years old, and other discoveries here and there have given complete data to work upon.

Articulate speech, finds Dr. Louis Robinson, the distinguished English surgeon who leads the investigation, is possible only because of the development of a fan-like muscle which spreads out beneath the whole lower surface of the central region of the tongue, penetrates almost to the upper surface, and which is called the genio-glossus. The development of the genio-glossus in man is entirely due to his early eating habits. It began to grow in man when he first managed to stand erect and eat with an uplifted head. Then his food was less liable to drop from his mouth. Before that, like most animals, he had eaten merely to satisfy hunger. Now he had opportunity to develop taste, or the aesthetic side of eating. He used his tongue more for rolling the pleasant tasting food in his mouth. He smacked his lips, clicked the tongue against his palate, grunted, made guttural sounds—and as he did so the genio-glossus, which enabled him to make them, developed steadily with the exercise. All the movements made by mouth and tongue in eating are represented in the muscular movements necessary to make speech sounds in all known languages.

On this page are four diagrams showing the position of the genio-glossus in four speech sounds, which are also eating sounds. There are the "oo" of anticipation, the "mouth watering" sound the "k" or "kah" guttural of satisfaction, which is also a lasting sound, the "t" which is produced by the tongue touching the inner side of the teeth and the "ah" of satiety.

All important speech sounds and each prom[illegible] eating sound, the countless repetition of which schooled the genio-glossus.

It is pointed out in this connection that guttural and nasal sounds are possessed by animals as well as man, but only man possesses the oral sounds.

Man's fondness for farinaceous food, which requires considerable mastication, was the strongest factor in developing the power of articulate speech.

"The adoption of an exceedingly important new method of expression and communication, such as human articulate speech," says Dr. Robinson, "would require widespread and most elaborate changes in the structures which brought it into play. A little search into the matter will show any one that we are here in contact with one of the most incredible marvels in nature. Most wonderful of all, the whole mechanism is, from an evolutionary standpoint, quite new, a product of merely the later fragment of a brief geological period!

"When we consider the number of movements, following one another in continually varying order, required for articulate speech, it is obvious that only machinery which is able to act with every mechanical advantage and with a minimum of friction can accomplish such a task with precision. Public speakers frequently talk at a rate of one hundred and fifty words a minute, while it seems possible to articulate quite clearly and correctly when speaking at the rate of one hundred and eighty words a minute.

"If we analyze the action of the tongue when speaking at the rate of one hundred and fifty words a minute we find that there must be at least five hundred different movements or adjustments. This gives eight or nine every second! Such movements, it must be remembered, do not follow one another regularly in mechanical rotation like the piston beats of a multiple cylindered engine, but are continuously varying their order. What wonder is it that coordination sometimes breaks down with the result of a stutter or a stammer."

Dr. Robinson then points out that the muscles of the tongue itself would be entirely inadequate to produce results of this character, and he shows wherein the genio-glossus supplies the deficiency. For quick, precise movements such as those demanded by articulate speech this muscle must be unhampered and have plenty of room to act. It is because, in the majority of animals insufficient working-room is provided for it that these animals have not developed articulate speech.

"It is of course obvious," he declares, "that originally the genio-glossus muscle had nothing whatever to do with articulate speech. The need it met in the economy of lemurs and apes was probably that of giving increased mobility to the tongue for sorting food already in the mouth. This is plainly seen when we give a monkey a nut and see him crack it and turn it about with his tongue, selecting the kernel and rejecting every fragment of shell.

"This ability, common among all the primates, to sort food with the tongue, and with its aid to eschew unacceptable morsels, is strikingly absent in the case of most animals. Anyone can assure himself of this on seeing a dog trying to get rid of [illegible] object. Animals such as cattle, and especially camels and giraffes, which are liable to get dangerous thorns in their mouths, depend upon a most elaborate arrangement of the long papillae lining their cheeks, so that by a simple backward and forward movement of the tongue such things are at length extruded.

"There seems little doubt but that it is this sorting machinery of the tongue in the lower primates which has been seized upon and greatly elaborated for the new and wondrous mechanism of articulate speech.

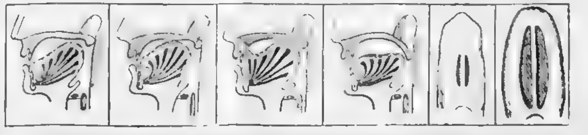
"When I was lecturing at the recent British Association meeting, the question was asked me: 'How is a parrot able to talk if he has no chin?' An equally pertinent question would be 'How is a phonograph able to talk when it possesses no chin?' A parrot has deep down behind its breastbone a marvellously elaborate and versatile sound-producing apparatus, almost as different from any possessed by ourselves as is the mechanism of a phonograph. When man began to speak he had to make use of raw material, which was there already, to build up his talking machinery. That the parrot and the phonograph can speak merely proves that there are other ways of doing it.

"When we come to examine the difference between prehistoric man and modern savages we find the same order of structural change in the mandible still going on, tending to the greater efficiency of the genio-glossus muscle for speaking purposes. When this fan-like group of muscular fibres came out of a deep pit, such as is seen in the jaws of the lower monkeys, the fibres were obviously hampered by being bunched and huddled together. As the jaw became tilted forward, giving more engine room beneath the tongue the need for the pit became less and it becomes shallower and shallower until we find it a mere depression as in the case of the Salmang gibbon.

"When we come to the pygmies and bushmen we find in the majority of jaws the remains of this pit or a mere flat surface; but in some African dwarf races and among the Hottentots, Veddahs and Andamanese, two little prominences are seen beginning to grow at the lower edge of the pit. These tubercles, as we pass to higher and more civilized races, become more and more prominent, until we get the European type familiar to all students of anatomy."

The development of this muscle, Dr. Robinson concludes, has marched side by side with the development of intellectual capacity and the increasing need of a means of clear expression.

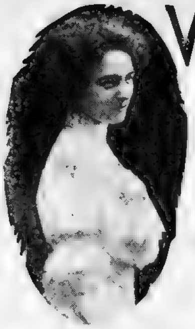
All the subtleties of language, sounding poetry and melodic phrase come from the stimulus imparted to a tasting tongue muscle by the necessity in a far gone age of utilizing our mouths to their full capacity in enjoying what we were eating and in making noises while we did it.



These Diagrams Illustrate the Action of the Genio-Glossus Muscle in Forming Four Sounds of Articulate Speech. The Muscle, It Is Now Asserted, Gained Its Development Through Primitive Man's Habit of Noisy Eating. First the Muscle Is Shown Making the Sound "oo," Next "ka," Next "t" and Next "ah"—All Food Sounds. The Two Other Diagrams Show the Comparative Sizes of Man's and Dog's Genio-Glossus.

What the College Girl Hazers Did to Little Miss Rogers

The Torture of a Purdue University Student That Has Roused a Country-Wide Movement Against the Cruel and Senseless Practice



Miss Mabel Rogers, Who Has Sued Seven of Her Fellow Students for Hazing Her.

THE cruel hazing of Miss Mary Rogers, of Purdue University, Ind., has led to a country-wide agitation against this degrading practice in girls' colleges.

Miss Rogers has brought a suit for $7,000 damages against her tormentors. The shocking statements she makes under oath in her complaint will astonish many persons who look upon the higher education of women as a valuable means of improving society.

The defendants are all young women of good family and social position. They are: Mary Clark, Indianapolis; Ruth Cowan, Chicago; May Blue, Lafayette; Mary Sheridan, Attica; Agnes Phillips, Mooresville; Esther Kisner, Terre Haute, and Helen Lee, Oxford.

These girls, according to Miss Rogers's story, came to her in her room while she was studying on the evening of January 14 last, a cold Wednesday.

They chased poor Miss Rogers around the room and tore her clothing off. They painted her body with red ink, poured mucilage over her and covered it with feathers, stuck her body full of pins, and then thrust her into a tub of cold water until her face was under the water and she was nearly drowned.

"I was ill at the time," says Miss Rogers, "and I told them this when they attacked me. I begged them to stop, but they paid no attention to my pleadings."

Miss Rogers declares that as a result of this hazing her eyesight has been permanently injured, and her nervous system has suffered an injury from which it has not yet recovered, and will probably never recover.

Hitherto many girls who have been injured in hazing escapades have abstained from making complaints from a sense of honor or fear of their companions. Miss Rogers is seeking legal redress with determination, and her action is welcomed by many educators who have tried in vain to stamp out the evil of hazing among girls.

President Stone, of Purdue University, has suspended the accused girls and has declared that he will make every effort to stamp out the evil.

Many observers declare that girls, when they indulge in hazing, are apt to be more cruel than men students. There is no recorded case where the men students of a college did anything as cruel as sticking pins into their victim. Such performances must necessarily be more dangerous to a girl than a man, on account of her more delicate organization.

Professor David Edgar Rice, the distinguished psychologist, of Columbia University, recently pointed out that when woman resorted to physical force, which was not normal to her, she showed a marked tendency to be more violent, unrestrained and cruel than man. He illustrated this by the example of the Chicago policewomen. They were appointed because it was believed they would be gentler in handling women, but as soon as they had occasion to use force they behaved with great harshness.

The Chicago women strikers complained bitterly of the police-women, and declared that they would much rather have to deal with policemen.

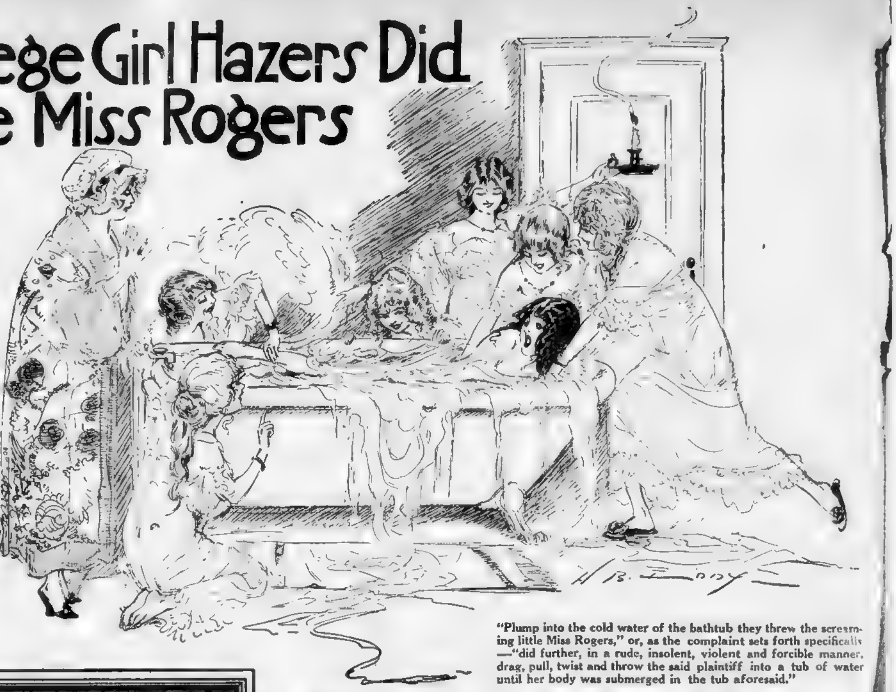
In this case we may observe the same natural tendencies that appear to make girls more cruel and unrestrained than men when they engage in the practice of hazing—a bad practice under any circumstances.

One of the many cases of brutal hazing that has been reported was that of pretty Miss Julia Mills, a New York girl of wealth and well-known family. She was to be initiated into the Sigma Gamma secret society. The others stripped and bound her and then made her believe that she was being branded in the middle of the back with a red hot iron. She fainted away and suffered an attack of serious illness from which she was long in recovering. Afterwards she learned that "the branding iron" was a lump of ice.

Miss Anna Johnson fell from an upper story window of the University of South Dakota, and severely injured herself while endeavoring to escape a hazing party.

Miss Loraine Clark complained that her fellow students at Bridgeport High School made her eat macaroni boiled in soap while blindfolded, telling her that it was worms. Then they forced her to drink kerosene and tabasco sauce and pushed her down a flight of stairs.

The complaint filed by Miss Rogers, which has brought about the present movement against these dangerous practices, is given herewith in full.



"Plump into the cold water of the bathtub they threw the screaming little Miss Rogers," or, as the complaint sets forth specifically —"did further, in a rude, insolent, violent and forcible manner, drag, pull, twist and throw the said plaintiff into a tub of water until her body was submerged in the tub aforesaid."

Mabel Rogers vs. Mary Clark, Ruth Cowan, May Blue, Mary Sheridan, Agnes Phillips, Esther Kisner, Helen Lee.

That this plaintiff is now and was on the —— day of January, 1914, a student in Purdue University, situated in said county and State; that she is and was on the said date a special student and as such is taking special work in the said university in domestic science, preparing herself for the purpose of teaching. That before the acts of the defendants hereinafter complained of the plaintiff was a strong, healthy girl, and that her eyesight was normal.

That the said defendants are, and were on the —— day of January, 1914, students in the said Purdue University, and are members of the senior class and are in the fourth year class. That all of said defendants and this plaintiff are and were on the —— day of January, 1914, students in the said Purdue University.

That there is situated on the campus grounds of the said university a building known as the "Ladies' Hall," which is a part of and connected with the said university; that the defendants and plaintiff lived herein while attending the said university at the "Ladies' Hall," and said building or a part thereof is designated and used exclusively for the purpose of rooming and living of girls attending said Purdue University as students.

That on the —— day of January, 1914, and while the said plaintiff and said defendants were students and rooming in the said "Ladies' Hall," the said plaintiff was in her room at the said "Ladies' Hall," having partially disrobed, and was then and there preparing her studies and lessons for the following day's recitations at the said university.

That the defendants then and there, on the date aforementioned, conspired and agreed to violently and forcibly haze and tub the said plaintiff, and that in accordance with said conspiracy and agreement the said defendants congregated and assembled in and about the said plaintiff's room for the purpose of carrying out said conspiracy and agreement; and the said defendants, in furtherance of their said conspiracy and agreement, did then and there, in a rude, violent and forcible manner, eject her, the said plaintiff, from her room aforesaid, by then and there pulling, dragging and pushing and twisting her, the said plaintiff, from her room aforesaid.

And that after the said defendants had violently and forcibly ejected the plaintiff from her room in the manner aforesaid, the defendants, in a rude, insolent, violent and forcible manner, tore the clothing of said plaintiff and painted the chest, back, neck of this plaintiff with red ink and poured mucilage on the back of said plaintiff.

That the said defendants then violently and forcibly stuck the plaintiff with pins, trying to compel the said plaintiff to kneel to the said defendants, and that all of the said acts of violence and force were in furtherance of the said conspiracy and agreement. That all of said acts of violence and force in painting and sticking with pins of this plaintiff were in the presence of the ladies and lady students rooming in the said "Ladies' Hall," to the great pain, suffering and humiliation and degradation and damage of this plaintiff.

That the plaintiff was suffering from illness at the time, but notwithstanding her pleadings and entreaties the defendants further, in a rude, insolent, violent and forcible manner dragged, pulled, twisted and threw the said plaintiff in a tub of water.

That the defendants, separately and jointly, in the furtherance of said conspiracy and agreement, threw the plaintiff in the manner and form aforesaid until her body was submerged by the water in the tub aforesaid.

That all of said acts were in the presence and seeing of the ladies of said "Ladies' Hall" as aforesaid, to the great pain, suffering, humiliation, degradation and damage of this plaintiff.

That by reason of the violence and force and the throwing of said plaintiff in the tub of water in the manner and form aforesaid, the plaintiff suffered great physical pain and damage, and that by reason of the violence and force the aforesaid plaintiff became unconscious and hysterical and remained in this condition for three or four hours, and that the plaintiff suffered great pain therefrom and that by reason of the violence and force and acts aforesaid plaintiff was compelled to go to the hospital to be treated for the bruises and other injuries sustained.

That by reason of the violence and force used by the defendants the plaintiff's eyes were affected to the extent that they are but 25 per cent normal, all of which was caused by the violent and forcible throwing of said plaintiff in water, as aforesaid.

That by reason of the violence, force and acts of the defendants against the plaintiff, the plaintiff's nerves were affected and the plaintiff became, and is now, very nervous and has trouble with her nerves; and by reason of the nervous condition of the plaintiff she can not sleep at nights without taking medicine to make her sleep.

That by reason of the hazing, violence, force and acts of the defendants to this complaint herein set out and complained of, the students of the said university in the class rooms and on the streets and the people of the streets stare at, comment on and remark about this plaintiff, to her great pain, humiliation and degradation and damage, all of which was caused by the acts of violence of the defendants to this complaint.

That the plaintiff's health and eyesight have become permanently injured and affected, all of which was caused by the violence, force and acts of the defendants, to the great damage of the plaintiff. That by reason of the sickness and injuries of the plaintiff she lost more than six weeks of school at the university and she can not now carry on the numbers of work at the university that she could before the said acts of violence of the defendants, on account of the nervous condition caused by the said violence.

That by reason of the sickness, injuries to the plaintiff and injury to her eyes, the plaintiff was put to great expense for hospital expenses, physician and medicine, all of which was caused by the violence, force and acts of the defendants herein mentioned.

That by reason of the facts herein alleged the plaintiff has been damaged to the sum of Seven Thousand Dollars.

Wherefore the plaintiff sues and asks judgment against the said defendants in the sum of SEVEN THOUSAND DOLLARS and for all other proper relief.

Science Explains That Nebuchadnezzar May Have Lived on Alfalfa

STUDENTS of the Bible have frequently been puzzled by the statement that Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, "did eat grass as the oxen," and lived in that manner for seven years.

Dr. J. B. S. King, of Chicago, author of the standard work "The Chemistry of Food," has put forward the interesting suggestion that the reason why Nebuchadnezzar was able to live so long in this way was that he ate alfalfa, the wonderful food-plant which has done so much for vast regions of the West. There is evidence to show that alfalfa grew in the vicinity of ancient Babylon and that its raw leaves will feed men.

The story of Nebuchadnezzar is told in the Book of Daniel. The great King, at the height of his power, had a strange dream, and called upon Daniel to interpret it. The prophet said the dream meant that:

They shall drive thee from men, and thy dwelling shall be with the beasts of the field, they shall make thee to eat grass like oxen and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will.

"The same hour was the thing fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar: and he was driven from men, and did eat grass as the oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of Heaven, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws."

The "seven times" is understood to mean "seven years." The Bible narrative tells us that at the end of that period Nebuchadnezzar returned to his home strengthened in mind and body, free from arrogant and tyrannical tendencies and greatly improved in character.

How are we to explain this occurrence? We know that a man cannot live for seven years, or for many days, on what is ordinarily called grass. Every occurrence may, of course, be explained on the ground that it was a divine miracle, but in this case it would be more reasonable to seek for a natural explanation. This would be provided if we find that alfalfa grew around Babylon.

The territory adjacent to the city of Babylon was a highly cultivated alluvial district irrigated by a splendid system of canals and laterals, mainly planned by and constructed under the personal direction of King Nebuchadnezzar. The plain lying on the western bank of the Euphrates was commonly called "Edin," and is supposed by many to have been the "Eden" of Genesis. It was upon this fruitful plain that the Bedouin subjects of Nebuchadnezzar, captured in war, pastured the flocks and herds of their Babylonian masters.

Here was enacted the drama played by the insane king, one of the greatest and most impressive figures in ancient history. He had proved himself to be an exception to the rule that strong men in positions of power must be ruthless also. Invincible in war, undefeated throughout his forty odd years as ruler of a warlike nation, he was yet a peace-loving monarch and devoted to the work of beautifying his capital city, improving the agricultural resources of his country and fortifying both against invasion by neighboring rulers.

Twice he marched on and captured Jerusalem. The second time, 588 B. C., he sacked the city, tore down Solomon's temple and led the inhabitants away to the last Babylonian captivity. This act was inspired by knowledge of the fact that the Jews had betrayed him to the invading Egyptians, whom he overthrew.

But neither Nebuchadnezzar's greatness as a military genius nor his wisdom as a civil governor would have kept him alive during his period of insanity if he had not found food that would sustain human life. The question naturally arises, therefore, could he have eaten grass like oxen and still live?

In the light of modern science the answer to this question is "Yes." Here is the explanation:

In the year 490 B. C., less than 100 years after the Babylonian king is said to have lived and fed with the beasts in the field, the Arabs brought into Greece from Persia the seeds of a plant with which they long had been familiar—"Alfalfa." At that time Babylonia had become a part of the Persian Empire through conquest by Cyrus after the death of Nebuchadnezzar.

The Bedouins who fed the Babylonian flocks on the plain of Edin were nomadic, pastoral Arabs who had flocks and herds of their own; bred a strain of horses that has been famous for three thousand years; roamed from place to place when they were not serving an enforced captivity; fought when they could find anyone to fight with; practised predatory robbery and violence and stole everything they could get their hands on. Yet they honored with religious fidelity a code of ethics with respect to their pledged word that modern peoples might copy to their everlasting credit.

They were popularly supposed to be descendants of Ishmael, son of Hagar, and their proper home was in the northern part of the Arabian peninsula. Southern Arabs were an agricultural, commercial and industrial people, living in cities and villages.

These so-called Bedouins had known and used alfalfa for centuries before they introduced it into Europe, and they had given to it the name it now bears in this country, the meaning of which is, literally, "the best fodder." This fact being established, it is permitted to assume that alfalfa grew abundantly on the irrigated plains of Babylon, just as it now grows luxuriantly in the irrigated valleys of Central California, in Texas and other Western States.

As a matter of fact, it is not only reasonable to suppose such to be the case, but it would be unreasonable to doubt it. The Babylonians of Nebuchadnezzar's time had attained to a high state of civilization, and they were far ahead of all their neighbors in advanced agricultural methods. They had the best of everything to be found in Western Asia. Is it reasonable to suppose they did not also have "the best fodder?"

If it be true that alfalfa grew on the plains of Babylon in the sixth century before Christ, there is no element of improbability in the statement that Nebuchadnezzar ate alfalfa "like oxen," for alfalfa alone of all grasses is shown by chemical analysis to contain digestible nutrients in the proportions required to sustain human life. All other grasses contain so large a percentage of non-digestible fiber and other matter that the digestive organs of men cannot take from them and assimilate a sufficient quantity of nourishment to feed the body.

The analysis may be found in Bulletin No. 95, issued by the North Dakota Agricultural College, an official publication. The analysis differs somewhat from that of other samples made at different times and places, and it is important to note that the protein in the North Dakota sample shows a lower percentage than other samples. An analysis of a sample of alfalfa hay grown in Wisconsin, for instance, shows 18.17 per cent. of protein, and protein is the tissue building food element. The North Dakota publication gives a comparison between alfalfa hay and wheat bran, the latter being commonly known to be capable of sustaining human life. Here is the table:

		—Digestible Nutrients—
	Dry Matter in 100 Lbs.	Protein.	Carbohydrates.	Ether Extract.
Alfalfa	91.6	10.4	39.6	1.2
Wheat bran.	88.1	12.2	39.2	2.7

Further proof of the food value of alfalfa is shown by the fact that alfalfa meal is now being manufactured in large quantities, not only as feed for poultry and domestic animals, but for human consumption as well.

At a banquet recently held in Chicago, participated in by former citizens of the State of Kansas, which, by the way, is the banner alfalfa State, the menu embraced coffee, tea, cake and croutons made from Nebraska alfalfa. Bread, biscuit, breakfast food, candy and syrup also are commercial products made from alfalfa, and alfalfa griddle cakes are said to be extremely palatable.

For the purpose of making alfalfa meal the plant is cut when it has attained a growth of from eight to twelve days—while it is young and tender. The analysis from which the foregoing figures are taken was of a sample of alfalfa hay, cut when the plants had begun to blossom, probably after a growth of from thirty to forty days. The percentage of digestible nutrients is much higher in the young plants than in those that reach their full growth.

Another significant fact is that fully 60 per cent. of the protein is found in the leaves of the plant. The leaf of the young plant would therefore be much more nutritious than wheat bran, and people have lived for considerable periods on the latter.

Remembering these facts, it seems clear that Nebuchadnezzar, by selecting young plants and eating only the leaves, could have sustained life very easily.

Why We Have Such Wretched TEETH

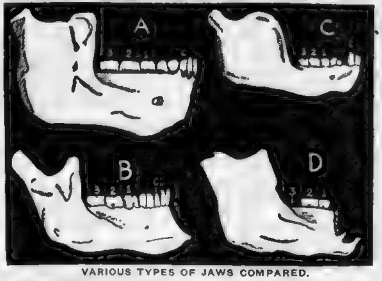
By Dr. E. P. BEADLES.

THE important problem of why mankind happens to have such wretched teeth is being solved by studying the skulls of prehistoric men. It seems that man's rapidly developing brain is to blame for his crumbling teeth.

Somewhere, hundreds of thousands of years ago, before the "hunting and fishing" stage of the human race, man had a most magnificent set of teeth. He was able to crack the toughest nuts and bones on his back teeth, and with his front one he could tear the bark from a tree or rip the biceps from an enemy

The fang-like pointed teeth known as eye-teeth or "canines," were not merely for fighting purposes, as usually supposed. Their main function was to guide the jaws and prevent them from slipping or skidding past each other when biting hard substances.

Science Explains How Teeth Have Degenerated Since the Days When Man Had TUSKS TO KEEP HIS JAWS FROM SKIDDING



VARIOUS TYPES OF JAWS COMPARED.

A—Jaw of the Heidelberg Man; B—Modern Man's; C—A Chimpanzee's; D—The Sussex Man's.. Note How Similar the Latter Is to the Chimpanzee's.

Then man's brain began to tell him how to get better food and more of it, so that he did not need to tear up roots nor crunch bones so much But such food as he ate he now wished to grind and crush with a side swing of his lower jaw. This was impossible so long as his canines projected and locked the jaw. So nature allowed these eye-teeth to shrink to the height of the others.

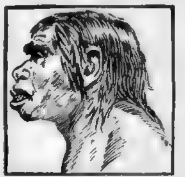
Then and there were sown the first seeds of human tooth troubles. Rapid changes in quality of food affected the use of the other teeth, and man's new-found power of speech molded his jaw in one direction, while his growing brain distorted the rest of his skull

The bones of the prehistoric "Man of Sussex" and the "Heidelberg Man" carry us back some two hundred thousand years. The "Heidelberg Man" (so called because found near the city of that name) has a massive jaw, which recalls, both by its size and shape, the anthropoid rather than the modern human bone. In man of the present day the chin is prominent, projecting in advance of the lower front teeth, while in the Heidelberg jaw, as in the anthropoid, the opposite is the case. To the superficial observer the Heidelberg man would appear chinless, but such is not really the case. The teeth are so strongly developed that they mask the lower or chin part.

In modern men the total grinding surface of the teeth is two-fifths of an inch less than in the Heidelberg man. There has been a reduction in dental development, with the result that the teeth and the tooth containing part of the jaw have retreated and left the chin prominent. While the upper part of the jaw varies according to the size of the teeth, the lower borders of the jaw on which the chin is set varies according to the size of the floor of the mouth.

In order to allow free movement of the tongue and of other parts concerned in speech movements, the lower border of the jaw, which bounds the floor of the mouth, has opened out in modern man. Speech requires that the floor of the mouth should be opened out to give free movements to all those parts concerned in the easy production of speech.

Now, in shape and size the Heidelberg jaw shows a condition intermediate to the anthropoid ape and the modern human forms. The anthropoid jaw is the primitive one; the jaw is framed to serve the purpose of mastication; the jaw of modern man is modified to serve in speech. In the Heidelberg man we must admit that the mouth is mainly adapted for mastication.



"The teeth of early man were so strongly developed that he appeared chinless."

The various modifications we associate with speech are also there, but in a partially developed condition. The anatomical features of the mouth indicate that human speech, of a primitive nature, may have been present in this early form of man At last we reach, in the Heidelberg remains, a point in the evolution of man where the possibility of speech may be called in question.

From the Heidelberg jaw we learn that the human mechanism of mastication was fully developed at the beginning of the Pleistocene Period The canine teeth, which are so large and prominent in all forms of anthropoids, have in the Heidelberg specimen subsided to the level of the neighboring teeth in the dental series. We may assume that at one period in the evolution of man the canines were prominent and pointed, as in the anthropoids, for it is only on such a supposition that the peculiarism of human canids and their position during de[illegible].

To understand the retrogression of the canine teeth in man, it is necessary to understand the mechanism of mastication in the anthropoid, and the part played in this act by these great teeth. In anthropoid apes the muscles of mastication are extremely strong, so that the toughest and most resistible of edible things can be crushed between the teeth. In exercising great force there is a tendency for the lower jaw to skid or slip sidewise, but such movements are [illegible] by the prominent canines coming into contact as the jaws close, thus preventing a false [illegible] movement. The canines may serve as organs of defense or attack in the anthropoid as in the dog, but their main purpose is that of dental guides for the jaws

The peculiarity of the mastication in the ancient forms of man is the side to side and oblique movements of the lower jaw whereby the food was crushed and pulverized between the upper and lower teeth. Such chewing movements were impossible so long as the canine teeth projected beyond the level of the other teeth.

The retrogression of the canine teeth in the primitive human stock and the evolution from the anthropoid to the early man mechanism of mastication must be sought in the Pliocene Period, or even earlier. In the early Pleistocene man the evolution of the human dentition was already completed

A study of the Heidelberg jaw shows how rough and tough the precious diet of this early race of man must have been. The part of the jaw which ascends to become jointed with the base of the skull and to receive the attachment of the muscles of mastication, is of enormous size. The area of its outer surface is almost exactly twice that of modern man

Even at this early point in human evolution the crowns of the teeth had assumed a truly human character in size and form, but it was otherwise with their roots. Their necks are almost as large as their crowns, and the roots have become so massive, strong and thick that they have grown together. When knowledge ameliorated the quality of f[illegible] human diet, th[illegible] overgrown con[illegible] tion in the roo[illegible] of the teeth di[illegible] appeared.

Girlish Costume with New Hip Pockets and Cutaway Jacket.

By Lady Duff-Gordon.

IN this song of the hat I have so many interesting things to tell you that I know not where to begin. There are so very many different kinds of hats that I know not which to offer you first. Perhaps when one gets down to the last analysis the Watteau chapeau will be found to be the greatest favorite of the Spring. There is more than one shape in this class. The one with which we are most familiar is, of course, that which is turned up at the back, but one which will hold just as high a place in fashion's esteem is uptilted on the side. Such hats are trimmed with flowers or loops of ribbon.

And, speaking of ribbons, I wonder how you are going to like the new lacquered ribbon which is so much the rage just now here in Paris. Of course, like everything else which can be procured in the department shops, it is bound to become very common.

Personally I do not like it. It is harsh and unpleasant, I think, therefore when I use ribbons I use the moire. It is just as effective and far more feminine than the lacquered ribbons.

Fashion is a queer jade, and because of her queerness is ever fascinating. There never was a more feminine period than the Watteau. This Spring, therefore, we are utterly feminine when we place a flower-trimmed hat of that period on our carefully coiffed head. We wear with this a draped frock of flowered silk and present the essence of femininity.

The next hour we may turn and become thoroughly masculine in our appearance. The Louis Phillipe is the most chic of the so-called masculine shapes. When trimmed with a band of stiff moire belting or of the lacquered ribbon and held in place with two hat pins the "mere man" effect is most pronounced.

The Wondrous Power of Man

THE United States has begun in earnest the work of making this North American continent what it should be.

First, the people of our country planted their ideas, laws and government on a narrow Eastern strip along the Atlantic, called the thirteen original United States.

Thence they spread west across the thousands of miles of mountain and prairie to the Pacific Ocean, taking the same ideas and laws with them.

AND NOW THEY ARE ON THE MARCH TO THE SOUTH.

The duty of an intelligent human being is to consider himself, first, as one atom in the human race, responsible to the little human beings next to him and dependent on him.

Second, his duty is to look upon himself as part of a whole race and to consider what he can contribute in thought, action or inspiration to the work of the race as a whole.

The picture on this page illustrates vividly the duty and the power of mankind.

To the south of our country there was a strip of land separating two oceans—that strip worthless in itself.

Men from the North, realizing that the whole earth is man's garden and farm, that oceans must be united if man says so, that mountains must come down and deserts bloom at his command, undertook the uniting of the oceans—and carried the work through.

At the bottom of this picture you see the Panama region as it was.

What men have done at Panama, at Suez, on the Nile controlling nature's water supply, in our western deserts through irrigation, in Holland by conquest of the sea with dikes, MAN WILL DO EVENTUALLY EVERYWHERE ON THIS EARTH'S SURFACE.

This planet, twenty-five thousand miles around, will be under man's control AS ABSOLUTELY AS THE FLOOR OF ANY LITTLE GREENHOUSE.

Heat, vegetation, water—all will be controlled by man.

The works already accomplished prove it and the unlimited ambition of man prophesies it.

Just now what interests the United States, above all other things, is the problem of the territory between our main southern boundary and this canal that we have just built.

The United States must solve the problem of the moral swamps and moral fevers of Mexico, as it has solved the problems of fevers and of swamps at Panama.

As we cut the ditch through the continent and united the oceans we fought disease and fever and conquered both.

In Mexico this country must and will do for moral infection what it did at Panama for physical diseases.

The zone of lawlessness, misery, murder, sorrow and slavery called Mexico, lying between us and the Panama Canal, will be cleansed, renewed and revived by the United States.

For years this country waited and postponed the digging of the canal at Panama. Then the work was done.

For years the country has waited and postponed the solving of the Mexican problem. We shall wait no longer; the work is under way.

Our boundary has moved south to our land on both sides of the Panama Canal.

Our Government will move south with the boundary and include, civilize, IMPROVE and build up Mexico.

The people of the United States know what this Mexican situation means.

It means war not with one cutthroat, as Senator Lodge has very well said, but with all the cutthroats, anarchists and oppressors in Mexico, north or south.

The solution of the Mexican problem will be the end of rule by all bandits, whether located at Chihuahua or Mexico City, whether named Huerta the Indian, or Villa the mule driver.

The police of a city are not sent into a disorderly neighborhood to suppress one gang of ruffians and exalt another. They are sent to suppress all ruffians and restore order.

Our battleships and troops will not go to Mexico to suppress one cutthroat and exalt another.

The United States will not be made part of a kaleidoscope of murder, spoliation and oppression.

We shall replace a revolutionary kaleidoscope endless and without meaning in its changes WITH SOLID GOVERNMENT AND PERMANENT GROWTH.

That new Government reaching all over Mexico will be the Government of THE UNITED STATES.

That new growth will be the prosperity, opportunity and hope that are the basis of United States happiness.

Man must work in many directions to make this earth a fit habitation for men.

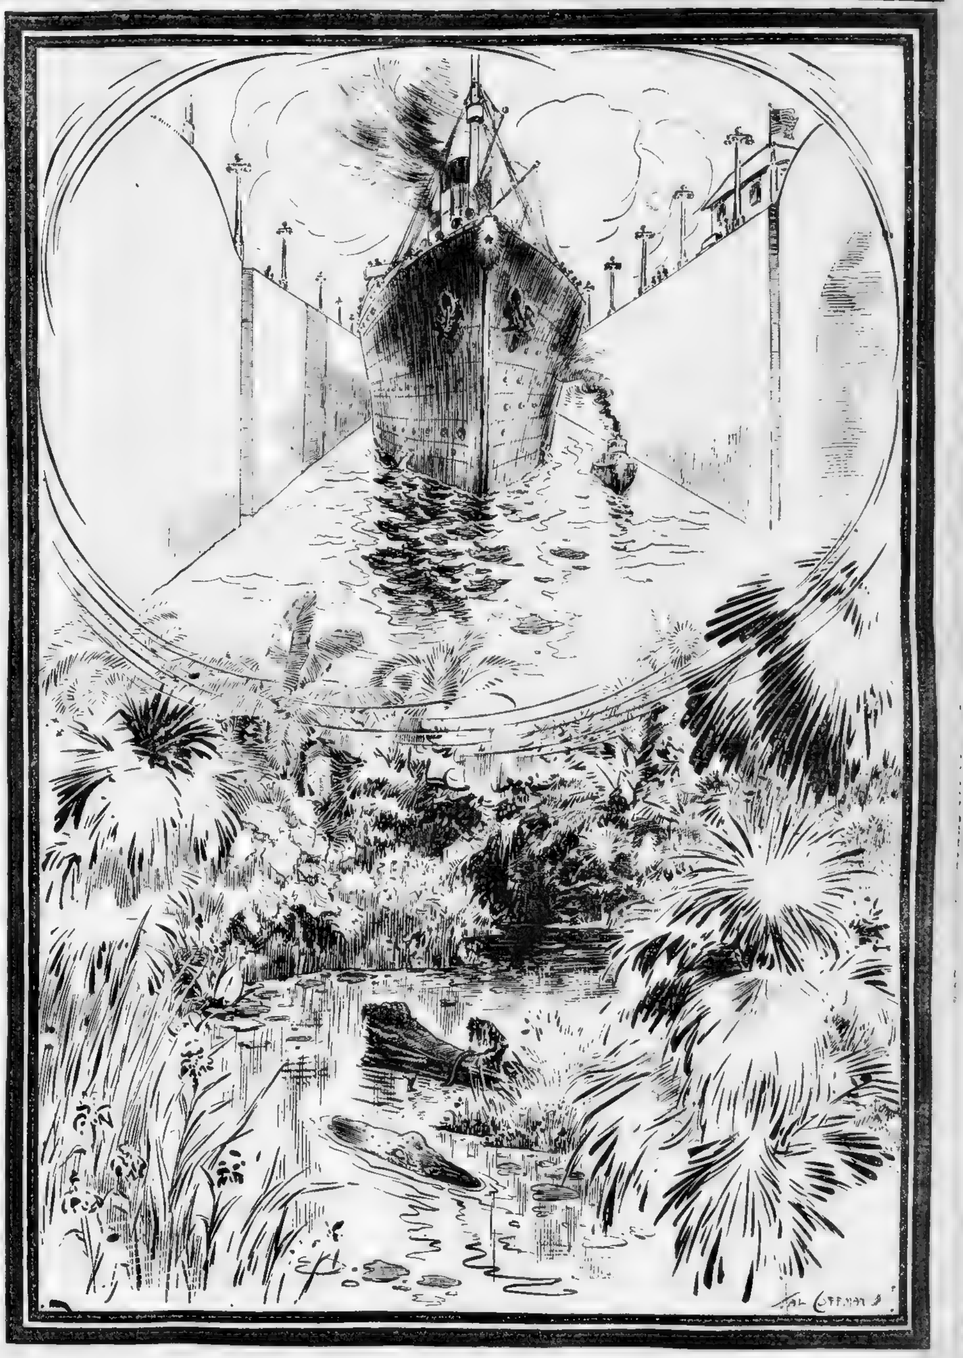
He must kill off the snakes, crocodiles, lions and wolves, fight the fevers, drain the swamps, irrigate the deserts.

And he must do for the nature of man when it is imperfect what he does for the imperfect soil.

We have united the two oceans.

We shall unite two peoples, Mexico and the United States, making of them one. Both will be better for the union.

And that union will be a step toward real civilization, real development of the earth upon which we live.



Man Is the Guardian and the Gardener of This Planet.

This Picture Shows What He Has Done Recently to Improve the Globe in His Work at Panama.

He Has Eliminated a Region of Fever, Uselessness, Swamp and Death, Changing It to Good Territory, Traversed by a Great Canal Uniting Two Oceans. What He Has Done in That One Spot He Will Do Everywhere on Earth.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

WRITES OF

Loveless Marriages and Divine Inheritance

Children Born in Wedlock Without Love Are Handicapped. Only by Faith in God Can They Overcome the Weakness of Being "Badly Born"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

[illegible] American Examiner 1914

JUST exactly what this correspondent may mean by his plea is not made clear in his petition

"I come to you pleading for the badly born, whom society brands and marks and sears, withering and wilting their name and making outcasts of them. There seems no one to speak for them so they, too, may be wholesome and clean.

"Oh, [illegible] cry carried on the wings of burdened sorrow to thine ear into a song of sympathy [illegible] up the drear pathway of the badly born and turning the damp gray hovering over them into a fairer, better day."

There are many, many badly born people on earth

There are few well born

Society does not "brand or mark, or sear" most of the badly born, for many of the worst born are in society

By worst born is meant those who are born from parents who married without love and who brought children into the world without its legitimate stamp—the Divine Hall Mark of birth.

The most important thing in birth is to be born of a mother who loved the father of her child, and who therefore loved her unborn child and rejoiced in motherhood

Only a very small percentage of such [illegible] can be found in any community or any class

In fashionable society love marriages occur, now and then. And in those love marriages, now and then a child is born which is desired and welcomed But that is the exception to the rule prevailing in such circles.

Just as it is the exception to the rule in royal circles.

Princesses and princes have their marriages arranged for them usually, and the children born to such parents are not well born, not stamped with the Divine Hall Mark, even when they have been desired

Yet they ofttimes receive the honors of earth.

A child born of parents who are inharmonious, and who do not welcome the coming of the child, is indeed badly born.

Children born of parents who are diseased, in body or mind, are badly born.

Yet there is no being so badly born who may not rise to usefulness, power and happiness, if A FULL CONSCIOUSNESS OF HIS DIVINE INHERITANCE FROM the SOURCE of all life takes possession of his mind and dominates his thoughts and actions continually.

Let such a one say every morning on rising:

"I am a Divine Being No matter what conditions prevent my bearing the stamp of Right Birth, I am Divine; I have a right to God's opulence; power, peace, plenty are mine. All hindrances to my possession of health, wealth and usefulness are swept away I am circled by Invisible Helpers and they shall lead me into my Kingdom"

I have my heart's desire

Let this assertion be repeated every night before falling asleep. And the badly born shall suddenly come into a new birth and stand among the well born. For mind is greater than matter and God is over All

Why Not a World of Friends? By ELBERT HUBBARD

(FROM HEARST'S MAGAZINE FOR MAY)

OLD Doctor Johnson and Oliver Goldsmith were once [illegible] Mitre Tavern [illegible] and Great [illegible]

"I hate [illegible]," said [illegible] [illegible] thumb in the [illegible]

"Who is he?" asked little Oliver Goldsmith.

"I don't know."

"And you hate him?"

Doctor Johnson [illegible] and [illegible] in the wake of [illegible] in a [illegible] Goldy, [illegible] the [illegible] I don't know the man [illegible] I knew him I [illegible] him

Great virtues are not our own until we give them away. The love we carry in our hearts is the love we have bestowed on another. We grow through expression

When a Governor of Vermont devised "Old Home Week" he had a great thought

When various cities in the United States set apart a day, an [illegible] of the Vermont plan, and [illegible] a "Home-Comers' Day," they did well

But when the city of Cedar Rapids inaugurated a "New-Comers' Day" it did better

The success of "Home-Comers' Day" turns on the number of people who have left the place.

The success of "New-Comers Day" turns on the number of people who have come into the town.

One refers to the past, the other as in mind the future

In Cedar Rapids, the Board of Trade carries a continuous advertisement in the newspapers, asking each New-Comer to call and register. Then they give him a badge which contains his name and it is understood that all citizens, when they see a person wearing this badge of the New-Comer, are to give him the glad hand and the welcoming [illegible]

If they can do anything to smooth life's pathway for him, they do it. If he wants to rent a house, purchase property, is in need of credit, work, friends or any [illegible] [illegible] anywhere, the New-[illegible] everything that is his [illegible]

[illegible] "[illegible] Comers' Day" the women [illegible] their business to call [illegible] who live in their [illegible] city.

[illegible] children are also [illegible] the spirit and bid a [illegible] of the new pupils, [illegible] to make them feel at [illegible] ness vanishes; loneliness [illegible] way to human love; [illegible] is bridge great cold [illegible], deserts of emotion [illegible] to blossom like the rose; [illegible] places in desolate hearts [illegible] green; and sorrow and [illegible] away

[illegible] municipality flavored [illegible] friendship a city with a soul [illegible] Sometimes we are told that corporations have no souls. The fact [illegible] that anything that doesn't have a soul is dead

All great business institutions, [illegible] in the line of progression are animated by right intent. Kindness, courtesy, friendliness, are all very tangible assets

We do business on courage, animation, hope, love. And when these are killed and the glooms drive out the joys of business, it is time to call in the undertaker.

I would like to see the United States government permeated with friendship

I would like to see all officials high in power cease that lofty, [illegible], customary habit of beginning a letter with the abrupt "Sir"

I would have every official at Washington begin every letter thus: "My dear Friend.

I would like to see the government call a man "Brother" instead of "Sir" I would like to see [illegible] government [illegible] a business basis For anything that is on a business basis today, carries with it the friendly germ

[illegible] make money today deal in friendship When they make a sale, they make a friend

If a city has an official "New Comers' day," when the whole town puts forth an effort to welcome the New-Comer, wouldn't it be well for Uncle Sam to get into the game of gladness and have a few social promoters, say at E[illegible] Island, to give the hand of welcome to every acceptable immigrant, and pin on the lapel of dress or coat a little American Flag? Wouldn't that Flag be prized, and wouldn't the smile of welcome and the hand-grasp be long remembered? And how little these things would cost!

They would be tangible benefits to the United States that would manifest themselves in better work, higher endeavor—better citizens.

Friendship in government; friendship in municipal affairs; friendship in business.

Why not make this world a place of friends?

ONLY WOMAN SENATOR IN U. S.

WRITES OF

Why Society Should Deal With Divorce

Children of Divorced Parents Form One-Third the Inmates of Orphan Asylums and One-Half the Inmates of Reformatories and Prisons

By HELEN RING ROBINSON

State Senator in Colorado and the only woman holding a Senatorship in the United States.

ANY one who has ever happened to try it will grant that thinking is very hard work.

That is why, when such a subject as divorce is discussed, very few are willing to think about the question. They merely talk about it and write about it, repeating stock phrases and arguments left over from yesterday which may make a noise like an idea, but have already lost all contact with reality

Thus there are always people who voice their second hand discussion with regrets over the passing of the good old-fashioned marriages." If they did any thinking they would thank God they are passing—those "good old-fashioned marriages" compounded of coarse [illegible] under the blessing of Church and cringing subjection and brutal tyranny under the protection of the law

There are more happy and complete marriages today than ever before in the history of the world.

Then there are those who lament "divorce is breaking up the home, apparently quite losing sight of the fact that divorce is the least of a whole group of causes that are today destroying the home

A single battle has wrecked more homes in a day than all our divorce mills could shatter in a year

Society undermines a home every time it sentences the father of a family to the penitentiary without providing that his earnings during his imprisonment shall belong to that family

Society is today providing for the destruction of unnumbered homes by permitting economic conditions which draw, perforce, child-bearing women under the monstrous, grinding wheels of our modern industry

With equal thinklessness, there are those who assert that parents should remain together for the sake of their children, no matter how wretched their marriage may have proved, how profitless for their wellbeing

Such people lose sight entirely of the fact that everything depends on how such parents remain together There are married couples whose living together is actually a ghastly dying together. The dying together of kindness, the dying together of trust and of honor The dying together of all that is best in their natures.

Childhood must suffer cruelly from broken homes. But it suffers more from charnel houses miscalled homes

So when it comes to discussing the grounds of divorce we hear the same vain iterations

Clergymen, for example, who declare that divorce should be granted for one cause alone—sexual infidelity—might seem, from such a declaration, to hold that the sex relation is all there is in marriage. But that generally is not true. They are merely mild-minded persons, empty mouthpieces for outworn phrase

Sex is indeed a vivid elemtn in marriage, but it is not the only element People who think and people who see have come to understand that a man may be faithful to his wife in this, while in all the other interests of their common life he is brutally unfaithful to her

Should a divorce be granted for the lesser infidelity—that of the flesh—and withheld for the greater infidelity—that of the spirit?

Society must always be one of the parties since society must put up with the results of the divorce

What are the results?

Frustrated happiness, which cripples the social values of men and women This at best.

And at worst?

The draggled huddle of "immoral" women; the furtive ranks of criminal men recruited from divorce courts; the children of divorced parents forming one-third of all the inmates of orphan asylums, one half of all the inmates of reformatories and prisons

These are the living reasons why society has a right to concern itself with the granting of divorces; why the "free divorce" which some modernists advocate is unthinkable under our present social conditions

DR. PARKHURST WRITES ON IMMORTALITY

By DR. C. H. PARKHURST.

Written for the Boston Sunday American.

HOWEVER occupied people may be with the affairs of this life, there are few, if any, who do not sometimes throw their thoughts forward toward a possible life to come. It is safe to say that there is more of this forecasting of another world than has outward expression given to it

A few are hoping that there is nothing more for them after death, being more than satisfied with what they have had already. Some simply brood over the possibility of immortality wonderingly. The most, by far the most, are trusting that the few years we pass here are nothing more than the beginning of life, its vestibule, feeling that conditions, as they exist now, require something additional, in order to be their explanation and justification.

It is probable that there is less general belief in immortality than there was fifty years ago. When a boy, as I remember it, a man who expressed doubt in the doctrine was regarded as queer, as a mental and moral defective Nothing, so far as appears, has in the meantime been discovered to invalidate the doctrine, and the change that has transpired in men's opinions is considerably due to the attitude of the scientists

The scientists have not discovered that we are NOT immortal, but have simply failed to discover that we ARE immortal, and there is no reason why they should not have failed, for the mind, the immortal part of us, if there be any immortal part, is not a matter that scientists have any concern with, or any special qualification or equipment for investigating

A man who knows one thing with considerable thoroughness is liable to imagine that large value therefore attaches to his opinion upon other matters, however distinct they maye be from the particular subject upon which he is specially informed

That states the precise condition of mind of certain investigators who have accomplished distinguished results in their study of matter and who therefore consider that they are authorities upon questions of mind, spirit and immortality Which is as unreasoning as for a mathematical genius to claim that because he is an expert in questions of quantity his opinion should therefore carry in problems of art

What has just been said is stated, only in different words, by one of the most distinguished scientists of our generation, Sir Oliver Lodge, a man of such eminence as to have been elected to the presidency of the British Association, a body which may be defined as the organized scientific intelligence of the British Empire

Sir Oliver, whose accomplishments in physics and chemistry have won for him such preferment, is sufficiently broad in his appreciations to realize that however far he may have carried his chemical researches, he has not thereby been brought across the frontier of the territory of mind and consciousness; that the principles and methods applicable to the study of matter do not apply to questions of soul and religion, so that the negative attitude which a scientist, as such, may occupy as toward soul, God and immortality has no bearing pro or contra upon the question of the existence of the soul, of God and of immortality

All of this the president of the British Association has recently stated frankly and developed in detail in his presidential address delivered before that body

The address is practically a rebuke to some of his colleagues for failing to realize that mind is not matter, and that so essential is the difference betwen them that the pursuit of scientific methods of inquiry will not carry them into the region of mind, and that for them to deny the existence of a world above matter, because they have been able to achieve so much in the world that is within matter without discovering in it a soul or a God, is a bare presumption and the exercise of intellectual arrogance

Such a deliverance from so great an authority is a serious matter, and I wish the readers of this newspaper would give earnest attention to the contents of this article, for it has been written with a view to rebuking and correcting the careless and thoughtless thinking of which there is so much, even among intelligent people, and that, too, in regard to questions that are of the utmost moment

It would not be fair to the truth nor to Sir Oliver Lodge to close this article without adding that while he has not arrived at his convictions, regarding things which eye hath not seen, by the pursuit of scientific methods, he is nevertheless and on other grounds, a firm believer in the great invisible world and in the God who is enthroned in it.

THAT AFFAIR NEXT DOOR

An Entrancing Tale of Love and Mystery

BY ANNA KATHERINE GREEN

"I wanted him to believe me dead. I wanted to feel that all connection between us was severed forever. He had killed me. By killing my love and faith in him he had murdered the better part of myself, and shrank with inconceivable horror from anything that would bring me again under his eye, or force me to assert claims that it would [illegible] of my life to forget

[illegible] that went out [illegible] another [illegible] darkness to [illegible] the stars [illegible] from all [illegible] terr[illegible] began to per[illegible] that I [illegible] [illegible] summon up [illegible] to cross its grisly threshold. Yet I did nothing [illegible] hours but crouch in one of its [illegible] corners, waiting for nothing [illegible] I did not go mad in that awful [illegible] is a wonder I must have [illegible] more than once [illegible] asked and Mr. [illegible] asked, how [illegible] we know [illegible] poor victim's presence there [illegible] for her being in [illegible] and showing so little terror [illegible] time to understand before she [illegible]

[illegible] think her [illegible] I did not [illegible] prejudiced [illegible] how I could contemplate [illegible] without shrinking, I cannot now imagine. Perhaps I was [illegible] serving that the dress I had on was [illegible] [illegible] and prepared to slip out

"But here the intense dread I felt of my husband, a dread which had actuated all my movements and sustained me [illegible] as ever woman performed [illegible] me with renewed [illegible] quailed at the prospect of [illegible] ing the streets alone Suppose he should be on the stoop [illegible] he would be in an open window even! Could I [illegible] him again and live? He was far away, or so I felt. A murderer, it is said, cannot help haunting [illegible] see me alive [illegible] I not [illegible] But neither did I [illegible] after [illegible] sites on the [illegible] wild dash [illegible] I ran [illegible] Then I got [illegible] speaking to the [illegible] Providence, found [illegible] of an alleyway [illegible] undiscovered till it was late enough in the morning for me to enter a shop and buy a hat

"The rest of my movements are known. I found my way to Mrs Desberger's, this time without [illegible] from that [illegible] sought and found a situation with Miss Althorpe

[illegible] her fate was [illegible] with mine, or that the [illegible] Stone she was engaged to marry was the John Randolph from whose clutches I had just escaped, was, of course, unsuspected by me and, incredible as it may [illegible] continued to be unsuspected as long as I remained in the house. [illegible] was reason for this. My duties were such as I could well attend to in my own room and feel [illegible] horror of the world and everything in it. I kept my room [illegible] possible and [illegible] [illegible] I knew that he was [illegible]

[illegible] I overheard enough of [illegible] to learn that the murdered [illegible] had been a Mrs Van [illegible] husband or [illegible] an office somewhere [illegible] I was so seized by the [illegible] restitution that I took the first opportunity that offered [illegible] and hunt up these people [illegible] but I would injure them in any way by secretly restoring these jewels I never dreamed. Indeed, I did not [illegible] the subject, but only followed the instincts of my delirium; and while to all appearance I showed all the cunning of an insane person in the pursuit of my purpose, I fail to remember how [illegible] I found my way to Duane street, or by what suggestion of my diseased brain I was induced to slip these rings upon the hook attached to Mr. Van Burnam's desk [illegible] The mere utterance of this [illegible] in the ears of the [illegible] was enough to [illegible] directions as I needed [illegible] that may be, the [illegible] hension, and the [illegible] which followed [illegible]

Olive Randolph has [illegible] quest, taken up her abode [illegible] house. The [illegible] which [illegible] to have excited [illegible] doubt if I shall ever [illegible] to part with her [illegible] In return she gives me [illegible] getting old enough to [illegible] Her feeling for [illegible] gratitude to Miss Althorpe are the only treasures left her out of the wreck of her life, and it shall be my business to [illegible] them lasting ones.

The fate of Randolph Stone is too well known for me to enlarge upon it. But before I bid farewell to his name, I must say that after that curt confession of his, "Yes, I did it, in the way and for the motive she alleged," I have often tried to imagine the contradictory feelings with which he [illegible] have listened to the facts as they came out at the inquest, and convinced, as he had every reason to be that the victim was his wife, heard his friend Howard not only [illegible] for his but insist that [illegible] man who accompanied her to that house of death. He has never lifted the veil from those [illegible] and he never will, but I would give much of the peace of [illegible] lately come to me to know what his sensations were, not only at that time, but when, on the evening after the murder, he opened the papers and read that the woman whom he had left for dead with her brain pierced by a hatpin had been found on that same floor crushed under a fallen cabinet, and what explanation he was ever able to make to himself for a fact so inexplicable.

THE END.

A CHILD'S MORALITY PLAY IN ONE ACT

CAST OF CHARACTERS

GINGER	BAD BOY
GOOD BOY	AUNTIE OWL EYES
LITTLE DOUBT	SILVER BELL (A Fairy)

A FAIRY

SCENE A white forest—snow is falling. As the curtain rises, rabbits are seen hopping about the stage, exit right and left. Auntie Owl Eyes runs in laughing, but slips and falls down, Captain Ginger and three boys running after. Auntie Owl Eyes wears spectacles—big tortoise-shell ones—and a long automobile coat. She is young and pretty. Captain Ginger is dressed in sweater—boy's Winter costume. Good Boy, Bad Boy and Little Doubt are in white fur coats. They are Ginger's instincts. Good Boy is tall and strong, with rosy cheeks. Bad Boy is small and pale, a mean little face with snappy black eyes. Little Doubt has a turned-up nose, red hair, and limps. His manner is timid and undecided. He generally stands on one foot with his finger in his mouth.

GINGER (excitedly)—Well, I've caught you. Wasn't that a glorious snowball fight, Aunt Owl Eyes?

AUNTIE—Yes, you did catch me; but look out, I'll catch you next time. Oh! that snowball felt cold. (shudders). It went right down my neck. Oh, I'm cold! (dances to get warm) I'll leave you here for a while. I'll go home and warm my old bones, and by-and-by you'll find me by the fire, Ginger boy.

(The other boys begin to examine the ground.)

GINGER—All right, Auntie Owl Eyes. I'll not be afraid in the woods; I'll find lots of friends. The forest is alive with animals.

AUNTIE—Well, some of them, remember, go to sleep in Winter and are covered up in their white beds; and some of the birds fly South, but maybe you will see snow-birds and squirrels and bunnies.

GINGER (enthusiastically)—And foxes and bears!

AUNTIE—The bears may be sleeping in Winter in their caves. Look out, remember the strong eat the weak.

GINGER (nodding his head)—That's so; I had a partridge for lunch. It was good!

AUNTIE (laughing)—Yes, and you must [illegible] good to a bear, young man. (She waves good-bye and goes off.)

GOOD BOY—Why does she call you Ginger?

BAD BOY—I can answer. Because he's like a gingersnap—gingery and snappy.

GOOD BOY—And why do you call her Owl Eyes?

BAD BOY—I can answer. Her glasses make her look like an owl.

GINGER (looking on the ground delightedly)—Oh, there are tracks! What can they be?

GOOD BOY—Perhaps they are [illegible] footprints. Let's follow [illegible] they'll lead to an underground palace full of treasures, and fairies that dance and sing.

GINGER—You do think of such wonderful things, Good Boy. Wouldn't it be great if we should find a palace with sparkling jewels and lovely fairies? Let's hunt. We'll try to follow these footprints to the underworld.

BAD BOY—Pooh! Only wicked people live down there. (Pointing down.)

(Bad Boy and Doubt pick up sticks and swish them about, dancing a flip-flop dance while they wink and make faces and stick out their tongues.)

BAD BOY—I'm wicked! I'm wicked!

GINGER—You're nothing but a bad boy.

LITTLE DOUBT (in a whining voice)—I'm not going to look for fairies. I doubt if there are any.

GINGER—Little Doubt, you are worse than Bad Boy. He at least has some spunk about him. O, dear, I was just about to have such a magnificent time hunting for fairies, and now you've spoilt it all by making me wonder if there are any.

DOUBT—You are getting too old to believe in fairies.

GINGER—Well, I like to read about them. Do you really think I'm getting too old?

DOUBT—Ah! that the question.

GINGER—Yes, you question everything, but it is such fun to believe in nice things.

BAD BOY—Maybe these are bear tracks. (Mysteriously.) They may lead to his lair. (He pretends to be a bear, ambles and sways—Doubt joins in—and walks on all fours; he crawls up behind Ginger while Ginger is looking at the tracks, then calls out in a loud voice.) The bear may eat you. (He growls and hits Ginger on the back. They all jump.)

GINGER (turning)—Well, you did frighten me. I thought I felt the bear's paws. I might have known it, up to your tricks as usual. Who knows? Really there may be a bear nearby. Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could kill one and take him home to Auntie Owl Eyes? Then we could turn somersaults on his soft fur in front of the warm fire the rest of our lives. (All turn somersaults.)

BAD BOY—I'll tell you a secret. A bear walks pigeon-toed, but he can only strike his paws outward, not inward (shows motion)—that's true, cross my heart—(crosses his heart)—so when he attacks you, Ginger, crawl in between his paws and catch him by his tongue. Then you've got him.

DOUBT—Ah! Ah! that's a fish story, not a bear story. Anyway, I don't believe there are any bears here. It's too near the village. Bears live far off on the mountain tops, where boys seldom go. Besides, they're asleep Winter time.

BAD BOY (gaily)—We'll catch one napping.

GOOD BOY (seriously)—You wouldn't attack him when he's asleep, would you? That wouldn't be fair.

GINGER—Now, I don't suppose there are bears about here, but a bear hunt would have been so exciting (shakes his fist at Doubt.) As usual, you've spoilt it all, you tiresome, whiny little thing. I'm bound I'll get rid of you some day. I never can make up my mind when you're around.

GOOD BOY—Why, the tracks are bunny tracks, as sure as I'm alive, and there's a bunny right over there.

DOUBT—So it is! (standing first on one foot and then on the other—sucking his finger.) Shall I catch him, or not?

GOOD BOY—You're so long making up your mind, I'll catch him. (He catches the rabbit—if necessary, he can pretend to follow a rabbit out and then bring one in again. They all gather about him.)

GINGER (talking to rabbit)—How I wish you could speak, Bunny, and tell us all about the forest, and if there are fairies and where the bears live!

GOOD BOY—And why the strong eat the weak!

BAD BOY—It's nature for the strong to eat the weak. Ginger eats the partridge and the partridge eats the insect.

GOOD BOY—Maybe the rabbit can talk. Perhaps she's a good fairy herself.

BAD BOY (disgustedly)—You are just too goody-goody for words. Whew! how I hate you. Come with me, Ginger, we can have lots more fun. Leave Good Boy alone; he's tiresome. Don't you remember the time we put the rubber on the stove and how cross the cook was? Wasn't it glorious? And how bad it smelt, too. Let's do it again.

(Ginger starts to follow him.)

GOOD BOY—O, come back and see the rabbit, Ginger. Bad Boy only plays tricks and teases.

GINGER—Yes, that's true.

BAD BOY—Yes, it's true. I'd like to pull the bunny's ears, and pull your nose, too.

GOOD BOY—You won't do anything of the sort while I'm around. Ginger let's give the bunny the lump of sugar we have been saving to eat.

DOUBT—The sugar mightn't be good for him.

BAD BOY—I want the sugar myself. (They begin to box together.)

GINGER—Stop! Don't quarrel! We won't any of us eat it now. Tell us, Bunny, where are all the animals in the Winter? It is so still here in the forest. Can't you talk?

(Suddenly a fairy appears in a tree.)

GOOD BOY—Look! A fairy! she's moving!

GINGER—Isn't she lovely? Who are you? Tell us your story.

FAIRY—I'm called Silver Bell. I was once a girl, a real live girl. I was silly and vain and never thought of other people, and only of myself and of how pretty I was.

BAD BOY—Just like a girl!

FAIRY—One day I noticed that my ears were beginning to grow; and they grew longer and longer because I continued to do nothing for other people, and at last—

GINGER—O! what?

FAIRY—At last when I looked in the mirror my ears had grown so long I was frightened, and I ran and ran. I wanted to hide, so that no one could see how strange I appeared.

GINGER (breathlessly)—What happened next?

FAIRY—Finally I ran into the forest, but there I continued to think only of my own troubles, and so one day I turned into a real rabbit, just like the one you caught. For a long time now I have done kind things for the animals, so the fairies have made me one of themselves, and I hope one day to be a human girl again.

(Good Boy puts down the rabbit, which runs off the stage.)

GINGER—Gee! That story makes me feel as if I wanted to do something for somebody mighty quick, you bet!

BAD BOY—Oh, fudge! I believe it was only the dinner bell tinkling.

DOUBT—Oh, one doesn't take any stock in fairy stories. I believe it was a sleigh bell we heard.

GINGER (excitedly)—I can't stand you any longer, Doubt. I like that story, and she is a pretty fairy. She is real to me. Come and fight me if you dare. I'll get rid of you, yet, you horrible little Doubt! (swaggering).

DOUBT (with fist raised)—You Bad Boy! You Ginger Snap! You pepper pot. (fight.)

(The boys begin to fight. Good Boy takes Ginger's side and Bad Boy the side of Doubt. In the middle of the fight a bear ambles on.)

GOOD BOY—Now see what you've done. You've waked a bear up with all this noise.

DOUBT—Goodness! What shall I do?

BAD BOY—Catch him by the tongue.

DOUBT—Shall I run, or not?

GINGER—I will stay and fight him.

DOUBT—It's time for me to disappear.

(The bear begins to chase Bad Boy and then Little Doubt.)

GOOD BOY—I'll stand by you, Ginger.

BAD BOY (voice in the distance)—Catch him by the tongue.

GINGER—Help! Help! Auntie Owl Eyes, help!

(The bear lets go of Ginger, jumps up and throws of the mask, showing the face of Auntie Owl Eyes.)

AUNTIE—I got even with you! I caught you this time! I am sorry if I frightened you, Ginger Boy. Of course it was all a joke.

GOOD BOY—It was worth while. You've made a man of Ginger. You have helped him to get rid of Bad Boy and Little Doubt.

AUNTIE (looking down path)—Yes, I can see them. They are still running. Thank [illegible] they've gone.

GINGER (decid[illegible])—Little Doubt and Bad Boy [illegible] come back. I decided al[illegible] to stay and fight the [illegible] glad they've gone. Bad B[illegible] wasn't much fun anyhow. [illegible] got me into trouble. And as for Doubt (he shakes his fist) he spoils everything, Auntie.

GINGER ([illegible]) Good B[illegible] [illegible] stand by me any [illegible] Good [illegible] friends.

GOOD BOY—Be [illegible] old fellow [illegible] your [illegible] the [illegible]

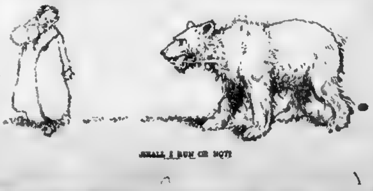
LOOK! A FAIRY! SHE'S MOVING!



SHALL I RUN OR NOT?

The Perils of Pauline

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALMENTS.

Sanford Marvin, a wealthy manufacturer of automobiles, has [illegible] by overwork. His son, Harry, and his adopted daughter, Pauline, love each other, but she wants two years of [illegible] seeing life before marrying. Her reason is that she is ambitious to be a writer. Old Mr. Marvin asks to see what she has written. While Pauline and Harry are in search of a magazine containing her story, Mr. Marvin opens the case of a mummy which has just arrived from Egypt. Raymond Owen, his rascally private secretary, helps pry off the front of the case, but leaves the old man to remove the mummy's bandages alone. Mr. Marvin, during a fainting spell, sees the half exposed mummy come to life, step out of her case, take a bracelet from her wrist and try to force it into his nerveless grasp, while her lips whisper a strange message from the remote past.

Restored to consciousness by Harry and Pauline, the old man believes it to be a dream until later he finds the identical bracelet on the mummy's skeleton wrist. He promises Pauline one year to see life and places her in the guardianship of Owen. A final heart attack gives him just time to write on the doctor's prescription blank a very brief will. Then he dies. A lawyer tells Owen that he would have permanent charge of Pauline's estate if something should happen to her before marriage. Hicks, a [illegible] man, whispers a suggestion to Owen, but the secretary refuses to have anything to do with him, for the time at least. Hicks and Owen introduce a reformed pirate, who tells Pauline of hidden treasure, and they take passage to the island of Nassau to recover the treasure.

ARRIVED at Nassau the party proceeded to the King Edward House, where Pauline found a telegram from Philip Carpenter, the lawyer, advising her to return as soon as possible to attend the signing of certain important papers. On account of the message all hands made haste to hunt for a small steamer or launch to complete the trip.

Though none of the four saw him, the old man was at the hotel. In his room he removed his wig, whiskers and spectacles, threw them into one of the two new suitcases and saw in the glass the curly hair and handsome youthful features of Harry. Then he lost no time in assuming another and very different disguise, observing to himself that the most valuable part of his college education might prove to be the secrets of "make up" he had learned in his college dramatic club.

Owen, with his usual forethought, had arranged in advance to be put in touch at once with all available boats. As a result a gasoline launch, with a cabin and stateroom, about 100 feet long, which had once been a yacht, was chartered. The "pirate's" stipulation that no stranger should see his island made it necessary for Pauline to deposit a check for $2,500 for its safe return. This the owner accepted in place of going with the party himself.

The next morning provisions were brought aboard, the "pirate" declaring that he could run the engine, and all was ready when a difficulty arose. Who was to cook? Pauline volunteered, but Owen objected, and finally the "pirate's" objections to a stranger were overcome.

A dark-skinned half-breed, with long, black hair, who had earned half a dollar by helping carry things on board, volunteered in a gruff voice.

"I'se fine cook. Best cook on the island I cook very cheap."

Mr. Crane Wilbur, Who Plays the Part of "Harry Marvin," in His Disguise as a Half-Breed Cook.

Time was too valuable to investigate the dark man's ability, so he was hired without further parley. Off went the white launch, Owen steering under instructions from the "pirate," who soon proved he knew gasoline engines. Out of the harbor they went, and then coasted along the beautiful shores of the island. The sea was calm and the cruise uneventful for some time, when the "pirate" called every one's attention to the fact that it was a long time since breakfast. He went below and addressed the cook, who had shut himself up in his tiny galley, as sailors call a boat's kitchen.

"What's your name?" demanded Boyd.

"Filipo."

"Are you a nigger?"

"I guess so; I dunno."

"Well, what were your father and mother?"

"I dunno."

"That's funny; but what I want to know is how soon grub will be ready?"

"Right away, senor."

"All right, Filipo; see that there is plenty of it."

"Dod foul my hawser, if this ain't what yer might call pleasant," declared the "pirate," showing his few and uneven teeth in a smile that reminded Pauline of the spiles of an abandoned pier. Owen offered him a cigar.

"No, sonny, them boob-sticks is for dudes and land-lubbers. Give me a good hunk of navy plug and a pipe."

So saying, he produced a short black pipe and a plug of tobacco from his pocket and a knife from his boot. With skill and celerity he carved off a slice, cut it into cubes and rolled them into grains. These proved to make exactly a pipe full, not an atom more nor less.

Pauline was pacing the deck apart from the others. In a pleasant dreaminess she was scanning the endless azure of the hushed waters. Her thoughts roamed afar.

They roamed forward and backward—forward to the vague magic land of adventure, where she was to win treasure and delight, fortune and fame; backward to a big, lovely, splendid house in New York City, where a certain tall young man, with brown, unruly hair and shoulders broad as a sheltering wall, must be pining his heart away for her.

It is so pleasant to know that some one is pining his heart away for you, when you are safely away from his guardianship amid the perils of the Spanish Main.

Some one was whistling in the cabin. Pauline paid no attention to it at first, but as the tune suddenly shifted to the very latest musical comedy air—introduced in New York the night she went away—she became interested. Owen never whistled, and Hicks, she imagined, seldom went to the theatres.

The song shifted from whistle to words:

"I'm a greatly wicked person,
If there's anybody worse on
  This terrestrial circumference of guile
(Though I very broadly doubt it)
I should like to know about it,
  For I want to be the blackest thing on file

"I'm a bad—mad—man, my dear,
I'm a liar and a flyer and flirty buccaneer
I've done everything that's awful that a human being can
I'm a bad—ma-a-d man."

"The bad man song from 'Polly Peek-a-boo.' Harry and I heard it only two weeks ago," mused Pauline.

She was puzzled. How in the world had the tune of the latest Broadway hit struck its way to distant Nassau in such time? And who on the yacht should be singing it? Moved by a sudden whimsy, she stepped to the door of the cabin and lifted her own trained voice in the replying stanza of the song:

"Yes, from Frisco to Madrid, you
Never did a good deed, did you?
  Oh, I think it's fine for a man to be so wild!
They should be all Robin Hoody,
For I hate the goody-goody,
  And I longed to meet a bandit when a child."

You're a bad—mad—man, my dear,
You're a hater and traitor and a gallant chevalier.
But of course you are so shocking I must spurn you—if I can,
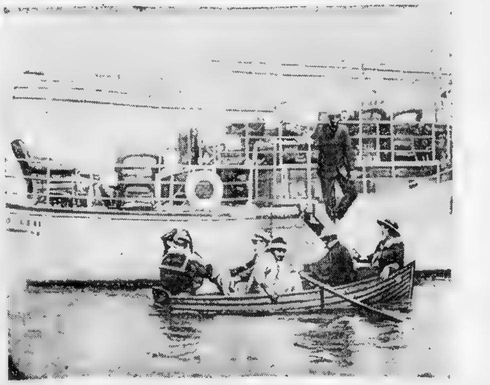
You're a bad—ma-a-d man."

She was rewarded for her venture only by a sudden silence in the cabin. Then quickly the whistling was resumed. This time it was a weird, nondescript melody of the south seas. Pauline entered the cabin.

There was no one there but the cook. In his dingy linen suit he was standing at the table peeling potatoes and whistling. He stopped as Pauline entered. A tall, powerful man, though of slouching posture, he bowed deferentially.

"No like me sing—no sing," he suggested.

"On the contrary, I like it very much. You sing very well indeed, Filipo. Would you mind telling me where you heard the song you were just singing?"



This Is from the Motion Picture Film of "Pauline" by the Pathe Players

The Strange Party Go On Board the Chartered Yacht and Start On the Ill-Fated Expedition in Search of the Treasure.

"Big American man, up Nassau—he sing 'um. Very fine man—big fool daughter," replied Filipo.

"You speak very good English when you sing," remarked Pauline. "Why don't you do it all the time?"

The cook hesitated. He slashed viciously at a potato.

"Speak good English all time—bad English when sing!"

"What do you mean?"

"Boss say: Filipo, you will please make me a large cake this morning. Put all your skill into the cake, Filipo, for I have invited company.' Boss, he just sing I talk good English. I say: 'Bake fine good cake—'nough said.'"

"Oh, I see you are a scholar as well as a musician, Filipo."

"No scholar. Never read nothing but cook book. Big American daughter—she scholar."

"I though you said she was a fool."

"Same thing."

Pauline began to scrutinize half suspiciously this remarkable menial, but he kept stolidly at work at the potatoes, and his dark skin, his scraggly beard, his bagging trousers upturned over bare feet, his general delapidation of appearance, proved him nothing but one of the common derelicts of the languid islands.

"If you could peel potatoes instead of butchering them, there would be a little more to eat, in case we run out of supplies, Filipo," suggested Pauline.

He turned on her a frank American grin. For an instant the twinkle in the keen blue eyes upset her. It was so like the twinkle in a pair of keen blue eyes that were supposed to be figuratively weeping for her fate in far-off New York. But instantly he changed his attitude.

"No like cook—cook quit," he grumbled.

"Oh, no, indeed, Filipo, you must not be offended. I was just speaking to Mr. Owen this morning about raising your salary. But, tell me, why was the big American's daughter a fool? Who was she, Filipo?"

"Ethel Louisa Schmitzenheimer-Raleigh, New York, U. S. A. Great scholar. Study book, study map, hire big crooks, cheap pirate, go hunt loose change dumped in sea."

"Well, what is so foolish about that?" snapped Pauline. "Doesn't every one know there is buried treasure along the Spanish Main?"

"Sure, plenty treasure. No buried, though. Big American daughter got all treasure; pirate string big yarns; crooks take ship, kill girl, get money. Easy money," finished Filipo, with a surreptitious glance at Pauline.

A thick voice came to them from the cabin door.

"I begs to report, Miss," said Blinky Boyd, the pirate, reeling in, "that there be mut-ny in yer crew. Mr. Hicks and Mr. Owen, Miss, has rebelled against me authority and has refused me drink!"

"That is an outrage, Mr. Boyd. They do not realize how your nerve racking adventures have shattered your strength. I will attend to it myself," said Pauline sympathetically. "Filipo, give Mr. Boyd a drink."

"Drink? Yes, meem," replied Filipo, with such unwonted alacrity that Pauline turned in surprise.

She saw the slouching figure of the cook suddenly stiffen to his full stalwart height. She saw an ill clad, but majestic giant stride toward the pirate, bowl him over with a gentle tap, pinion his arms and legs in a lifting grasp and carry him toward the door of the cabin.

Cries of rage came stuffily from the thick throat of Boyd.

"Lemme go, ye scum, lemme go," he yelled.

"Filipo! Filipo! Stop this instant! How dare you treat Mr. Boyd in such a manner?" cried the indignant girl.

"You say, 'Give him drink.' He say, 'Lemme go,'" answered Filipo, pausing with his squirming burden a moment, then passing through the door.

"Drink! Ye illiterate fool, drink! She is telling ye ter gimme a drink," screamed the hero of desperate encounters on land and sea.

"Big, fat drink," agreed the cook, as he strode toward the rail.

Pauline rushed upon him. The peril of her precious pirate stirred all her courage. She saw her dreams vanishing—the chief narrator, navigator and guide of the treasure voyage suspended in two strong arms over the blue deep. Forgetting that he was accustomed to conquer twenty men single handed, she felt only pity for his plight. Her soft but determined hand gripped the cook's.

"Filipo, obey my orders!" she commanded.

"Yes, Mem. Let 'um go. Give 'um drink. Big liar need big drink."

He lifted the struggling but utterly helpless form of the pirate over his shoulders, then, with a sudden stooping movement, he made as if to plunge it into the sea.

"Help! Help!" cried Pauline, running up the deck.

Hicks and Owen rushed from their staterooms. They found Blinky Boyd quivering, gasping beside the rail. They found a slouching, uncommunicative cook stolidly peeling potatoes in the galley.

Boyd was carried to his bunk. Pauline hovered over him, anxious, attentive. Owen and Hicks, just outside the door, conversed in whispers.

"Who the devil is that cook, anyway?" asked Hicks.

"I don't know—I don't believe anybody on board knows. Boyd himself hired him at Nassau."

Pauline appeared to them in fluttering haste.

"The man has been captured—he's been put in chains, has he not?" she questioned.

"Yes, he's been sent to the galley," replied Owen.

That seemed bad enough and safe enough for Pauline.

"But we must keep him alive," she said. "He must not be starved. He is a most picturesque character. He sings the latest Broadway songs in perfect English, and attempts murder in perfect ignorance."

A gruff, rumbling voice sounded from the pirate's bunk.

"I couldn't kill him—didn't have the heart to kill him. Is he very bad off?"

"With careful care he will live," called the sarcastic voice of Owen.

"That's good. An' now I'd like the nip of grog I was after when the mut'ny broke out.

Hicks stepped in and wearily poured the drink. Boyd took it at a gulp. Unexpectedly he arose and joined the others.

"Ye know," he said, "thrashin' that feller 'minds me o' the worst fight I ever had. He's a wonder, that cook."

"Do lie down and be quiet for a moment, Mr. Boyd," pleaded Pauline. "The cook has been put in the galley and can't hurt you any more."

"Hurt me?" he jeered. "There ain't no livin' man—no human man, I mean—that's likely to hurt a person wot beat a Afriky gorilla in a runnin' fight."

"You actually beat a gorilla?" asked Pauline, although Hicks and Owen detected a new tinge of doubt in her voice—a hint of a suspicion that her pirate might not be all that he claimed to be.

"True as the compass, Miss," began the irrepressible Boyd, who was now bent on redeeming his slightly damaged reputation for prowess.

"Do you know, Owen," remarked Pauline, pensively, as she had not heard the beginning of the new adventure, "I think that cook is a very interesting—though, of course, a very wicked—man. I think he should be released from his chains."

"I think you are right about that," replied Owen, "for we must have food. But personally I am suspicious of the fellow. There is something surreptitious about him."

"I told ye so—mut'ny, rank mut'ny," exclaimed Boyd. "I wouldn't let 'im out no ways."

"If it weren't for his shocking clothes and his horrid beard I really believe he would be—handsome," mused Pauline.

"A very low sort of person, I'm afraid," commented Hicks. "A bad man, if I'm a judge of one."

"He seems to agree with you. He sings a song to that effect. Hark! I think he's singing it now."

And, as they listened, there came from the open door of the cabin the cook's expressive voice—a voice with poses, movements and scenes in it that gave bluster and "go" to the flimsy little song:

Miss Pearl White as "Pauline,"

Costume Designed by Lady Duff-Gordon, "Lucile."

"There is nothing much absurder
Than the ban we put on murder;
  If I do not slay a score or more a year,
It's because I am so busy
With the kidnapping of frizzy
  Queens and Princesses when papa isn't near."

With the last line the voice sounded nearer and the desperate "prisoner of the galley" came shuffling along the deck, his total abandonment of all sprightly graces, his utter shabbiness making a queer contrast to the vivid voice.

"Hey! I thought that feller was locked in the stoke hole. This ain't right. Keep him off me," whined Boyd.

The cook kept on until his face was close to the pirate's, while the latter trembled in abject fear.

"Dinner ready," said the cook softly.

Next moment he was dragging his lazy feet off down the deck, while the incongruous voice sounded the chorus:

"I'm a bad—mad—man, my dear.
I'm a spotter and a plotter and I know the use of 'queer'.
But to bogus pirates, mostly, I delight to tie the can.
I'm a bad—m-a-a-d—man!"

The cook had become an ominous and impressive figure on the yacht.

"I see why he wanted to frighten us so," said Pauline as she meekly put aside the nicely burned fish that Filipo had placed before her. "He doesn't know how to cook, and he is protecting himself."

They managed to get through the meal by the aid of the canned meats and vegetables.

"As I was sayin', about that gorilla," began Boyd, who had had the freedom of the wine cups with his dinner and become inspired with the ardor of narration, "he was two ton weight if he was a pound—and I overcomed him."

No one made a sound and Boyd grasped his opportunity.

"You remember me tellin' ye, Miss, how the Baraboo was wrecked off West Afriky an' all on board—barrin' meself—went down.

"Well, I ain't sayin' where that coast o' Afriky is, becuz I don't know; but I know I run straight into the animal kingdom—I mean queendom. For she WAS a queen."

"Who was a queen?" asked Polly.

"Dolores, the Queen o' the Monkeys," replied Blinky. "The most amazing beautiful woman, miss—barrin' yerself—that ever walked this here world."

"And how did you meet her?"

"I met her through her guardian—I was proper interjuiced," said Boyd.

"I was surprised an' sad, Miss, to have saw nothin' but monkeys in three days walkin' through the jungle. So when I hears a yell, like a livin' voice—but not much like it—I gets inquisitive.

"'Sun-dub, Sun-dub, Sun-dub,' yells the voice.

"So I answers it the same way. 'Sun-dub, Sundub,' I says, 'I'm hungry; is there anythin' in the icebox, or has father ben home?'

"Suddinly I feels meself grabbed by me ankles an' nex' minute I'm whizzin' 'round the head o' the biggest gorilla ye ever seen.

"I am preparin' calm to be throwed over to the coast or et alive when I hears another voice—a lady's voice, from away back in the jungle.

"'Sun-dub,' it calls. 'Sun-dub.'

"The beast drops me an' goes scramblin' into the bush, comin' back quick with a lady leadin' him, quiet as a lamb.

"She comes over to me an', by the way she talked to Sun-dub, I knew she was rebukin' him fer his manners.

"She was tall—almost as tall as Sun-dub, an' her skin was brown an' her dress was a bunch o' leaves. She tells me to come over to the house an' have a bite to eat."

"Oh, then you could speak her language?" asked Pauline.

"Not quite, Miss; but we tried everythin' either of us knowed, an' we found five or ten words o' Portuguese that did the trick.

"Her house was in the top of a tree some half-mile high, I should say. Sun-dub carries me up, bein' very polite all of a sudden. A thousand monkeys, all sizes and shapes, is jabberin' and chatterin' on the ground.

"Well, Miss, I lived there fourteen months, an' by then I knowed enough and she knowed enough so we talked together. She was the Queen of that there monkey country, so long as she stayed. She'd been left there—she didn't know when—an' the beasts they captured her. They thought their country 'ud go to wreck if she left 'em. So they had Sun-dub watch her.

"'He'd kill me in a minute,' she says, 'if I started to go.'

"I didn't care nothin' fer meself; but I did want to save that innocent young child from bein' a Queen any more. Besides me clothes was wore out an' I was wearin' a nice suit o' leaves, like hers, an' I was accumulatin' a most tremenjus thirst—like now, Miss, only much worser."

Pauline Happens Upon the New "Cook" in the Cabin of the Yacht and Fails to Penetrate Harry's Disguise.

He took out his bottle and drained it. "I don't see how I stood it, Miss," he said, tossing the empty bottle over the rail.

"It hardly seems possible," said Pauline, laughing.

"So, finally," went on Blinky, "I persuades her to send Sun-dub on a journey with the monkey population. She makes up a yarn about a grove of banana trees which she says she sees in a dream, with bananas long as oars growin' all the year 'round. 'Twas surprisin' how that woman could lie.

"They all goes off in a long line, old Sun-dub lookin' back occasionally an' calling me some fearful name. When they're gone we start a march to the coast, where I hopes to be picked up by some passin' ship. We meets all kinds of beasts and reptiles, but Dolores she cusses 'em in monkey talk and they's all skeered of her. But I kin see she's nervous and finally she tells me that Sun-dub has a nose that would make a bloodhound green with envy. She says he'll get us if we don't reach a place she calls the Cave of Silence, which the monkeys is afraid to enter.

"Well, we travels about eight days, meetin' every kind of beast except monkey, them all bein' on the banana hunt, and at last we comes out of the jungle to a open sort of place. Just then we pauses in horror, and then begins to run, for we hears what we was listenin' for: 'Sun-dub, boom boom!' But it was no use runnin' with the Cave of Silence two or three miles away and Sun-dub sure to catch up in about five minutes.

"So I tells the girl to run ahead and meet me at the cave after I had attended to Mr. Sun-dub. It was hard to make her leave me [illegible] she couldn't see how I was goin' to get the best of a ton of ugly gorilla. After she's gone I has about three minutes to prepare, when on comes Sun-dub with his throttle wide open. Now, after I has a very small drink I'll tell you about the Cave of Silence."

So saying, the "pirate" descended to the cabin.

"But did you kill the gorilla?" asked Pauline, when he returned.

"No, Miss, it ain't practical to kill gorillas, it takes too long."

"Did you get the better of him, then?"

"Yes, Miss, I did. I gave him the worst shock of his monkey life, I did."

Owen, who was summoned to find a corkscrew, said:

"Do you mean to say that you thrashed a gorilla single-handed, and without a gun?"

"No, I didn't thrash him, either," responded the "pirate." "I just used my wits against him. Yes, sir. I, a modest sea-farin' man, without the benefit of eddication, in my own humble way got the best o' that big gorilla. What's more, I'd like to see if a couple of smart city guys like you and Mr. Hicks can guess how I done it."

To Be Continued Next Sunday.

Winners of the "What Did the Pirate Propose?" Prizes

What was it that the rascally old Pirate proposed for Pauline to do?

"If she will go and do what I'm goin' ter tell yer she'll sure see something like she never dreamed of," was the way the Pirate began. And $1,000 in money prizes was offered for the best explanations of what his scheme was.

Of course, all the competitors agreed that the Pirate had a very remarkable adventure to suggest. Some of the letters were adventures which brought no harm to Pauline, but most of them included a disastrous end.

Since the Pirate was an old sailor, it seemed fitting to most of the contributors to make the adventure some sort of sea trip. Many suggested that an island far off from civilization was the scene of the adventure—there was an island where giants lived, an island where queer animals existed, an island where a colony of people from Mars were settled, a "volcano island," a "vanishing island" which appeared every fifty years.

Others who liked the ocean adventure idea, but did not include any mysterious island, figured out a visit to a sunken treasure ship, or a voyage with a smuggler. One proposed actually fitting out a real pirate ship, with cannon, etc., and attacking some unsuspecting merchant vessel, making the captured crew "walk the plank," etc. Many expeditions were proposed in search of a gold cap which would give Pauline a charmed life, a hunt for a certain missing sacred bowl, the possession of which would make Pauline the queen of a wild tribe; a search for the Fountain of Youth, for a magic pill that linked the present with the past, a visit to a distant land to gather an unknown fruit that changes men into animals, etc.

The Judges have awarded this week's $1,000 in ten $10 prizes and 180 $5 prizes to the names printed below.

TODAY'S PRIZE OFFER

As you read this instalment of "The Perils of Pauline," printed above on this page today, you noticed that the boastful old Pirate tells of outwitting a huge gorilla and getting away—HOW DID THE PIRATE ESCAPE?

The details of the Pirate's escape have not yet been written. That will be YOUR task. Read the instalment, study the situations, write the explanation that you think best fits those situations.

One thousand dollars in money prizes will be given for the best explanation of what the old man said. Answers must reach this office not later than next Wednesday noon. Announcement of winners will be made two weeks from today.

Awards will be made according to the merits of the replies received, and those showing the greatest excellence in ingenuity, imagination, inventiveness and literary skill will be ranked in the order of merit.

This contest is open to every one without restriction, and those who in our opinion send in the best answers in not more than 200 words will be awarded the prizes. No manuscripts will be returned.

Write your explanation in not over 200 words, write your name and address plainly, and send it to

THE PERILS OF PAULINE,
P. O. Box 3047, Boston, Mass.

Next week another $1,000.

Real Novelty of the Week Are the Vernon Castles At Boston Opera House

Commercializing of the Modern Dance Yields a Fresh Fortune Every Few Weeks

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The real novelty of the new week will be the appearance at the Boston Opera House of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, who have turned the modern dance into a [illegible] that is yielding a fresh fortune for them every few weeks. [illegible] who first carried the weird new dances [illegible] to society, and you may be sure that society paid [illegible] for the privilege of getting first-hand instruction. Until [illegible] was a very good eccentric dancing comedian with [illegible] for the international craze for funny [illegible] might still be an earnest worker in the ranks. [illegible] and tomorrow afternoon and evening the Castles will [illegible] assortment of tangoes, Maxixes—and others you have never [illegible] at the Opera House it will be your first chance to [illegible] pleasure of the new dances as interpreted by acknowledged [illegible] Vernon Castle is an Englishman, the son of a physician [illegible] His father [illegible] the boy to become an electrical engineer, but [illegible] hopes are [illegible] upset and young Castle drifted to the stage. [illegible] years ago Mr. Castle spent his Summer vacation in New Rochelle, which George M. Cohan made famous in "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway." There he met an attractive young woman, with whom he had many enjoyable dances at summer hotels. Then he married her. Spending their honeymoon abroad, Castle was engaged for a Parisian revue—which failed. The dance craze was just beginning, and not having a regular engagement, the Castles danced in a cafe. Their success was instantaneous, and within a month were the talk of Paris. The Castles then returned to New York to join one of Charles Dillingham's companies, and later moved into vaudeville, where the work was lighter and the pay higher, but the prices offered them [illegible] for private instruction soon [illegible] forget vaudeville. [illegible] their Parisian success the Castles were being paid [illegible] an hour [illegible], and they couldn't begin to fill the demand for their [illegible] About this time some smart New Yorkers backed them in opening an exclusive dancing place, which they called "Castle House," and [illegible] Winter it has been the rendezvous of the dancing section of exclusive New York. And now you have the Castles traveling on a special train from city to city, just to show home folks how these new dances should be done.

SARTORIAL NEWS—For the second time in four years Charlie Hayes' dress suit has been called into service. It was worn by Glenmore Davis, advance representative for "The Misleading Lady," at the opening of the new Wilbur Theatre last Monday night. Mr. Davis absent-mindedly forgot to borrow the entire outfit, and was compelled to appear with a red four-in-hand tie and a soft collar.

The Colonial Theatre is again preparing to drop out of musical comedy into the legitimate drama, this time with "The Misleading Lady," which will move into the Boylston street playhouse next week. This play will also bring a new producer to the attention of local playgoers, William Harris Jr. The name of Harris is familiar to patrons of the drama through the prestige of William Harris, who is the director of the Frohman & Harris houses in this and other cities, and [illegible] the productions of the late Henry B. Harris, whose work always represented the best elements of the modern drama. The producer of "The Misleading Lady" is a son of William Harris, and with this play has [illegible] himself as a substantial factor in the theatrical field. The play is a somewhat farcical presentation of a conflict between the sexes, [illegible] in turn, falls back upon cave-man methods to accomplish his purpose. The authors of "The Misleading Lady"—Charles Goddard and Paul Dickey—tell you that their play is a satire on modern life, modern fashions and modern customs; that it adheres to the truth and is still funny.

HOME RULE NOTE—Charles (Cardinal) Philips, advance manager of "Young Wisdom," and late of Ireland, is so incensed at the home rule situation that he declares he will not contribute another cent to the cause of Irish freedom.

*   *   *

A new musical comedy with local backing is on the way, and it will be given at the Cort Theatre at an early date. James Cunningham Gray is its author and Grace Freeman, well known to the stage a few years ago, will emerge from private life to play the leading role. Mr. Gray, who is a Boston [illegible] at any rate Miss Freeman has not been in the public eye for several years, although she almost [illegible] last season by appearing for a week in a musical comedy version of "Quincy Adams Sawyer." This play was such a complete failure that it proved of no service whatever to Miss Freeman. In "[illegible]" however, it is expected that the title role will give Miss Freeman ample opportunity for a display of her talents.

Rare gifts are sometimes discovered in unexpected quarters—take oratory, for instance. It was that way at the opening performance of the new Wilbur Theatre last Monday, when opportunity and business necessity placed Edward D. Smith, manager of the theatre, before the big first-night audience to extend a welcome and explain a few of the principles upon which this new playhouse was [illegible] and upon which it expects to [illegible] It was Mr. Smith's opportunity and he grabbed it with both hands, facing his audience with the [illegible] of a veteran and speaking with the easy freedom of a United States Senator. Mr. Smith is primarily a business man and not an orator—his chief concern about his theatre is its business management. He is not accustomed to give fifteen-minute talks to his patrons. And yet, when the occasion demanded a public announcement from the stage, he walked bravely forward to duty and uttered words of wisdom and conviction that did not fail to impress his audience. He told of the hopes and plans A. L. Wilbur and the Shuberts have laid out for the new theatre; he spoke of the high standard of drama that it was intended to maintain, and he said pleasant things about the men who conceived the project, and of the men whose skill had raised the [illegible] eloquence of a man speaking [illegible] heart, and not with the studied mechanical expression of a professional [illegible] Inspired with the truth of what he was saying he never [illegible] fifteen minutes he occupied the stage. Yes, indeed, rare gifts are sometimes discovered in unsuspected places. Edward D. Smith [illegible]

With the arrival of the Taliaferro sisters at the Park Theatre tomorrow night in "Young Wisdom," we will have in our little dramatic circle two exceptionally talented young women who have toiled at their art almost since they were infants. Though young in years, both Mabel and Edith Taliaferro [illegible] veterans of the stage, and both have played a wide variety [illegible] distinguished stars. Starting as Baby Bascombe in "Blue Jeans," Mabel Taliaferro, at the age of five, was a principal in a [illegible] "Applied For." Then came engagements with Andrew Mack [illegible] and "Killarney," and with Chauncey Olcott in various plays. At seven she was unquestionably the best-known child actress in America. Her first big role was Lovey Mary in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," [illegible] was followed with an engagement to star in "Polly of the Circus." The younger sister, Edith, also entered upon her stage career early, appearing as one of the Berry children in "Shore Acres." For four seasons she was with Ezra Kendall, and was later featured in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

About the nearest approach [illegible] dancing is the present-time vogue of dramatized newspaper [illegible] leads us to "Bringing Up Father," which is having a merry and prosperous run at the Globe Theatre. The George McManus pictures in the Boston AMERICAN which show "father" and his family in an awful struggle with society present human nature at its best—and at its funniest. In the musical comedy version, which Gus Hill has embellished with a score of pretty girls, lively music and attractive specialties, the brightest features of Mr. McManus' quaint pictures are faithfully reproduced. "Bringing Up Father" is really musical farce—and worth seeing.

BILLS AT THE PLAYHOUSES

Hollis St. Theatre.

At the Hollis Street Theatre tomorrow night the newest of this season's offerings will be presented for the first time before a [illegible] audience. It will be [illegible] by John [illegible] with [illegible] Meek [illegible] of the [illegible] town [illegible] the suburbs [illegible] of New York and the [illegible] woman will [illegible] to have her husband elected Mayor of the reformer's [illegible]

In support of Mr. Meek will be seen Grace Goodall, Beverley West, Camilla Crume, Dorothy [illegible], [illegible] Hazel [illegible], Raymond Walburn, [illegible], Gordon Burby, [illegible] and Will Buckley.

Park Theatre.

A [illegible] dramatic [illegible] for the Park [illegible] Joseph [illegible] Mabel and Edith [illegible] Rachel Crothers' comedy "Young Wisdom." Miss Crothers [illegible] delightful originality in [illegible] of this new comedy. From an absolutely new idea she has proceeded along satirical lines to poke a lot of good-natured fun at feminists who seriously advocate revolutionary ideas in the home life. She shows the effect of these advanced teachings on two young girls whose minds are in the receptive state and reaching out for knowledge.

Boston Theatre.

"The Old Homestead" returns again to the Boston Theatre for a limited engagement, commencing tomorrow night, with all the well-known favorites in the cast, the famous musical features and a new production, under the personal management of Frank Thompson. Although not to be taken as a model of dramatic construction, and of little moment from the viewpoint of literature, to which it should be said [illegible] that it does not pretend, yet it has that atmosphere of human kindness that renders it worthy welcome as a breath of fresh air in the midst of a plethora of products of the dramatic hothouse. No effort of intellect, no strain upon the imagination, no sounding of the deeper emotions is required of the audience, and it is probably just these facts that [illegible] its long lease upon life.

Mexican War Pictures.

[illegible] that motion pictures of the Mexican War will be shown at the Cort Theatre this week. These pictures were taken with the consent of Dictator Huerta and General Carranza, and show actual hostilities between the revolutionists and Federal forces.

Many months were taken to get these pictures, which are to be [illegible] in eight reels [illegible] exhibited continuously from [illegible] to 11 p. m. at the Cort. In view of recent developments in Mexico there will be a keen interest in these pictures, for they show actual warfare at close range. During the progress of the pictures a skilled lecturer will describe the scenes as they are revealed by the films.

B. F. Keith's Theatre.

Carter DeHaven and his charming wife, Flora Parker, late features of Lew Fields' spectacular musical panorama, "All Aboard," will head the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. They will appear in a series of original character songs written especially for them and interspersed with lively dances. Walter S. "Rube" Dickinson, the ex-justice of the peace, and without question the foremost rube monologuist on the stage today, will appear with new stories and songs. Another laughing feature will be Ed Gallagher and Bob Carlin in their nautical travesty "Before the Mast," the scene of which is laid on the deck of the battleship Sandy Hook at sunrise on Vanilla Bay. Grace DeMar, a charming comedienne, will bring a new cycle of songs and [illegible] and many other features will also appear.

Castle Sq. Theatre.

At the Castle Square during the coming week "Officer 666" will offer a [illegible] combination of farce and melodrama. Its hero is a young multi-millionaire globe trotter, who upon [illegible] abroad, [illegible] occupied by a [illegible] who has appropriated his name, his property and who has also [illegible] these [illegible] pictures to a pretty society girl who [illegible] of his true character. [illegible] Officer [illegible] Mr. Carleton, Mr. Walker, Mr. Ormonde, Miss Shirley and Miss Doris Olsson in the leading roles.

Gaiety Theatre.

The coming week's attraction at the Gaiety Theatre, Billy Watson's "Big Show," has established the reputation [illegible] of the most [illegible] this season. Billy Watson appears at the head of his own company and this inimitable comedian has surrounded himself by a cast of exceptional ability. Working with Billy Watson is Eddie [illegible] in the burlesque ranks, while the feminine contingent is headed by Miss Margaret Flavin, Bessie Leslie, Lulu [illegible] and Margaret Newell.

Wilbur Theatre.

Doris Keane's [illegible] of [illegible] Edward Sheldon's "Romance" continues to be the magnet at the Wilbur Theatre. No more [illegible] characterization than that of Miss Keane's has been seen on a Boston stage for many a long year. Her performances and the play may be well recommended.

Globe Theatre.

"Bringing Up Father" will enter upon its second week at the Globe Theatre [illegible] musical farce [illegible] George McManus' [illegible] Boston American [illegible] of fun for [illegible] Ross Snow, as "Father," [illegible] cannot be adequately described in an unemotional type.

Colonial Theatre.

"The Queen of the Movies" will enter upon its last [illegible] three weeks' engagement at the Colonial Theatre tomorrow night. Every effort has been made to extend the engagement, but it has been found impossible to change [illegible] for Thomas W. [illegible] musical comedy [illegible] the Illinois Theatre, [illegible] May 4.

Majestic Theatre.

"Within the Law," with Jane Cowl in the leading role of Mary Turner, and the entire New York cast and production, continues to draw crowded houses at the Majestic Theatre, where it enters tomorrow night on its eleventh week. With one week [illegible] after this, the Boston stay of this absorbing and thrilling drama will have completed a run of three months.

Shubert Theatre.

Blanche Ring begins the third week of her engagement at the Shubert Theatre tomorrow night in "When Claudia Smiles." [illegible] Harry Conor [illegible] supports Miss Ring both as a Bostonian and a clever comedian who is like no one but himself.

Tremont Theatre.

David Warfield begins the third week of his engagement in "The Auctioneer" at the Tremont Theatre tomorrow night. Mr. Warfield has reincarnated Simon Levi, the lovable old Hebrew peddler, largely through sentimental reasons, for it was on the shoulders of this odd character from the East Side of New York that this artist climbed into fame and fortune.

Plymouth Theatre.

"Under Cover" continues its record-breaking run at the Plymouth Theatre, where William Courtenay and his associate players are showing theatre goers that good melodrama, brilliantly acted and splendidly staged, is the best kind of entertainment. There appears to be little doubt that "Under Cover" will set a new record for long runs in Boston.

"Quo Vadis."

The motion picture version of "Quo Vadis," which is now being exhibited at Tremont Temple, is one of the most spectacular photo-play productions ever made. More than a thousand actors were employed in the making of these films, which reveal one of the prettiest romances of history.

Howard Athenaeum.

Violet Mascotte's "Telephone Girls" will hold the centre of the stage at the Old Howard this week and there will be a royal welcome extended to these lively burlesquers. The management will also present a feature of interest entitled, "Coney Island to the North Pole." Barney Gilmore, Anderson and Goines are also on the bill.

Grand Opera House.

It is the merry "Girls from Joyland," headed by Joe Adams, that will entertain the patrons of the Grand Opera House this week. Thursday night there will be wrestling, and Friday night the amateurs will appear.

Actor Makes Play, States Warfield

Personality of the Player More Important Than the Lines.

David Warfield says that the greatness that has been achieved by most of the famous actors has not been due to any unusual qualities possessed by the plays in which they appeared, but to the personality of the actor himself.

"A play does not have to be great in order to have a great acting part," says Mr. Warfield. "Sometimes even a part as written by the playwright amounts to nothing, but the [illegible] great actor will take that part, give it his own personality and then it becomes great.

"Did you ever think that all the great actors were really famous in very few parts? How many, eh? One. Oh, perhaps two, but usually only one. I mean really great actors, not what I call the 'polite' actors that we have so many of and see every day. I mean men like Booth and Jefferson. They played many parts, and they played them splendidly, but the public loved them best in one part. They loved Booth as Hamlet, Salvini as Othello, Jefferson as Rip Van Winkle. These were the parts that fitted their personality the best and brought out their greatest acting qualities."

Irish Players.

At a special matinee at the Plymouth Theatre tomorrow the Irish players will make their first appearance in Boston this season. The bill will include "The Clancy Name," by Lennox Robinson; "The King's Threshold," a poetic play by W. B. Yeats, and "Duty," a comedy by Seumas O'Brien. The program is varied in charm, and the performance should appeal to the taste of the Boston theatrical public.

MISS LOWELL'S NEW POEM WINS CRITICS' PRAISE

Sister of Harvard President Adds "Music" to Group of "Dramatic Idyls."

EXPLAINS "THE FOREIGNER"

Miss Amy Lowell of Brookline, sister of President Lowell of Harvard, has written another striking poem. It is a dramatic idyl and is printed in the April number of the magazine "Poetry."

It is the first time that Miss Lowell has attempted this kind of verse. She has other poems in the same magazine [illegible] has [illegible] much comment [illegible] "The Foreigner."

Miss Lowell has [illegible] the following poem [illegible] and given [illegible] to the AMERICAN to [illegible]

"DRAMATIC IDYLLS."

In an interview on this type of poetry Miss Lowell said:

"I should like to say that [illegible] but the first of these poems published in 'Poetry' are what Browning [illegible] 'dramatic idyls,' namely, that they are put into the mouths of fictitious characters who are made to speak as they themselves would speak.

"'The Foreigner,' which not a few have misunderstood, is supposed to be the words of a soldier of fortune of the seventeenth century, who on his arrival in London is set upon in the park by three fine gentlemen of the town. He is a man of sport and courage, and setting his back to one of the trees in the park he fights all three of them, keeping up a running fire of talk in the language of the day while the duel proceeds.

"He disarms all three of his adversaries, although one is so dastardly as to try to stab him from behind, and then in the last stanza he announces, although he is a foreigner, that he intends to win the respect of the Londoners with whom he finds himself."

"The Foreigner" is as follows:

Throngs Traveling on Nantasket Line

All records have been broken for early Spring travel on the Nantasket Beach steamers. Many patrons of the line who have heretofore opened their cottages in the latter part of May have taken advantage of the new service.

The many attractions at the beach have opened and everything is in readiness for the large Sunday crowds.

F. L. Lane has been complimented on the new ticket system which has done away with the usual congestion in the taking up of the coupons. Those patrons of the line stopping at Hull and [illegible] are especially pleased in the [illegible] of the fare.

Not only are the steamers in their fresh coats of paint looking fine this season, but all the employes of the boats have been provided with smart

Should He Let Her Get Away with It?

When She Flirts and Runs Away, What Is Poor Man to Do?

Should a woman flirt with a man, display her ankles, wear a slit skirt, two-and-a-half-inch heels, bare her neck, adorn herself with a flimsy, clinging gown, extract a proposal from the man at whom the display was aimed, laugh at him, say no and be allowed to get away with it?

This is a question which has been brought up, threshed out and answered in "The Misleading Lady," by Charles W. Goddard, which is announced at the Colonial Theatre. It is nothing more than the old duel of the sexes which has been going on ever since the justly celebrated and deservedly famous apple-eating incident which occurred in the orchard of Eden some time ago.

In "The Misleading Lady" the woman justifies herself by saying that all the others of her sex do it, and brings forward the argument that sex appeal is the only thing the female of the species possesses with which to combat and attract masculinity.

Doris Keane Gives Drama Its Due

A tribute to the advance in dramatic art due to naturalistic expression comes from Doris Keane. She declares that the great inspiration for the young actress today is that all thought and action are broadening. Averring that the drama has been lagging at least a hundred years behind the times, this actress now sees it taking a respected place side by side with painting, sculpture, music and all other arts.

"People have said great art is beauty," she goes on. "Art to be great must teach a moral. Art is realism. I think that truth is the keynote of our age. In that direction literature has developed and continues its development. Sculpture and painting have reached the realistic age. And now we are reaching it in the drama.

"Take the school of declamation, which has passed out entirely. The sweeping gesture and the studied pose have gone just as surely as the [illegible] and other attributes which the Greek players deemed necessary to [illegible] their art.

"Following the sweeping gesture and studied pose came a school more difficult to define. Emotion was hysterical, often artificial. Then came the first faint glimmering of the realistic school.

"Just as these eliminated all the unessentials, so in realistic acting we are beginning to eliminate all the unessentials. We are learning to express almost by suggestion."

Coming Events.

"Adele," one of the brightest of the present season's musical attractions, will come to the Tremont on May 11.

"The Deep Purple" will be produced by John Craig at the Castle Square during the week of May 4. It is the work of Paul Armstrong.

Among the strong attractions booked for early appearance at B. F. Keith's Theatre are Waddy, Mollie and Tony, Miss Orford's famous troupe of educated elephants, Louis Alexander, Olive Logan and company of modern dancers and Kate Elinore and Sam

MAIL CARRIERS OF BOSTON TO GREET GOVERNOR

Notable Reunion to Be Held by the Carriers on May 18.

Governor Walsh and staff, Lieutenant-Governor Barry, Mayor Curley and others have promised to be present at the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Boston Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association in Mechanics Hall, May 18.

The celebration will take the form of a reunion, at which the 1,600 letter carriers and their families of the Boston Postal District will be present. A number of novel and entertaining features will be presented by a special committee of letter carriers, which will not only entertain but instruct the public in the several phases of postoffice life, and with the concert which precedes the dancing will be a source of great pleasure to those who do not care for dancing.

The following committee, one of the largest ever appointed by the association and representative of the entire postal district, is in charge of the arrangements:

News and Gossip of Plays and Players

Meek's Only Hoodoo Is Revolving Door

Donald Meek, leading comedian with "The Reformers," declares that he is the least [illegible] from happenings generally supposed by the superstitious to follow such recklessness as walking under ladders at [illegible] [illegible] associated with the number thirteen. Thirteen has no terrors for Mr. Meek. He signed his contract with "The Reformers" company on the 13th, which he regards as a hopeful omen. On two successive trips to New York in connection with this engagement he occupied chair No. 13 in the parlor car, and one of the trains was exactly thirteen minutes late. On the night of his farewell appearance at the Castle Square Theatre, where for six years Mr. Meek has been a great favorite, John Craig presented him with a gold watch, the registered number of which ended with thirteen.

Mr. Meek has, however, one particular "hoodoo," and that is in connection with revolving doors, such as are generally used in hotels and office buildings during the Winter months. On one occasion he spent an uncomfortable half-hour cooped up in one of the sections waiting for the outcome of a tussle between two celebrated college foot ball players who were indulging in a tug-of-war contest with one of the partitions.

Carter de Haven's New Style in Autos

Carter de Haven, who comes to B. F. Keith's Theatre this week with his wife, Flora Parker, has established a new style in automobiles. For years de Haven has been famous as one of the "best dressers on and off," as the theatre folk say, in the profession. But to make his appearance in public all the more impressive, and no doubt, to incidentally get a little free publicity, Mr. de Haven recently purchased a touring car and had it painted a most unique and striking color. The car is a rich cylinder with perpendicular stripes of black and white, each stripe about an inch wide. The result is a color scheme as striking and flashy as any circus wagon ever boasted. The last time Mr. de Haven appeared at B. F. Keith's was four years ago, when he was doing a "single."

BELIEVES IN THE LINES SHE WROTE

Rachel Crothers, the Author of "Young Wisdom," Sure of Woman's Triumph.

Rachel Crothers, the author of "Young Wisdom," in which Mabel and Edith Taliaferro are to appear at the Park Theatre, is a great believer in the ultimate complete emancipation of womankind. It was this belief which caused Miss Crothers to write "Young Wisdom." In the story she has woven about the two interesting girls, Mabel and Edith Taliaferro, she shows that the general effect of higher education for women is bound to create skepticism regarding our old traditions on the sex question and that the doubts thus cast [illegible] will bear fruit in a revolutionary way.

"We certainly cannot deny," says Miss Crothers, "that our young women are beginning to ask questions, and that if we are to answer them intelligently and understandingly, we will have to study this question of sex-relationship in a serious manner. We have only to look about us to discover that the young women of to-day are far more interested in affairs away from home than they are in the kitchen stove and the ironing board. This is only natural. Education brings a desire for higher things, creates a longing for loftier ideals, and as we are bound to educate our daughters, we must be prepared to accept the consequences of this education."

Here's a Novelty.

One of the unique features of next Thursday's matinee of "Under Cover" at the Plymouth Theatre will be the distribution of programs by Lucile Watson and Lola Fisher. The matinee will be given in aid of the poor children of Boston under the auspices of an Outing Society.

BILLS AT THE PLAYHOUSES

The Castle Dances.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle will make their much expected appearances at the Boston Opera House in their series of modern ballroom dances tomorrow afternoon and evening. The Castles enjoy an international fame. Their vogue is as equally great in London and Paris as it is in New York, where they are welcomed as much a part of fashionable society life as grand opera itself. Mr. and Mrs. Castle have taught New York what dancing really is. When they come to the Boston Opera House tomorrow they bring with them their own company and private orchestra from their now famous Castle House, New York. Their program will embrace the Argentine tango as it is really danced in South America, the Brazilian maxixe, the one step, the hesitation waltz, and their own beautiful and fascinating creation, the innovation dance.

E. H. Sothern Repertoire.

E. H. Sothern's repertoire for his two weeks' engagement at the Shubert Theatre, beginning Monday, May 11, has undergone a slight revision. As rearranged there will be two performances of "Hamlet," four of "Lord Dundreary," five each of "If I Were King" and "Charlemagne." During the first week, "If I Were King" will be the bill on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday nights and at the Saturday matinee. "Lord Dundreary" at the Wednesday matinee, and on Thursday and Friday nights, and "Hamlet" on Saturday night.

For the second week, Justin Huntley McCarthy's new romantic drama, "Charlemagne," will be presented on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday matinee and night and Thursday, "Lord Dundreary" Friday night, "If I Were King" at the Saturday matinee, and "Hamlet" Saturday night.

Bowdoin Sq. Theatre.

Arthur Houston and company, in "Teddy in the Jungle," will be the feature offering at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. The picture features include "Hearts Adrift" and "Lucille Love."

Orpheum Theatre.

Pattee's Diving Girls, one of the best acts of their kind in the country, will head the bill at Loew's Orpheum the first three days of the coming week.

St. James Theatre.

Henry B. Toomer & Co. in "Sidelights," a rather unique comedy sketch, presented by Edward West, will head the bill at the St. James the first half of the coming week.

Waldron's Casino.

George Stone and Etta Pillard will be the stars at Waldron's Casino this week with "The Social Maids." This is one of the Hurtig attractions and the stars are supported by a big company of fun makers and a big Hurtig beauty chorus.

Scollay Square Olympia.

Mlle. Oberita and her dancing girls in a spectacular singing and dancing novelty will be one of the attractive numbers in the coming week's bill at the Scollay Square Olympia. Another excellent act will be presentation of a one-act farce comedy by Girard and Gardner. The bill for the Sunday night concert is made up of extraordinary talent and will start at 7 and conclude at 10:30 without a repeat.

Scenic Temple.

A series of motion pictures of varied interest will be presented at the Scenic Temple this week, including a very pretty Japanese love story, "The Courtship of O San." The vaudeville numbers will include several novel acts.

"Evangeline."

All the characters and the principal incidents in Longfellow's poem of "Evangeline" will be seen at Symphony Hall for the first time in Boston on the afternoons and evenings of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the coming week. It will be presented under the direction of Joseph P. Dumas, and the entire story will be graphically and dramatically shown in five toned and tinted reels.

Theatrical Dance.

The annual dance and frolic of the Theatrical Club of Boston will be held in Howe Hall, Huntington avenue, on next Friday evening. Invitations have been extended to a large number of the leading professional people.

CHATTER of SOCIETY
BY THE CHAPERONE

There are interesting bits of gossip floating about regarding the broken engagement of Miss Margaret Sargent and the fact [illegible] she was to marry off with [illegible] old [illegible] on with [illegible] new [illegible] Sargent's en[illegible] to [illegible] Morgan [illegible] was [illegible] broken [illegible] shortly [illegible] she sailed for Europe. The Washington B. Thomases will shortly go to their beautiful North Shore estate, which is one of the most picturesque of that section and where the wedding of Miss Helen Thomas and Sam Warren took place a few summers ago.

While Mr. and Mrs. Warren were abroad recently, Miss Thomas assumed entire charge of the children. Miss Thomas is one of the many girls most expert in running her own car and I saw her recently in a nifty little run[illegible] [illegible] other [illegible]

Miss Frances Ritchie Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sherman of No. 61 Brattle street, Cambridge, is much seen in society these days. Miss Sherman, though only a debutante, is a strong anti-suffrage worker. Being a relative of the famous [illegible] family of Lexington, she has the indefatigable spirit of that family when it comes to matters of principle and preaching. She is prominently connected with the club work of the University City [illegible] general favorite among the younger set. She is a graduate of the Berkeley School [illegible]

Miss [illegible] who is taking a foremost part in many of the Spring [illegible] counted one of the [illegible] of the young set. Miss [illegible] much interested in [illegible] sports, which [illegible] for her [illegible] athletic figure [illegible]

Much [illegible] is felt in the [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Joseph [illegible] to [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. [illegible] Marlboro street [illegible] and Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Sargent Perry, also of Marlboro street, who have a fine Summer estate in New Hampshire. All sorts of hospitalities are being planned for this popular young couple by their home-town friends who are all anxious to see them and [illegible] them honor. They have met with great success in the diplomatic life and have been most generous about entertaining their Boston friends who were traveling abroad.

[illegible] daughter [illegible] of the house and if rumors be true it will be but a short time before her engagement will be announced and she join the rank of brides. Miss Fay looks particularly charming in her new watteau of black, trimmed with laced ribbon and tiny rose buds. [illegible] is tall and slender and in great demand at all the private and charitable entertainments both on account of her charm and [illegible] many accomplishments.

[illegible] Fay will shortly go with her parents to their Summer home at Woods Hole and her present plans are to sail in the late Summer for Europe.

In a favorite evening gown of pink brocaded velvet and chiffon, which I saw her wearing the other evening, Miss Fay was [illegible] very best.

There's dancing of every sort in the smart set circles just now [illegible] be sure, but the latest fad with the masculine element—and some of the feminines are taking it up, too—is clog dancing. And how they do dance!

Henry DeFord Jr., son of the DeFords of Tappan street, Brookline, is so far in the lead in the competitions, as I knew he surely must be when I saw him give a demonstration of his hobby at a recent affair for charity. He was [illegible] until he could dance no longer and [illegible] strength to make [illegible]

[illegible] who is quite [illegible] and often [illegible] accompanist [illegible] working hard to come up somewhere near his pal in this art.

There are several clog dancers developing among the Vincent Club girls, and they say that Dorothy Jordan, the most accomplished of all Boston amateur classical dancers, can do the clog quite as cleverly as can the most expert of the men, and that she often regales her club inmates between calls at rehearsals by her clever clogging.

Mrs. Cornelius M. Crocker has been amusing her friends with her latest skit, a rag doll dance, for which she dresses with a huge rag doll face and a sunbonnet and all her clothes arranged to look as if the back was the front.

There is such an accomplished lot of aristocrats to draw on these days that singing and classical dancing have been rather done out but Mrs. Crocker has brought fresh interest with her clever dance. She is constantly adding new steps and is so agile that she makes the dance most grotesque.

I ran into Mrs. Crocker the other morning after having seen her in her fun provoking dance. She was looking wonderfully chic in a suit of blue and a small black hat of lacquered straw, trimmed [illegible] bon and cherries.

The World of Society

[illegible] of the interesting events of late April will be the performance of "Cousin Kate," under the auspices of the Cambridge Hospital League, at Brattle Hall, Cambridge, on Thursday, April [illegible] There will be dancing after the evening performance, and this, of course, appeals to the younger element.

The patronesses for the affair are Miss Annie E. Allen, Mrs. John Amee, Mrs. George P. Banner, Mrs. William A. Bancroft, Mrs. Charles F. Batchelder, Miss Mary E. Batchelder, Mrs. Stoughton Bell, Mrs. LeBaron R. Briggs, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Miss Margaret R. Chapman, Mrs. Reginald Daly, Mrs. Richard H. Dana, Miss Mary Deane, Mrs. A. W. Dudley, Mrs. C. W. Among the interesting affairs of the week was the entertainment which the anti-suffragettes gave at the Copley-Plaza Wednesday when Miss May Shreve Ames, chairman of the legislative committee, entertained the presidents of the New England associations opposed to woman suffrage and the members of the executive and organization committees of Massachusetts. Miss Ames, as usual, made a delightful hostess, and among those entertained were Mrs. Daniel A. Markham and Mrs. William T. Howe of Connecticut, Mrs. S. Sydney W. Thaxter of Maine, Mrs. A. T. Dudley and Miss Grace Morrell of New Hampshire, Mrs. Roland G. Brooks Brown of Vermont, Mrs. [illegible] Codman, Mrs. Charles P. Strong, Mrs. E. B. Cole, Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, Mrs. John [illegible], Mrs. Augustin H. Parker, Mrs. B. L. Robinson, Mrs. Herbert Lyman, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Henry P. Kidder, Miss E. C. Post, Miss Sarah H. Crocker, Miss [illegible] Sohier, Miss Elizabeth H. [illegible] and Miss Elizabeth Johnson. After luncheon Miss Ames took her guests to the annual meeting of the Mass[illegible] [illegible] at which several hundred representative women were present. Mrs. James M. Codman was re-elected president and treasurer; Miss Eliza C. Post, recording secretary, Mrs. Charles P. Strong, corresponding secretary.

The last seven opera talks this season by Havrah Hubbard of the Boston Opera House will be given this week. The list is as follows. Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock, "Haensel and Gretel" and "The Secret of Suzanne" before the pupils of the State Normal School, in May Hall, Framingham, and Monday evening at 8 o'clock, "Monna Vanna" before the members and guests of the Central Club, in the clubhouse, Highland avenue, Somerville. Tuesday at 4.15 p.m., "The Love of the Three Kings" and "The Secret of Suzanne" before the Woman's Club, in Music Hall, Fall River, Mass., and in the evening at 8 o'clock, "Monna Vanna" before the Edgewood Literary Society in the Edgewood Congregational Church, Providence, R. I. Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, "Lohengrin" before the residents of the Perkins Institution for the Blind in Watertown. Thursday at 3 p. m. "Haensel and Gretel" and "The Secret of Suzanne" at the residence of Mrs. Thompson, No. 15 Pine street, Winchester, and in the evening at 8, "The Love of the Three Kings" and "The Secret of Suzanne" before the Woman's Club in the Park and Downs Church, Wollaston, Mass. Musical illustration for each talk will be supplied by Floyd M. Baxter, pianist.

Interest among the fashionable dancing contingent centres about the Vernon Castle competition for a beautiful silver trophy at "La Petit Trianon," No. 289 Boylston street tomorrow evening.

Those who qualified in the dancing event of last Friday evening at the Trianon with others will compete for the trophy offered by the famous Castles, who will be present and do the judging.

The champion dancing couple of Boston, selected from among the leading disciples of the newest steps there, will be the result of the evening's entertainment.

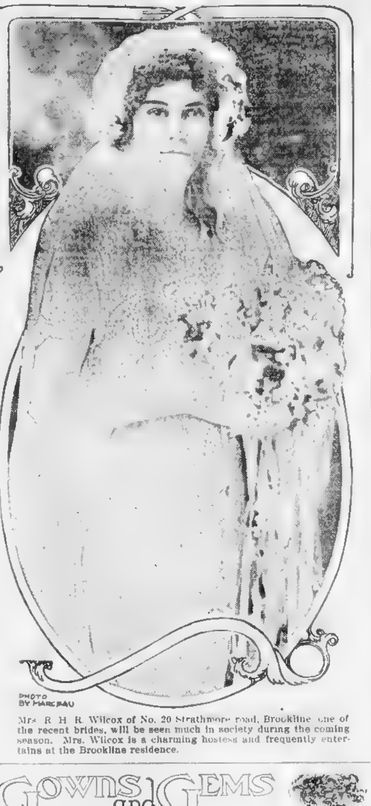
The competition of Friday evening, when a silver trophy offered by the club was awarded, proved plainly that rivalry at these functions is by no means on the decline. It looks as if society would dance as long as cool weather holds and the hot season is likely to witness hundreds of fashionable gatherings at which the "new dances" will be the chief amusement.

The Trianon Maxixe competition of May 8 is expected to bring out a large showing of fashionable dancers with their partners.

Miss Pauline Chamberlain and her brother, William E. Chamberlain, Jr., of Brookline, Frank Ross and Mr. and Mrs. Chester S. Morrison, also of Brookline, will be among the competitors of the Monday event.

BRIDE IS HOSTESS

MRS. R. H. R. WILCOX TO BE SEEN MUCH IN SOCIETY



Mrs. R. H. R. Wilcox of No. 20 Strathmore road, Brookline, one of the recent brides, will be seen much in society during the coming season. Mrs. Wilcox is a charming hostess and frequently entertains at the Brookline residence.

Gowns and Gems Society is Wearing

I was surprised to see Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Dumaresq the other afternoon in the Copley Plaza Hotel as I did not know until then they had returned from their European trip. Mrs. Dumaresq, who was formerly Miss Fredrika Slade, was looking especially smart in a tailored gown of black and white sheperd's plaids severely plain and the skirt by no means as tight fitting as the Winter ones have been. The coat which was a short jaunty affair and loose fitting was trimmed in the wide soutache braid around the bottom, graduating from the narrowest width—some being only a quarter of an inch in width—while the cuffs were finished in the wider width reaching nearly to the elbows. She wore with this a white waist the most of which was of Irish lace insertion and embroidery of exquisitely fine texture. Her hat was a small [illegible] of black with trimming of a single pale pink uncurled ostrich feather, shaded into a deep cerise and fastened with a loop and ends of black velvet ribbon band of the same encircling the high crown. White gloves stitched in broad black silk bands completed a very chic costume.

I understand that Mrs. "Jim" Hooper, who until last Saturday was Miss Katherine Amory and a daughter of Mrs. Robert D. Amory of Beacon street, was greatly puzzled what to give her bridal attendants as souvenirs of her wedding at Trinity Church last week until she finally inquired personally as to their likes, and it resulted in the most exquisite bar pins I have seen in a long time, which were worn across the bodices on the garnitures of their gowns. The jewels in the pins were alternating pearls and sapphires, the latter I understand being chosen as it is Mrs. Hooper's birthstone.

I happened to see Mrs. Gordon Hutchins of Concord, Mass., the other day in town shopping with her mother, Mrs. William Bowker, and she looked especially smart. Mrs. Hutchins, who is fully as pretty as when she was Miss Alice Bowker, was gowned in a dark blue broadcloth, the skirt of which was trimmed in bands of blue soutache braid and the short coat had the same trimming. The latter was extremely stylish as the wide girdle of the coat, which only went from the two back seams, was of black moire antique and was edged at either side with a tiny narrow piping of white satin. On the lower of the back side seams were fancy trimmings of the braid to "let in" a sort of "V" effect each of which was outlined in the white satin. She wore a high crowned black dressed straw hat trimmed in very high loops and bows of black taffeta ribbon, and her bodice with the gown was of white Irish lace of the most exquisite texture, while a deep jabot of the same lace fell nearly to her waistline. What completed a very natty effect were the buff colored gaiters which were worn with tan low shoes.

I saw Mrs. Thomas Sherwin of Jamaica Plain in town the other morning on a shopping expedition. She looked very smart in her new Spring [illegible] It was of the French blue shade of cloth, the short coat of which was trimmed in revers of bright cerise broadcloth which formed the flat rolling collar as well. She wore a stunning hat of black straw trimmed in the cerise wings and her bodice was a white lingerie trimmed in quantities of Irish lace. The bows of cerise [illegible] the smart of the gown as well as the deep cuffs of the jaunty coat.

I understand [illegible] pretty Mrs. Daniel Lane, wife of the former Senator of Boylston street, is on a flying trip to Europe with Mrs. Curtis Sc[illegible] of Brookline. I saw Mrs. Lane the other day. She looked especially pretty in a dark blue silk gown combined with pale blue [illegible] and a large picture hat to match. She said she was on her way to a luncheon in honor of her departure for the other side, where she was only to remain all told not more than two months.

I happened to meet Mrs. "Billy" Nickerson of Dedham the other day. She looked very stunning in a long wrap of baby lamb fur in dolman shape, which reached nearly to the hem of her gown, lined throughout with white satin. Her hat was very severe and still becoming, as it was a small, soft white felt one trimmed in a wide band of black lynx fur, and with it she wore a black [illegible] veil of real lace, which was most effective what with her titian hair and white hat.

Mrs. George Selfridge is looking very smart this Spring in a creation of taupe cloth, which has been so fashionable this Winter. I happened to see her at a large reception the other afternoon when she was gowned in a creation of this shade made up with the petit blue shade of [illegible] charmeuse. The latter was [illegible] in bands on the bodice and [illegible] and also on the high crown [illegible] hat of taupe straw trimmed with a plume in the shade of the taupe and finished in the blue tips. Her bodice with this gown was of white lace with a number of Irish lace inserts, and with it she wore a beautiful brooch of diamonds and sapphires which matched her gown admirably.

The Hon. Thomas C. Thacher of Beacon street spent last week-end at Yarmouth, where he and his family are planning to spend the Summer.

Weddings By the Chaperone

[illegible] prominent bride of the week to come will be that of pretty Ruth French whom I met in town the other day, on shopping bent, and who was accompanied by a couple of girl friends who were having a gay [illegible] expense as they sat together at luncheon. They were quite evidently intending to buy everything they happened to see, and as they left the place one of them suggested that they go and "buy out a store."

Miss French was most attractive in a suit of dark blue, combined with black taffeta. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Herbert French of North Attleboro, and her wedding to William Converse Chick, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Chick of Beacon street, takes place in the First Universalist Church in Attleboro next Wednesday evening. The young girl is most attractive and will make a charming bride. The ceremony takes place in the evening and a special train will take the guests from Boston.

Miss Eleanor Boyd has been chosen maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Roberta Rouse, Miss Marjorie Edwards, Miss Emma Austin, Miss Isabel Ramage, Miss Helen Whiting and Miss Alice Gilbert. Miss Mary E. Billard and Miss Adelaide Chamber are to be the flower girls.

The groom has chosen George Edwin Peters, and the ushers will be James O. Ross, W. Morton Bunting, Thomas A. Whidden, Frank M. Sawtelle, Royal G. Whiting, Robert S. Burgess, John B. Fallon and J. Newton Smith. Over a thousand invitations have been issued for the reception which is to follow at the home of the bride's parents.

One more maid devoid of superstition has been added to the list of May brides. Of all months in the year May is the least popular with brides, for superstition has it that no happiness can follow a May wedding. But pretty Miriam Lovering is willing to find out for herself, so her marriage to Dr. William Reggio, who makes his headquar at the Empire on Commonwealth avenue, is scheduled to take place May 12 at noon in the vestry of St. Cecelia's Church. The Rev. Dr. Supple will perform the ceremony, which will be attended only by near relatives and intimate friends. A large reception will follow at the Lovering home.

The Reggios, after an extended [illegible] will [illegible] their home next Winter at No. 40 Fairfield street. Miss Lovering is a most interesting and accomplished girl, and she and the former Claire Means, who married Andrew Reggio, are the best of pals and are delighted that they are to have one another for sister-in-law.

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Harwood [illegible] of their daughter [illegible] Walter Prescott Rogers on Saturday afternoon, May 9, at 4 o'clock in Grace Church, Newton.

A reception will follow at the Harwood home on Walnut avenue. Mr. Rogers and his bride will make their future home in Fall River.

Another interesting June bride besides Miss Rackemann, already on the schedule, is Miss Martha B. Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bacon, who is such a favorite in Boston society, and [illegible] Whitney of New York. The date is set for June 2, and the ceremony will take place at Westbury, L. I.

Miss Barbara Standish is another prospective June bride, her wedding to Bradley Patten being scheduled for early June. Miss Standish is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Myles Standish of Newbury street, and her young friends are giving her all sorts of "showers."

Among the young married couples who are being congratulated upon the first visit of the stork are Mr. and Mrs. John W. Suter, Jr. (Margaret Sturgis), of Cambridge, who have been presented by the busy bird with a thriving and most promising daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Perkins, who returned recently from a several weeks' stay in Florida, entertained at dinner at their Commonwealth avenue home.

One of the important calls the stork made recently was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Cutler of "Elmcroft," Charles River Village, who were presented with a lusty young heir. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Cutler of Upland road, Brookline, are the grandparents. Mrs. Cutler before her marriage was Margaret Lionberger, one of the most popular girls of the Summer colony at Marion and that was where the romance began.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Penhallow have returned to their home at Jamaica Plain from a visit in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Skinner of Dedham, who have been spending the past several months abroad and were for the last two months on the Continent, spent the Easter holidays at the Ritz in London.

Mrs. Arthur E. Grannis (nee [illegible]) has gone from her home in Brookline to Louisville, Ky., where she is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Marshall Bullitt.

The many friends of Mrs. Frederick Galacar, who was formerly Rosamond Lang, are delighted at the news that she and her interesting husband are to be among the cottagers at Beverly Farms this season. They will occupy the "Valleyside Cottage," which was formerly the property of the Otis Lukes.

The bazaar and ball of the Massachusetts Federation of Progressive Women that will be held on next Thursday at the Copley-Plaza Hotel [illegible] any similar [illegible] a feminine organization in New England. Arrangements are being made to entertain 5,000 guests the day at the bazaar, and 4,000 invitations have been sent out for the ball.

Suffragists and anti-suffragists are working together on the committees of arrangement, for the federation includes both among its members. They expect to raise $10,000 to make a success their gala day next week.

Women from all over the State are interested in the affair. Mrs. Anna Churchill Moulton Tillinghast of Beverly, president of the federation, has organized committees in every county to take charge of the invitation lists for the ball, and a general invitation to the public has been issued for the bazaar, the admission to which is free.

Fashionable society is taking a great interest in the affair, and the list of patronesses of the ball reads like an abstract of the Social Register. There has been some objection by older members to making a society function of the ball, and they sought to have a committee of censors appointed to place the tango, the maxixe and similar modern terpsichorean delights on the blacklist, but youth had way, and not only will there be no censors, but professional dancers have been engaged to introduce during the evening the very latest variations of the one-step. [illegible] of Mrs. Robert Grant, Jr., is in charge of the ball, and it was she who insisted there should be no restriction.

Many surprising and interesting features have been planned for the bazaar. Among other things, pretty Vincent Club girls, disguised as gypsies and astrologers, will sit in mysterious looking booths and tell the fortunes and reveal the future to those who cross their palms with silver, and for the children will be provided real fishpoles with which they may fish in a fishpond prepared in the Copley-Plaza ballroom. There will also be excellent music.

One of the special features of the bazaar will be the Literature Booth, under the joint management of Mrs. Elisabeth Towne of Holyoke and Mrs. Elizabeth White of Boston. There will be books, magazines and leaflets of all sorts.

A famous band will come here from New York, and several well-known singers have volunteered to sing. Among these are Mrs. Jeanette Hall, the famous Natick opera singer, who has recently turned down an offer to sing for $2,000 per week to go into grand opera; Albert C. Orcutt, the noted tenor; Miss Lucia Spargo, Miss Marion Watson, Mrs. May Ruggles [illegible] Morris Zam, the nine-year-old Russian prodigy, is to sing.

The patronesses of the ball are:

Mrs. Rodolpho L. Agassiz	Mrs. N. P. Hallowell
Mrs. [illegible] J. Allan	Mrs. Arthur V. Harper
Mrs. Ernest Newton Bagg	Mrs. Francis B. Harrington

[illegible]

The fifth [illegible] party and dance to be given under the auspices of the [illegible] Associates, in Bethesda Hall, Monday evening, May 4, promises to be one of the most successful ever held by the club. The members are planning to have well known entertainers appear during the intermission, among whom are Richard Marnell, tenor soloist and Robert Sloane and partner in an exhibition of the Montevidio dance.

The committee will have the assistance of many well known young women and is composed of the following:

[illegible]

Mrs. Louis Boas, a former resident of the City Point section, has been spending a brief vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gallagher of East Eighth street.

The Vincent Associates conducted a successful dancing party in Bethesda Hall, Friday evening. The committee of arrangements consisted of Maurice Leonard, chairman; Frank Donovan, John Cannon, Walter Hab[illegible], Frank Goggin, John Sweeney, William Doherty and Walter Waite.

The annual concert and dance of the Ladies' of Clan Farquarhson was given Friday evening, in Bethesda Hall. Mrs. George Richardson, Mrs. William J. Payne and Miss E. Suter had charge of the arrangements.

Gertrude Gallagher and Mary [illegible] were the guests last week of Mrs. John Clancy of Millis.

The first dancing party of the South Boston Girls' Club, was given Thursday evening in Columbus Club Hall. [illegible] committee in charge comprised Elizabeth Flood, Veronica Bowman, Alice Small and Margaret Barrett.

WEST ROXBURY

The canoeing season at Charles River, Spring street, was formally opened on the heights at the Cochecho Canoe Club. The event was marked by an "open house" at their club. Many members and their friends visited the clubhouse during the day and renewed old acquaintances. A number of members of the Pawtuxet Canoe Club of Pawtuxet, R. I., called and paid their respects to Commodore McDonald.

In the morning the ball team played its first game of the year and defeated the strong Outside team of West Roxbury by the score of 11 to 6. A feature was the batting of Steadman, the crack Canoe pitcher, who at five times up connected for a single, double, triple and home run, scoring a man in each lot.

The members of the racing crews are in strict training for the American Canoe Association regatta which will be held at [illegible] Lake, May 29, 30 and 31. For the past two seasons this club has won a majority of the events and with all the veterans paddling in old-time form a banner season is predicted.

All plans are now perfected for the annual dance which will be held May 22 at "Moseley's on the Charles."

A new march dedicated to the club and written by Dick Roth, who is well known in musical circles will be played for the first time.

Speaks on Joan of Arc

On Friday evening, May 8, the anniversary of Joan of Arc, the heroine of the history of France, will be honored in Boston in most appropriate ways.

That day, the anniversary of the relief of Orleans, will be the subject of a [illegible] to be produced at B[illegible]. The celebration will consist of a musical concert of high [illegible] and an address on "The Life and Virtues of Blessed Jeanne d'Arc" by one of her greatest admirers. [illegible] lantern views, imported from France for the purpose, will be exhibited [illegible] illustration of the various phases of her life and career, by the Rev. Matthew L. Fortier, S. J., professor of philosophy.

This lecture has already been given with great success in Baltimore, Rochester, Wilmington, Georgetown, Jersey City, New York [illegible] and Boston. Its highest commendation is that of Cardinal Gibbons, who in a letter written to present the reverend lecturer at the Maryland theatre in Baltimore, said:

"This lecture is a most instructive and interesting one, delivered by one who is already well known for his great [illegible] and I am sure that all who attend will enjoy a most pleasant evening."

It has received the special patronage of several dignitaries of the Catholic Church and distinguished Catholic [illegible] laymen. This lecture was written primarily at the request of the Knights of Columbus of Baltimore for the first celebration of the memory of Joan of Arc after her beatification by Pope Pius X, April 18, 1909. [illegible] proceeds realized from this [illegible] lecture celebration will be devoted to the fund for founding the [illegible] chair of philosophy in Boston College.

Governor and Mrs. Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island will be present as special guests.

Miss Eleanor MacIntosh, daughter of Mrs. Helen MacIntosh of Roxbury, will be married to Frederick W. Murphy, Harvard, '06, Wednesday.

Only the immediate family will be present at the ceremony and at the reception following the marriage.

The marriage will take place in St. Joseph's rectory Wednesday evening and the young bride-elect will be attended by her aunt, Mrs. Joseph E. Doherty. The groom-elect will be attended by Redmond Doherty, Georgetown, '14, son of Mrs. Doherty.

Miss MacIntosh has been one of the leading young debutantes in social circles.

May Ball by Century Club

One of the crowning social events of May will be the "May Ball," to be given under the direction of the members of the Twentieth Century Whist Club. It will be held at the Copley-Plaza on Friday evening.

Mrs. Richard A. Lynch, the president, feels sure that the affair this year will be as successful as those held previously by the club. The proceeds are to be donated to charity. Both ballrooms will be opened for dancing under the direction of Gen. John J. Sullivan.

In the gold and green tea room whist will be played, arrangements having been made for one hundred tables.

The banquet will be served in the oval dining room and ballroom of the state suite.

The president, Mrs. Richard A. Lynch, and the treasurer, Mrs. Frank W. Lavery, will be assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Horace Bassett, Mrs. William A. Boudrot, Mrs. Thomas F. Boyle, Mrs. P. NOTRE DAME ALUMNAE HOLD FETE AT VENDOME.

A bazaar was held under the direction of Roxbury Alumnae of the Notre Dame Academy on Friday and Saturday at the Vendome. In every feature it was one of the most successful affairs held this year.

The officers, directors and members had worked for the fete for months past. The booths were artistic, while the articles for sale were beautiful as well as resonable in price.

Mrs. Mary J. Cotter, Miss Mary A. Barr, Miss Grace Kelley and Mrs. Daniel Clark will direct a whist which will take place at the Tuileries on Saturday afternoon, May 9. The proceeds will go to the academy table in which these women are interested.

Setting Their Caps for the Governor

When Representative James Murphy of the Ward 12 Young Men's Democratic Club whispered to several members of a spinsters' club in Boston Highlands that Governor Walsh and other eligible bachelors were to attend the annual ball of his organization tomorrow night in Hibernian Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury, leading modistes were appealed to to add a little more frills and decorations to their ball gowns.

The bon ton of the South End ward and the elite of the Curleyville and Timiltyville wards just over the boundary line are vying with each other to make Governor Walsh and his military staff feel "perfectly at home" at the ball. Especially is this true of the eligible debutantes of those sections, who have read of the name and fame of the chief executive of the State as a bachelor.

Representative McLaughlin, a member of the club, has arranged for a beauty contest. He says Governor Walsh will have to pick the prettiest girl in the hall. She will appear in the grand march, which will also be graced by the presence of Senator Joseph J. Leonard and his wife.

The officers of the ball are:

New Play on O'Connell

The dramatic club of St. Joseph's Church, West End, is very active in rehearsing for its annual play to be given in St. Mary's Theatre, Cooper street, North End, on May the 4th and 5th. The cast, numbering a hundred people, is too large for the club's own hall on Charles street.

For several years past this club produces every year an original play or one of the old-time dramas, the proceeds of which are for the worthy poor of the parish. The players have received many favorable comments for their efforts from prominent actors, and this year they are endeavoring to surpass themselves in producing "The Liberator," an original drama, written by the director, Father McCormack, dealing with an historical event in the life of the great Daniel O'Connell—the Doneraile conspiracy.

The parishioners are looking forward with keen appreciation to the play, "The Liberator," for they feel assured that the scenes and incidents will be true to life and not a parody on the customs and times of the Irish people.

DRILL BY MALDEN M. C. O. F. COURT.

The principal feature at the recent ball of Star of the Sea Court, M. C. O. F., of Marblehead, was the exhibition drill given by the degree team of Assumption Court of Malden, whose splendid appearance and winning ways won similar approbation to that accorded them last season at the various installations. A large delegation of Malden friends were present, going in special cars. Miss Margaret Delaney, captain of the Malden team, was presented a beautiful bouquet, and at midnight the Malden team were tendered a supper at the home of the chief ranger of the Marblehead court, Miss Treeto.

BEST OF THE CLASSIER MAGAZINES

Seen in Boston Shops

By Betty the Shopper

If Milady of the Crinoline age, with her tight little waist and stiffly boned corsets, were to be suddenly set down in the establishment of a modern corsetiere, we can imagine her gasp of astonishment. Not at the gowns—for bustles, puffs and ruffles are as much a part of our frocks as they were of the frocks of this dainty lady—but the waist line! This alone would be the cause of her astonishment.

Seventeen or eighteen inches was not an unusual waist measurement for the corseted figure in those days, while today the average girl rejoices in the fact that she measures twenty-eight inches about the waist. Quite a difference isn't it? But when we consider that every one of these additional inches means comfort and freedom to womankind we can afford to laugh lightly at the astonishment of our unenlightened sister.

It is true that the French corset designers have been dangling the bugaboo of the tight waist line before our eyes for some time past, and it is highly probable that a greater curve at the waist will gradually develop. The return of the basque with its quaint gores and underarm seams is sufficient warning of the coming change. But happily the very small waist can never be again. The freedom of the natural corset has given the body has so firmly established its line that it would be wellnigh impossible to encase it in the models of the past century. And if it were possible, few women would care to go back to the old torture boxes. Once emancipated, a return to slavery would be intolerable.

Proper corseting is a problem that interests woman more and more, as she realizes its significance to her correct appearance. It would be almost impossible to don the gowns—in fact any of the garments of the Spring—if some attention were not first given to the very foundation, the corset.

"The hardest problem we have to contend with," a prominent corset buyer recently told me, "is the woman who does not care to have her corset fitted. She goes through the various departments of a shop, selects her wardrobe with care, having everything adjusted to suit her figure, and then she thinks of her corset. Last, mind you, when in the very nature of things it should have been considered first. Nine times out of ten if she does, then, consent to have her corset fitted to her figure it will require a change in the entire wardrobe. A difficulty which could easily have been avoided if she had made her first visit to the corsetiere.

A woman may be a general thirty-six and safely order a waist from the stock size, but to order a corset without first trying it on, to me seems the height of folly. When the corset is adjusted, a hollow here, and a bulge there can be taken care of and a natural, beautiful figure result. With this as a foundation, the outer garments are bound to have more style."

The corset of the Spring, very long and very low, with no more bones than are absolutely necessary for support, imparts a natural and youthful appearance to almost every figure. It acts as a support for the muscles inclined to sag, holding them in place, correcting faults here and there and yet allowing for perfect freedom in breath and movement.

The low bust line of the new corset is also a progressive step. Worn with a well-fitting brassiere, it holds the bust firmly in place without pushing it up into prominence, as the old-fashioned corset did.

The well developed woman will, of course, require more boning in her corsets than her slender sister, and this is often where she comes to grief. She imagines the term "uncorseted" to mean without corset, or at the most nothing more than one of the boneless models that only the lithe girl given to athletics and dancing should wear. She attempts this style and when she sees the result becomes discouraged with the present day corseting.

In this case the fitting process is a necessity. The trained corsetiere takes in at a glance the figure of the woman she is fitting and knows what style of corset is best adapted, where boning is necessary, the strength of the material required—in short, all the details necessary to hold her figure in place and at the same time insure absolute freedom and comfort.

Many of the corsets designed for the stout woman have gores of elastic set in to the top of the corset to allow additional "give" in bending, or any unusual strain. This type of corset is also recommended for the singer. It admits of a wonderful expansion, and when made of good materials will hold its shape throughout the life of the corset.

The slender girl has always felt a little superior to her plump sister in the matter of corseting. Anything would do her, since she had no "too, too solid flesh" to dispose of. As a consequence she often chose a model which seemed the least troublesome to adjust, chafed when the hard stays hurt her none too well protected bones, and endured corsets only because custom seemed to demand them.

Today the thin woman is as conscientiously considered by the corsetiere as her stouter sister. All of the shops offer special models, designed especially for her, and she is the delight of the custom corsetiere.

The majority of these corsets have only one or two bones in the back or front, with the hip left free. With the much abused hip bone now safe from the prod of the steel, even the thin girl can enjoy her corsets.

The woman who is neither too fat nor too lean, of course finds the least difficulty in getting a desirable corset. Some boning is necessary, and this is distributed where it will do the most good. To prevent any accidental restriction at the waist line, care is taken in the lacing of the corset, usually a double lacer being used. The scientific corsetiere will instruct the patron in the proper lacing of the corset, that it may be adjusted each time it is put on.

The object of the corset, fundamentally, is to preserve the correct poise of the body, and unless a corset does this it is not fulfilling its mission. The debutante slouch is not the correct poise and happily the vogue of this atrocious pose is dead. Corsetieres were often forced to meet the demands of the patron who considered this undignified slouch quite ultra, and therefore to be adopted, and pads which gave the high abdomen were made and sold. Some extremists even went so far as to construct the corset with the outward curve over the abdomen. This, of course, was a fad and like all fads has seen its day without really making itself felt.

The novelty idea is riotous in all the corset materials. The most expensive models are made of brocade, silk tricot, Italian silk, silk serge and silk suede, while the more economical will find as much comfort and more endurance in the corset of batiste.

Though white is, of course, most popular, flesh pink promises soon to be its formidable rival. This is due to the transparent bodice, which must needs show only dainty and beautiful undergarments. On some of the corsets lace is a popular trimming—not the plain band of coarse lace that used to ornament—if ornament is the proper word—our corsets a few years ago, but real puffings of shadow and val at the top, or shirred daintily on for a depth of several inches. Vandyke points of cluny and Irish decorate the more elaborate ones, and often perky bows of satin ribbon peek out from the folds of this expensive trimming.

The variety in corsets is infinite. Today milady can go to her corsetiere or the department store and ask for a dancing corset. If her figure seems to admit it, the trained saleswoman will show her one of the dainty models long in the hip, but reaching only to the waist line. Some of these are entirely free of boning, sometimes with one or two cleverly placed. It may be made of any of the charming corset materials, but it is sure to give her absolute comfort in any of the most intricate steps of the dance.

The athletic corset follows the general idea of the dancing model, unless it is to be used for riding, then it is shorter in the skirt to give the limbs perfect freedom. The athletic corset with the elastic waist band is most satisfactory. There is always plenty of room for expansion.

Some of the new bathing corsets are of rubber cloth, with a steel back and front and two bones toward the back and front to give support. The skirts of these corsets are just long enough to give the long line to the figure and confine the hip. The splendid feature about them, they are nonrustable in every part.

If milady is not given to dancing and various sports, but leads the quiet home life of the average woman, she at least from the standpoint of daintiness and cleanliness will need more than one pair of corsets. The life of the corset will be much longer if it is not worn continuously. If several corsets are kept on hand and changed occasionally they will hold their shape longer and the problem of cleansing will be simpler.

There is much discussion as to which is superior, the front or back lacing corset. Each contender has his good points to convince you with, but it seems when all things are considered to be largely a matter of taste. If a corset supports the abdomen, gives ample room for deep breathing, does not restrict any part unduly and withal looks good, it seems of little importance whether it laces in front or back.

Of equal importance with the corset is the brassiere. So radical has been the change in this article of wearing apparel, that one hardly connects the dainty frivolous, lacy confection of the present day with the unsightly affairs of a few seasons ago.

The brassiere must first of all be a bust confiner. To meet this requirement it is usually made of some material that will not stretch a great deal. Muslin, batiste, linen, so daintily combined with lace that it performs its function without losing its beauty, are popular materials in its construction. Some very pretty ones are made of ribbon, others of rubber tricot combined with madras cloth. Italian silk is splendid as it can be worn under the corset next to the body. Few of the brassieres have any stays. They depend upon the clever cut to hold them firm. The slight woman may have a brassiere that has a decided fullness in front with the back plain. The brassiere of net with the shields sewed into it will be one of the most satisfactory ways of wearing shields with sheer waists.

Brassieres close in every conceivable way. Some fasten on the shoulder under the arm, at the back, at the side-front and directly in the front. This seems to be the most popular. Some slip-on models have elastic in the top and bottom and are drawn down over the head.

Crepe de Chine, nainsook, linen, shadow lace, valenciennes, Swiss embroidery, have all been called into requisition with the result that the brassiere is a thing of beauty and most women are inclined to a wild extravagance once they see the assortment.

Contents of the Jewel Case

The designers of jewelry are as indefatigable in their endeavors to create new and pleasing things as the busy artist who brings out the latest in feminine wearing apparel. So Mylady finds that the fashion in jewelry changes in much the same manner as the fashion in gowns.

These changes are seldom so radical or so startling, it is true, but care must be taken that these adornments be kept up to date.

That the jewelry one wears be in good taste is of the utmost importance. If Mylady has a penchant for rubies, then rubies she may wear, but mounted in some way of which the prevailing mode approves. The clever woman attempts to express her individuality in the selection of her jewels. In the color, tone and the adjustment of the stones she chooses there may be a note of her own personality. The connoisseur in this line goes so far as to tell us that her jewels should harmonize with the texture of her skin, the color of her hair and eyes. Certain stones should be worn if Mylady's eyes are blue, still others if her eyes are brown. However true this way be, it is hard to tell, but we all can think of some woman, who by the discrimination and rare good taste she showed in the combination of jewels was all the more lovely for their magnificence.

On the other hand, the danger point is very easily overstepped, and many a woman is inclined to adorn herself much after the manner of an Eastern potentate. This august personage, though he be weighted down with half the product of Kimberley, will not appear so out of place as the woman who wears many jewels indiscriminately.

Few women of taste now wear pendants or la vallieres on the street. The only throat adornment for street wear is a string of pearls. Real or artificial, they are quite the vogue at present.

One whose jewelry allowance is not limited may include in her collection any number of watches. If she be a devotee of the dance, with a love for the extreme, the shops are showing a striking tango watch for wear on the left ankle. For street wear she will have a wrist watch or a watch set into the mounting of her shopping bag. For afternoon wear a jeweled watch, and if she rides a buttonhole watch for her habit.

The bar pin has been supplanted by the V-shaped pin for shirt waists. These pins may be paved with stones or plain.

The high coiffure of the present day has brought the hair ornament again to the fore, and some beautiful bits of workmanship are the result. For evening wear jeweled pins, jeweled bandeaux and charming Spanish back combs heavily paved with stones are quite popular. These can be worn flat against the hair or standing upright, just as fancy dictates.

Among the precious stones the diamond occupies the supreme place, with the emerald next, closely followed by the sapphire. Pearls, of course, have always held a place of their own, and are often the most coveted of the stones.

Craftsmanship is the strong note in the jewelry of the day, and the tendency is to exercise great care in the workmanship of the mount rather than in the mere setting of the stones.

The most fashionable rings are round and square. The oval ring is not so popular, though the dinner ring somewhat resembles this shape. In length the correct dinner ring is from one and one-quarter to one and three-quarter inches.

The settings of the rings of the day are most beautiful. The most delicate lacelike patterns and flower effects are worked out with the minutest accuracy, and when serving as a foundation for a brilliant stone they are enough to excite the envy and admiration of any woman.
by hand are very pretty for day wear if they escape the clumsy look many are inclined to have.

They tell us it is no longer a hard and fast rule that the engagement ring should be made a solitaire set in a platinum claw. It may have a combination of gems as emeralds and diamonds or sapphires and diamonds, or other precious stones.

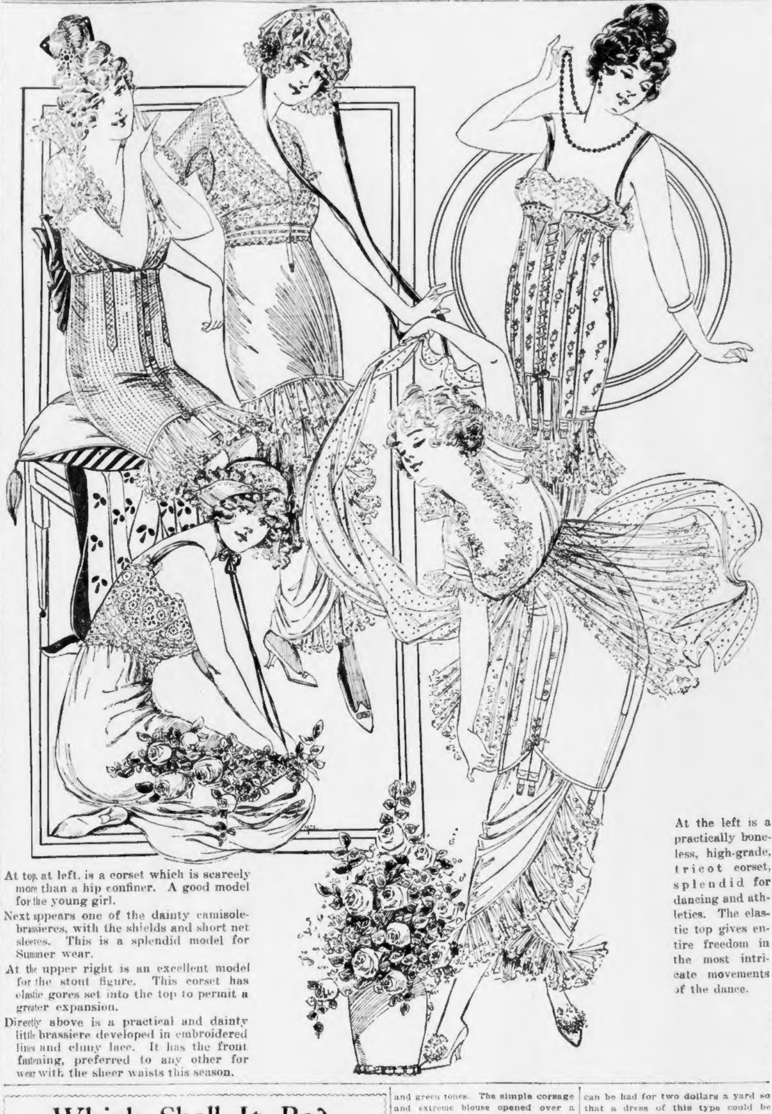
CORSETS FOR THE SUMMER



At top, at left, is a corset which is scarcely more than a hip confiner. A good model for the young girl.

Next appears one of the dainty camisole-brassieres, with the shields and short net sleeves. This is a splendid model for Summer wear.

At the upper right is an excellent model for the stout figure. This corset has elastic gores set into the top to permit a greater expansion.

Directly above is a practical and dainty little brassiere developed in embroidered lines and cluny lace. It has the front fastening, preferred to any other for wear with the sheer waists this season.

At the left is a practically boneless, high-grade, tricot corset, splendid for dancing and athletics. The elastic top gives entire freedom in the most intricate movements of the dance.

Which Shall It Be?

This is the season, when the woman of limited means is confronted with the question "Will it be a coat or a suit?"

If a coat, of course there must be a suitable frock to go with it. A frock is always more becoming than a suit, and except for the street is really appropriate on more occasions.

In choosing a frock the material must be carefully considered. If it is to be the general utility kind for the street and the at home affair, taffeta will be about the most satisfactory.

It lends itself to any style in vogue, from the extreme bustle type to the simplest draperies.

There are any number of good color combinations from which to select, and just now with the rage for plaids at its height, one ought have no trouble in working in some of these delightful patterns. A plaited tunic in a plaid of contrasting color on a deep blue or green taffeta frock gives it a sprightly touch. Little boleros of the plaid and collars and cuffs of this material will lend chic to the plainest gown.

The Roman striped materials are also very smart, and when used conservatively make very attractive compose suits or frock. Unfortunately the tendency of the human race is to make much of a good thing, with the result that it soon ceases to be a good thing.

A striking little frock I saw recently was a golden brown taffeta, combined with a plaid in the brown and green tones. The simple corsage and extreme blouse opened over a sheer vest of creamy lace. rolling Japanese collar of brown velvet and a crushed belt gave a pretty contrast in material and color. The rather long plaited tunic was caught about the hips with a wide sash of the golden brown taffeta, which crossed low and tied in a loose knot at the lower left side. The skirt proper was simply made of the golden brown taffeta. A very good quality taffeta can be had for two dollars a yard so that a dress of this type could be made quite inexpensively.

The redeeming feature about the suit this season, is its dressiness. If Milady feels that a suit is a better investment than the coat and frock, she has a wide variety of styles from which to choose and can find a model that can be worn on the street or with the addition of a fancy blouse to the afternoon tea.

FOR MILADY'S WARDROBE

Many of the thin Summer frocks will have girdles of lacquered ribbon. These girdles are usually finished with a flat bow in back.

Huge bows of tulle with long sash ends finish many of the newest evening gowns.

Plaits are bound to be good for the next season or two. The straight plaited skirt, or the plain skirt with a plaited tunic, is good. Very often the fulness about the waist is confined by a deep yoke. It may fall loose to give the panier effect about the hips.

One of the smart shops in Paris is featuring a frock which looks not unlike a barber pole. Thin white tissue is the material used and it is cleverly striped in black, red and blue. The skirt is a series of ruffles, with the material cut on the bias. A woman with sufficient dash and style would be very stunning in this rather daring creation.

The sheerest mousseline blouses, rather audacious in their transparency, are very smart when worn with a separate skirt of taffeta.

Will novelties cease? Some of the newest blouses button along the outer seam of the sleeve from neck to wrist, instead of in front or in back, very much in the manner of the little tot's slip-on frock.

The waistcoat continues to be the vogue for the tailleur. Most of these are of white material, just two fronts and the collar. Sewed here and there to the lining of the coat, they keep in place and are very attractive.

Handkerchief linen blouses in the most brilliant colorings, orange, blue rose and delicate grays, are very popular for informal wear.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the short skirt will be the thing for the coming seasons. From four to seven inches is the prescribed height from the ground.

Cost of Materials

Printed pongees, very new and attractive, can be had in a great variety of quaint designs for $2 and $2.50 a yard.

Ripple silks of exquisite texture, light and heavy weaves, sell from $4 to $5.50 a yard. These silks are forty inches wide.

Plaid and Roman stripe poplins so attractive for vests, girdles and trimming, sell from $4 to $5.50 a yard. These are of excellent quality and unusual design. Forty inches is the average width of these silks.

A splendid piece of silk and wool brocade thirty-six inches wide sells for $6 a yard.

White cotton crepes, daintily flowered, thirty-eight inches wide, can be had for $1 and $1.25 a yard.

Dainty girdle vests, just the thing for the short front coat, can be had from $1.50 up.

Two-toned gabardine, an exceptional quality, sells for $3 a yard. This material is fifty-four inches wide.

Girdles and sashes of knitted silk are very smart for wear with the serge or silk frock. These are shown in a great variety of combinations and sell from $3.50 up.

Girdles of black and colored taffetas, some with tunic or ruffle attached, are selling in all the shops from $1 up.

Wool French suitings, plain and striped in self colors, are fifty-four inches wide and sell for $3 and $3.50 a yard.

Flowered dimities, very dainty and appropriate for the Summer afternoon frock, are twenty-seven inches wide and sell for 25 cents a yard.

Plaited nets, for the tunic on the silk frock, are eighteen inches wide and sell for $3.75 a yard.

GERMANS PUSH PLANS TO JOIN IN PANAMA FAIR

Committee Considers Erection of Elaborate Booths in Every Great Structure of Exposition.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

BERLIN, April 25.—Officials of the German Panama Exposition Committee are at work upon a plan which it is believed will materially add to the importance and interests of Germany's exhibit at the San Francisco Fair.

It provides for the construction in each of the greater exposition buildings of special exhibition booths of uniform style wherein Germany's exhibits in various departments can be assembled and seen as a whole. The work of designing the structures has been entrusted to a well known German architect, Bruno Moehring. It is the intention to give them a distinctive, characteristically German style.

Members of the committee believe that the effect of the plan will be to emphasize the real importance of Germany's contribution to the fair, giving it a unity and compactness which it otherwise would lack.

Another project upon which the committee is now working contemplates special municipal expositions from leading German cities.

"Several German cities are showing keen interest in the plan," said Consul Schilling, manager of the San Francisco Exposition Bureau. "Bremen, Hamburg, Dresden, and Hildesheim will prepare fine exhibits. We expect to interest also Leipsig, Frankfurt and Cologne.

"Mr. Schulz of San Francisco, who is here co-operating with the committee, left this week for East Prussia to make similar arrangements with the authorities of Posen and Breslau.

"While Berlin is yet undecided to participate officially a number of leading merchants here are planning to join the exposition in an especially constructed booth to bear the name 'Berlin Exhibit.' It will contain a carefully selected display of the most prominent firms and will include also fine models of several famous public structures in Berlin."

Berlin Socialists Complain of Heckling

Cite Two Incidents of Persecution by Conservative Papers.

BERLIN, April 25.—The Socialist forces here are incensed at what they term the petty persecution of the adherents to the cause of social democracy and considerable prominence is given to two cases of this sort. The Socialist newspapers cite the predicament of a well-known artist who promised to read some verses at a gathering in commemoration of the victims of the 1848 revolution. Immediately this became known the Conservative papers expressed "sorrow and surprise" that such a step could be taken by an artist of repute. As a consequence, and because otherwise his future would have been imperilled, the artist had to cancel his engagement. The second incident concerns a clergyman in a district near Berlin, who voted at a municipal election for a candidate of the Social Democratic party. When questioned as to his action, he stated that, political conviction apart, he considered the Socialist the man best qualified for the office. But the Conservative papers are making an outcry that a clergyman has voted for an "anti-Monarchist" party.

Ridgely Carter Back from Trip to Chile

Ex-U. S. Minister to Balkans Says Roosevelt Won South Americans.

PARIS, April 25.—Ridgely Carter, ex-United States Minister to the Balkans, who is staying here a few weeks, has just returned from South America, where he spent eight months, chiefly in Chile. He told the correspondent of the Boston AMERICAN he couldn't see how the Republican party could refuse to nominate Roosevelt in 1916, saying:

"Roosevelt made a tremendous impression in South America and undoubtedly did much to advance American commercial influence there at the expense of the Germans and English. He will undoubtedly be heard from in national politics when he returns to his own country."

Envoy Page Reads Shakespeare 'Toast'

LONDON, April 25.—United States Ambassador and Mrs. Walter Hines Page went to Stratford-on-Avon on Thursday, where the American envoy made the chief speech at the Shakespeare festivities.

The Ambassador had booked the engagement long ago, otherwise he probably would not have gone owing to the Mexican situation, which demands his attention and presence in London.

It was noticeable that Ambassador Page read his speech, which proposed a toast to the immortal memory of Shakespeare, from a printed manuscript in type of exceptionally large size.

Auditors said he evidently had "learned his lesson well" and won't run the risk again of letting his exuberance for England get him into trouble.

Mrs. Potter Palmer to Be Paris Hostess

PARIS, April 25.—The Imperator this week disembarked a large contingent of Americans who will pass the Summer on this side of the water.

The visitors include Mrs. Potter Palmer, who, as usual, will be one of the most prominent hostesses in Paris; Mrs. William F. Draper and Miss Margaret Draper of Boston, who have many friends in Paris, and Jules Bache of New York and his daughter Kathryn, who has a handsome apartment here.

Grand Duchess Olga Breaks Troth with Prince Charles

Czar's Eldest Daughter Begged Him to Save Her from Marrying Man She Didn't Love.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 25.—Grand Duchess Olga, first and perhaps best beloved of the Czar's daughters, has broken her engagement to marry Prince Charles, son of the Crown Prince of Rumania, who in the nature of events will sit on the Rumanian throne.

The young couple—she is eighteen, he twenty—were affianced as these dispatches told first and exclusively. But at the last moment when the date of the wedding had been actually fixed, the Grand Duchess threw herself at her father's feet and implored him not to render her life miserable, not to compel her to marry a man whom she does not love; whom she never can love, she protested.

The Czar, tenderest, most affectionate of fathers, embraced his daughter, dried her tears and assured her she shall not marry Prince Charles, who, after all, is a handsome and engaging young fellow. So His Majesty explained to the Rumanian Crown Prince and Princess that he must consider his daughter's feelings and respect her wishes above all else.

Prince Charles took the North Express for Berlin that very night. Such marriages of course are made in the chancelleries, but the young prince thought he had found favor in the lady's eyes. Her "I will not" or, rather, her father's "She shall not," provoked many other unhappy consequences.

The Empress had set her heart on the match and used all her influence with her daughter to consent to the betrothal, which actually was made.

The Rumanian Crown Prince and Princess and Prince Charles became the Czar's guests, at the palace at Tsarkoe-Selo. There a State luncheon was given to which the imperial family was bidden, and even the members of the Rumanian legation, that they might be presented to their future Queen.

The Duchess of Coburg, Prince Carol's grandmother, was so overjoyed by the engagement that she sent to Court Jeweller Bolin her two splendid gems of rare beauty, a huge ruby and an emerald, wedding presents from her father, the late Emperor Alexander II., to be reset, to offer them to the Grand Duchess Olga. The jeweller had submitted to the Duchess several drawings out of which she selected two.

Then Olga's tears prevailed on her father. Some dreadful scenes, scoldings, reproaches followed between the Empress and the young Grand Duchess.

It is safe to say the Czar did not escape, for his august spouse has a temper of her own when her nerves are stretched.

The Crown Prince of Rumania and his consort left Tsarkoe-Selo abruptly for St. Petersburg, three days ahead of the original program of their visit. The Crown Prince took leave of the Emperor at a parade here, but the Crown Princess did not go to Tsarkoe-Selo to bid farewell to the Empress, which all the members of the imperial family did before her departure for the Crimea.

The Empress, on her side, did not return the Crown Princess' visit whilst the latter was in town, a visit which etiquette demanded, and the Emperor appeared quite embarrassed at the parade when parting from his Rumanian guests.

The Crown Princely pair soon left for Bucharest. The Emperor and Empress, with their children, went to the Crimea by special train a few days ago; it was noticed that the Grand Duchess Olga looked extremely pale and worried.

The Dowager Duchess of Coburg, half sad, half angry, has left St. Petersburg and this may not be all—a girl's tears may cause political complications.

Every one in court circles are whispering: "If not Prince Charles, who has won the Grand Duchess Olga's maiden heart?"

Velvet Is Newest Fabric For Fine Summer Gowns

Stripes of Black and White and the Livelier Hues Rivals for Popular Fancy.

By MME. RENEE DUVANT.

Special Cable to Boston American.

PARIS, April 25.—Velvet is to be the Summer stuff. The newer tissue is light in structure and especially woven for coolness, but it will give the same impression of richness and afford the same depth of color as that which is worn in Winter.

These facts will be a consolation to many women of fashion, who are not altogether disdainful of economy, as Winter robes may with slight changes be used again for the demi-season.

Some of the Summer velvets are striped in black and white; others are in more lively hues—audacious, even ardent.

Reds, blues and greens are to be wedded to one another in the same costume in most unexpected fashion.

Indeed, in the matter of color, there may be said to be two rival schools of taste. In one simplicity rules, and it adheres rather strictly to black and white or to the various subdued shades of brown and gray. But for the moment the school that revels in gay variegation is by far the more popular.

The freshest Spring models scintillate in bright, even startling hues, luminous if not dazzling. Blue, green, red, yellow and black are to be seen in juxtaposition, often producing decidedly crude contrasts.

Straw-yellow, pale green, cerulean blue and rose are the favorite tints.

The style of the costume is adapted in a sense to the color scheme. The fashions of 1830 to 1885 inspire the darker costumes; the exquisite taste of the seventeenth century the lighter-hued ones.

As I predicted some time ago, the little old round bonnet with strings that tie under the chin has come back from the happy days of the late "fifties." With it has arrived the flat or bowl-shaped hat, which looks, being mostly woven of straw or horsehair, like a shallow, inverted basket.

Over this, in many instances, particularly if it be tilted forward, a black velvet ribbon is passed, to be tied in a broad knot behind, below the chignon. When the hat is thus rounded over the head and is trimmed with bright leaves or flowers, according to fancy, the effect is very stunning.

This style seems very likely to have increased vogue as the warm season advances.

How far the revived Second Empire bonnet will be accepted is problematical, but it is entirely in harmony with the present tendency of fashion as regards headgear.

Toques, small round hats, melon-shaped or conical, tricornes and many other forms will probably continue in favor for a good while.

Indeed in this, as in every other department of fashion, electricism and immense aesthetic latitude are the dominant principles.

Whistler Now Immortal, Admits a British Writer

Distinguished American Placed in Niche of Fame by Recent $200,000 Art Sale.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, April 25.—Whistler, the distinguished American artist, has, according to the London Outlook, climbed into a niche reserved for one of the greatest masters by the recent sale of the Canfield collection in New York. The journal qualifies this high praise by adding "as far as prices go."

The fact that two of these masterpieces, "Rosa Corder" and "Comte Robert de Montesquieu," alone fetched $200,000, no doubt, in part, accounts for this statement.

The writer goes on to say that "it may be, of course, that this estimate is the result of a passing vogue notwithstanding. Whistler is justly period of disparagement and neglect."

No such fear, however, clouds the mind of the Outlook critic, for he feels that, colossal prices of the day notwithstanding, Whistler is justly appraised and that he is, indeed, one of the greatest masters, and that in days to come it "will be a standing reproach to our national collections that they are so deficient in his work."

Whistler's great drawback was his personal eccentricity, which helped materially to spoil his chances of success with the British critics and public, but were the British a truly artistic people this never could have interfered with their true appreciation of the wonder of his art.

In conclusion, the writer says:

"We have still to pay for our neglect, and on the day when the trustees of the National Gallery have secured a second-rate Whistler for some fabulous sums the great artist will be avenged indeed."

"Sun Power" Expert Tells Savants of 48 New Tests

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, April 25.—Engineers and scientists filled the hall of the Society of Engineers to hear A. S. E. Ackerman's paper on "Utilization of Solar Energy." This is the first paper of its kind, dealing as it does with the whole of the experiments so far made during the past four years at a cost of about $150,000.

Mr. Ackerman, who has been carrying out this important work in conjunction with C. T. Walrond, touched on the determinations of the solar constant and proceeded to deal fully with the varying percentages of this quantity that are available throughout the day for power purposes.

He also gave some account of the Shuman sun heat absorbers and went on to describe in detail the result of his forty-eight trials of these absorbers, the latest pattern of which has been erected near Cairo, Egypt.

Some interesting details followed, showing the facilities and also that the total steam output of a certain type of absorber can be calculated to a nicety.

Thus it has been ascertained that humidity adversely affects the quantity of solar radiation arriving at the earth's solid surface, but this is the first time that its effect on solar steam production has been quantitatively determined.

The lecturer told his audience that two of the types of absorbers did not move with the sun and one did. The greatest constancy of output of steam in the case of the latter is very marked.

Fabulous Dividends by Diamond Concern

Stockholders Grumbling Because Rate Is Cut to 2,500 Per Cent.

BERLIN, April 25.—If you have money to invest and want a reasonable interest, say 3,000 per cent. the proper thing to do is to buy shares in a German diamond company, if you can get them. A few weeks ago when a statement was made that the Colonial Mining Company was about to reduce its dividend from 3,500 per cent. to 2,500 per cent. there was no end of alarm among the shareholders and now that the preliminary announcement has been officially confirmed they are really grumbling.

The company was founded by a small group of colonial funtionaries six years ago, when the first important discoveries were made of diamonds in German territory in South Africa. The mine soon reached a position of extreme productivity and was able to pay the fabulaus dividend of 2,400 per cent. in 1910, but the company adopted the prudent plan of paying large amounts into the sinking fund and of acquiring the best plant possible, also important interests in other diamond mines.

Sharp Bidding for Chili's Dreadnaughts

Great Activity in Armament Plans Among European Nations.

LONDON, April 25.—Speculation is once more rife regarding the destination of two Chilian dreadnaughts now building in this country. For the present it seems that the states which appear inclined to increase their naval forces by becoming bidders in the open market for dreadnaughts, have turned their attention from the two Argentine ships now ready in the American yards, and are looking to the British shipyards. Besides Greece and Turkey there are other powers in the market. It has been reported that one of them is Italy. This has been emphasized by the opening this week of a great airship station at Kingsnorth in the neighborhood of Chatham, near the mouth of the Thames, where two great airship halls have been erected.

Paris Jealous of Style Reputation

Cold Weather Nips New Bare-Leg Fashion.

PARIS, April 25.—Paris is still jealous of her reputation of being the fountain from which all new feminine fashions spring. Only a few weeks ago one distinguished writer of the lighter order seriously lamented the fact that New York and even prosaic London had dared to take up ideas which had not had their birth in Paris. Possibly this has caused inventive brains to work at higher pressure and in recent weeks scarcely a new play has been produced without the leading actress introducing some new mode.

Only a few nights ago a popular footlight favorite struck a new line by appearing on the stage wearing evening dress and minus stockings. Cold weather prevented this style from becoming popular.

Jerusalem to Have New Trolley Lines

Work Soon to Be Started on Four Lines in the Holy City.

JERUSALEM, April 25.—Work will be started soon on four lines of street railway in this Holy City. With new water works, up-to-date lighting, and moving picture theatres, it is safe to say that many devout persons soon will have a distinct shock on visiting the scene of Christ's labors.

Chief among the modern invasions are the great increase in tourist traffic, the construction of railroads from Jaffa, the growth of education among the Arab population, and last, but not least, the rapidly increasing immigration of the Jews, who numbered but 500 souls in all Palestine a century ago, but now form 60 per cent. of the 80,000 inhabitants of Jerusalem.

Rome to Have Home for English Women

Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren Gives Grand Fancy Fair.

ROME, April 25.—If present plans are carried out, Rome will soon have a home for English speaking professional women.

Work of raising the necessary funds has begun in earnest under the auspices of the League of Catholic Women, presided over by Princess Guistiani Bandini. For ten days a grand fancy fair was held in Mrs. Drexel Dahlgren's apartment in Barberini Palace. Cardinal Falconio presided the first day and Cardinal Belmonte on the second.

Mrs. Schuyler Warren, Lady Moloney and Mrs. Owen Leeds were among those who sold flowers to a large crowd, including a number of ladies belonging mostly to the Papal nobility.

Zeppelin Guards Secret of Seaplane

German Aviator Busy on Machine for Transatlantic Trip.

BERLIN, April 25.—German aviation circles are eagerly awaiting some definite announcement from Count Zeppelin ragarding the aeroplane he is building for his attempt to cross the Atlantic. The details of this machine have not been made public; indeed the utmost secrecy is maintained and as all the world knows, money cannot buy the secrets of the Zeppelin Airship Factory.

The seaplane is to be somewhat of its kind, but the engine is to more than counterbalance the extra weight. Count Zeppelin is confident that a transatlantic flight is now well within the bounds of possibility, though he is quite prepared to see

AERO GYROSCOPE TO MAKE FLIGHT OVER SEA EASY

Lieutenant Porte Now Expects, with New Attachment, to Make Trip Alone.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

PARIS, April 25.—When Lieutenant Porte undertakes his transatlantic aeroplane flight next June he will be able to travel most of the distance with arms folded. It has just been decided that the Curtiss hydro-aeroplane shall be fitted with a Sperry gyroscope, and Porte is now convinced that he will be able to make the flight alone, the gyroscope relieving the pilot of the tremendous tension which is one of the greatest difficulties involved in the undertaking.

Lawrence B. Sperry, son of Elmer A. Sperry, inventor of the gyroscope, who is here preparing to compete for the $50,000 prize for the best flying safety device, discussed the matter with Porte the other day. The Englishman is anxious to make the attempt in June. If everything is not then ready, he will start in September.

"When the gyroscope appliance is in action," said Mr. Sperry to the International News Service correspondent, "the pilot cannot do anything but steer. The gyroscope will take complete control of the machine's balance. With the device fitted to the transatlantic machine there can now be no question of Porte doing the journey alone, as an additional quantity of petrol can be shipped instead of carrying a relief pilot. We feel confident that the great flight will be made on the first attempt. If only the weather conditions are suitable it will be a land-to-land affair, without a descent on water en route."

Meanwhile Mr. Sperry, who is called here "the American college boy aviator" is making Paris gasp with his high flights on the outskirts of the city in his self-balanced Sperry-Curtis machine.

Countess of Warwick Will Write for Boston American

England's Cleverest Woman to Describe Brilliant Functions of London Social Season.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, April 25.—The Countess of Warwick, who during the London season, which begins next week, will edit and supervise the social notes of the Boston AMERICAN, returns to London shortly from the Riviera to take up her new work.

It is her purpose to write on the more intimate aspects of the London season and to deal with the important part Americans, especially American women, play in it. In undertaking the work, Lady Warwick brings into the AMERICAN'S service one of the most fascinating personalities in Europe.

Thirty years have passed since the heiress of the last Lord Maynard dazzled the vision of England and reached social heights given to few women to scale. Since then she has been the leader of countless movements of a social, philanthrophic or political nature in which she has interested herself.

Today, with her fiftieth year behind her, the Countess of Warwick is as young as her own charming daughter, the Viscountess Helmsley, and still ranks among the most beautiful women in England. Her boundless energy laughs at time and ignores trouble. Her husband's illness has placed upon her the burden of managing his two great estates, Warwick Castle, which has just been leased to Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Marsh of New York, and Easton Lodge at Dunmow.

She attends to every question arising out of either, yet finds time to see the newest plays, read the latest books, receive the hero of the hour in politics, travel or scholarship. She helps in a hundred causes, touches affairs at innumerable points, knows intimately the controlling forces of British home life. Her influence, often unseen, is felt in many quarters, yet she finds time for literary work, writes upon many questions of the day, devoting much time to matters of woman's interests.

Lady Warwick can discuss a profession or a hair restorer with equal facility. In addition to literary work, she has taken up garden planning professionally. She returns shortly from the Riviera, where she has been planning a French millionaire's Mediterranean garden. She has decided to plan gardens in England and France. Even America is not too far if her services are required. Working from plans made at Easton Lodge, a staff of expert women gardeners has been engaged to assist her. Everything here is done by women, as the Countess of Warwick believes women were cheated by Adam out of their rightful profession. She holds that to be the first instance on record of man's selfishness. The Countess of Warwick is an early riser, often being out riding at 6 o'clock in the morning. She believes the average man and woman waste a great deal of their lives through lack of method.

Not content with garden planning and journalism, the Countess of Warwick will start in June to write her memoirs, which will be an extraordinary book. She has priceless letters from royalty and others giving glimpses of the real forces underlying and directing modern history. Her memoirs will be lengthy and will be published in two volumes, the first to be called "Playtime." It deals with her life when all England was at her feet. The second volume will be called "Worktime," and will deal with her efforts at social reform and the strenuous existence of her latter years.

In the second volume one chapter will be called "Fallen Among Thieves," and will give documentary evidence of her recent trying experiences, some of which have already been published in the AMERICAN.

English society was long ago convinced the Countess of Warwick never would publish these, but she decided to write fully and freely and say all she knows about social England from the early eighties up to the present.

GAUDIE GAINING DISCIPLES FOR NEW ART IDEAS

Barcelona Cathedral Resembles Seashore Cliffs, and All Buildings Are Based on Landscapes.

Special cable to the Sunday American.

PARIS, April 25.—While cubists, futurists or pheists and others are trying to startle the world with more or less impossible interpretations of art in their eager pursuit of notoriety, a real master originator of a truly beautiful new school is unobtrusively carrying out a reform campaign in Barcelona and other Spanish cities which is likely to have an influence on arts—the world over analogous to that of the Renaissance.

Modest, unassuming and shunning advertisement, Antonio Gaudie, after a lifetime of untiring work, has now gathered around him hosts of enthusiastic diciples and his novel theories of beautiful art are gradually gaining ground. His view is that art should shake off all artificiality and be given expression in nature's own way.

A most striking application of this view is found in the Cathedral recently built at Barcelona which closely resembles a seashore cliff. In place of richly carved windows, delicate tracing and lofty steeples of Gothic architecture, the new Barcelona edifice is built in rough hewn granite blocks rising sheer and unbroken save for a few jagged apertures through which light filters. The entrance, shorn of all architectural adornments, is like the opening of a rude prehistoric cave. Not only church architecture, but also blocks of apartments and public buildings are carried out in the same style, the ragged beauty of the ensemble being worthy of description as magnificent and rivaling nature herself.
